SENATOR MITCHELL'S FAVORITE POEM, READ AT HIS FUNERAL BY REV. E. L. HOUSE.

NOT UNDERSTOOD.

Not understood, we move along asunder,
Our paths grow wider as the seasons creep
Along the years; we marvel and wonder
Why life is life, and then we fall asleep,
Not understood.

Not understood, we gather false impressions
And hug them closely as the years go by,
Till virtues oft seem transgressions;
And thus men rise and fall and live and die,
Not understood.

Not understood, poor souls with stunted vision
Oft measure giants by their narrow gauge,
The poisoned shafts of falsehood and decision
Are oft launched against those who mold the age,
Not understood.

Not understood, the secret springs of action
Which lie beneath the surface and the show
Are disregarded. With dissatisfaction
We judge our neighbors, and they often go,
Not understood.

Not understood, how trifles often change us,
The thoughtless sentence or the fancied slight,
Destroy long years of friendship and estrange us
And on our souls there falls a freezing blight;
Not understood.

Not understood, how many breasts are aching
For lack of sympathy? Ah, day by day
How many cheerless, lonely hearts are breaking,
How many noble spirits pass away,
Not understood?

O God, that man would see a little clearer,
Or judge less harshly what they cannot see;
O God, that men would draw a little nearer
To one another; they'd be nearer thee,
And understood.

SINCERITY AND TRUTH.

In the death of Hon. John H. Mitchell the state of Oregon loses the best friend it ever had and a man who devoted the best years of his life to its best interests. Had his death occurred two years ago nearly every newspaper would have been dressed in mourning and every flag would have dropped to half mast. But in an evil hour his trials began. He was selected as a victim and well did his enemies do their work—he was hounded to the brink of the grave and mud and spite flung after him before his body had been placed in its tomb. As to his guilt or innocence in the fraud cases in which he figured and was pronounced guilty, it is not for us to say. He said he was not, and appealed his case to a higher court. Had John H. Mitchell chose to have been a thief, he could have left an estate worth millions, whereas he has died and left scarcely money enough to pay for his burial. But he is dead and his passing away will be regretted by many. What he has done for Oregon—and no man has or could do more—should make his memory sacred to every resident of the state. Senator Thurston, who defended Mr. Mitchell in the land fraud case, said of the senator when he heard of his death: "I am profoundly grieved to hear of the death of my dear old friend, Senator Mitchell. I have known him for a quarter of a century and during all that time I never knew him to be guilty of a dishonest act. I believe that Senator Mitchell in all of his official career has been animated by the highest and most patriotic motives, and the fact that he now passes away leaving behind him scarcely enough of worldly effects to pay his funeral expenses, is the best possible evidence that he has lived clean and honestly. I cannot consistently speak of the late trouble which he has passed through and in which I had the honor of being his attorney. He was charged with a purely technical violation of the statutes of the United States and I presume it was not brought to the personal knowledge of one member of congress in a hundred prior to the late tidal wave of investigation prosecution and persecution which has recently been upon us. I have no criticism to pass upon those who have pursued him, but I am satisfied that if the senator had lived and his case had been decided by the supreme court of the United States that the decision would have resulted in his vindication of the act involving dishonesty or moral turpitude. In my judgement it will be long, long years before Oregon will ever have so faithful, so able or so successful a representative in the senate of the United States."—Hillsboro Independent.

Never in the history of Oregon has so much homage been done a dead man as the late Senator Mitchell. As he lay in state at the city hall in Portland thousands viewed his remains and great was the multitude which attended his funeral. Business of all kinds was suspended for several hours on the day of his interment, the public schools were dismissed and everybody vied to show respect to the dead statesman.—Southern Oregonian.

Senator Mitchell is dead and his body has been laid away in its last resting place. Let the future generations be taught the great things the dead senator has done for the state of Oregon, and let us forget the cloud which covered the later years of his life and which probably hastened his end. To paraphrase Mark Antony: "Let the good he has done live after him; let the evil—if any—be interred with his body."—Medford Mail.

NEW UNITED STATES SENATOR

Governor Chamberlain's appointee, John McDermott Gearin, who succeeds the late John H. Mitchell as United States Senator, is the first Democrat from this state to fill this office in 29 years.

Mr. Gearin is a native son of Oregon, being born August 15, 1851 in the Willamette Valley near Willow Springs. He spent four years at St. Mary's college in San Francisco, and later attended Notre Dame University, Indiana, where he graduated in 1871. The following year he entered the law office of Mitchell & Dolph, of Portland. Senator Gearin is the fourth man that has gone from this firm to the United States Senate, the others being Mitchell, Dolph and Joseph Simon. Mr. Gearin is said to be one of the ablest lawyers in the state, being especially successful as a jury lawyer. His appointment will deprive Congressman Hermann of a very able counsel, as Mr. Gearin was to have been associated with Ex-Senator Joseph Simon in conducting the defense in the Hermann trial.

Senator Gearin will hold office until his successor is elected by the Legislature, which meets one year from January. This will give him a very short term, and his work will necessarily be very light as he will have no voice in appointments for his state.

Ashland Normal Notes.

The music department will give an entertainment in the Chapel Saturday night.

There seems to be much interest on the part of the boys over the mock trial that is to come off next Wednesday. The boys are putting forth every effort to make it as near as possible like the "real thing."

Mr. Shattuck, who represents the Royal Temperance Legion and is traveling in the interest of that society, visited the Normal Tuesday. Mr. Shattuck spoke in the Chapel in the morning to the entire student body. At noon he gave a short but interesting talk to the young men. He also spoke to the class in General Methods describing Cornell College of which he is a graduate.

There have been two basketball games the past week. Monday afternoon the seniors defeated the juniors with a score of 19 to 21. When time was called at the end of the second half the score was 19 to 19. They decided to play off the score and the seniors made the first basket. Wednesday the freshmen played the juniors with a score of 13 to 14 in favor of the juniors.

About ten o'clock Wednesday forenoon word was sent around that a rare treat was in store for the students and faculty, and a special meeting was immediately called at the Chapel. The three Berlin baby boys whose pictures were in the Oregonian a few days ago were there. The oldest, Master David, who is a pianist of merit and plays from selections taken from the world's greatest composers, furnished them with two of the best piano solos ever rendered at the school. The two younger brothers, Robert and Clarence, who are respectively four and two years old, displayed their remarkable memories by naming the presidents of the United States in their order, giving the date of their birth, date of their election, and term of office. They could also give the capitals of all the states in the union, spell words of five syllables and talk in French, German, Spanish, Italian and Portuguese.

Last Friday evening the senior class were entertained at the home of Miss Corbin. The house was very tastefully decorated with wild black-berry and mistletoe. A very pleasant evening was enjoyed by all.

The statement from the new owners of the Klamath Lake Railroad Company, that the company will not discontinue their main, passenger and freight service, but in all probability will extend the road on toward Klamath Falls, is very good news to the people of Klamath County. It is generally a very difficult matter to get a concern of the importance of the Weyerhaeuser Company, to make any premature statement as to their plans for the future, but sometimes their denial is equal to a promise. The emphatic denial that the new owners had any intention of discontinuing the service over the Klamath Lake road is very encouraging. The people of this county can safely figure on the extension and improvement of the Pokegama road in the early spring.
