Bonanza News

(From our regular correspondent) Bonanza is still in the swim and booming right along, slighing is fine and prospects for better. Mrs. Bertha Clotson was taken with pneumonia on Monday as a "New Year's Resolution" but we hope it is in a mild form and that she will soon be out again. Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Burk are at Bly visiting their friends there. The Misses Myrtle and Marie Hamaker and Daisy Goss went to Bly last Wednesday to spend the holidays among relatives and friends. They were accompanied by Messrs. Sykes and Mont Hamaker. Chas. Pattee had the misfortune to take a drink of hot coffee on last Friday and as he wears a plate in his mouth did not realize just how hot it was until he had swallowed the stuff. It scalded the throat so badly it was feared for a while that he would choke to death, but Dr. Johnson was summoned and pulled him through. Mr. Pattee is out on the street to-day but he says his throat is very sore and he is not able to take any solid food yet. He says he will let hot things alone after this. Our Church is still making good strides for the cause of good morals. Two more converts last Sunday night, Miss Winola Forbes and Mr. Erwin McCurdy, and three or more will come at the next opportunity. Our minister, Rev. Allen, is doing good work and we hope it will not be long before there will be a large number of our best young people unite with the Church, as this is the foundation for all good, and you cannot build up a society that is equal to the one built by the Church. Now that I am on this subject I want to say that the low standard of society in any place can be controlled by the young ladies, and they alone are the medium to lift the standard. If, for instance, the young ladies would all form a resolution and stick to it, that they would not accompany a young man (cannot say gentlemen, or else they would not conduct themselves in the manner they do) to a ball or party, or recognize them when they were under the influence of "Booze" they would soon have the young fellows at their finger tips and could do more toward the building up of good parties than all the talk of mothers to their sons put in one volume. It is worth the effort— young ladies, try it. On last Sunday evening after church about two dozen concluded to stay and hold an old fashioned watch meeting. The evening was spent in songs and fellowship until the clock was on the eve of striking the old year out, when the bell was tolled to represent the dying of 1905, and rang merrily at the coming of 1906 to welcome the glad New Year. After a short prayer by Rev. Allen we all wished each other a glad and happy New Year and departed to sleep the first hours of the new born year. Hugh Clotson, our genial postmaster, tells us that the last month has been the heaviest month in the post office business of our town, that has ever been recorded since the office was established. We wish to correct, or rather deny, a statement made in the Express about F. M. Harpold, or Harpale, as the paper published it, being ejected from the hall on Christmas night, as it is wholly untrue and in justice to Mr. Harpold we take the liberty of branding it as a falsehood. C. U. Agin.

Tule Lake Tidings

(From Our Regular Correspondent.) The long looked for Santa Claus has come and gone and we live on just the same. The most of the people here spent their Christmas at home, some eating goose, others turkey and chicken. In the evening many attended the dance at Merrill. Jack Johnson is confined to his room with an attack of rheumatism. Miss Maud Jones is suffering from neuritis. Michael Nalchanda has taken his blankets and quit the valley. H. K. Gay, at the age of 80, is still able to make his daily trips around the valley on horseback. There are thousands of swan on the lake. To hear them of an evening one would think a Methodist camp meeting was being held. Chas. Pickett is getting the lumber on the ground for his big new barn, which he expects to build soon. I. W. Burris is hauling lumber for his new house. His daughter, Miss Hazel Burris, now has a position with the telephone company as hello girl at Merrill. Bert Davis is making steady trips with six horses and two wagons hauling lumber from Slack's saw mill to Merrill. Bert Osburn had what came near being a serious accident while hunting on the lake Christmas day. There are pot holes among the tules which seem to be a kind of warm spring on which the ice never gets very thick. While crossing the ice he unknowingly tried to cross one of these places and broke through. There being no help in reach he was in the water several minutes. The water was too deep to get a footing and the ice so thin it would break and let him back. He finally got to solid ice and succeeded in getting out. He contracted such a cold that he had to get a substitute to carry the mail to Steel Swamp for him. Frank Brandon has moved the buildings off the homestead which he lost in the contest with Kirkpatrick.

Prospects for crops are better now than they have been. The snow is three and one-half inches deep and still snowing a little. The night of the 28th being the coldest we have had, the mercury reaching two degrees below zero. The lake is nearly frozen over now, there being only a small body of water near the center. News Peddler. Tule Lake, Dec. 30.

Lost—My purse near the Lakeside Inn on Tuesday afternoon, January 3. I will pay $5 for the return of same with contents to me. My name and initials were written on it with ink. JOHN YADEN.

CURIOUS PARIS INDUSTRIES

Case Man Made Living as a "Before-and-After-Taking" Power—Another Scheme.

A wretched-looking man, long and lean, was charged the other day before the Tribunal Correctionnel with being a vagabond, says the London Pall Mall Gazette. He was asked what his occupation was and replied: "I pose for obesity." The magistrate was mystified and the prisoner proceeded to explain. He had been employed by a chemist who sold "antifat" to pose for his picture of "before" and "after" treatment. For the first picture he wore a suit of gaiters and was then in fact like a balloon; in the second he resumed his normal bulk, and that did exceedingly well for the purpose of con- sideration. Unfortunately, it was not a trade that lasted forever, and here was the poor, face to face with the other poor—how to live on air when it has escaped. Paris is noted for its curious industries. There is, for instance, the over- professional witness. Your case gets into the paper; you are knocked down by a bicycle or run over by a cab. To your horse comes a steady individual, who tells you that he saw the accident and is prepared, for a consideration, to give evidence on your behalf in a court of law touching the responsibility of the cabman or the bicyclist. He has "recon- structed the scene," in his own imagination, and warmed by his eloquence and his graphic details, you begin to imagine yourself the most injured of mortals. Touched by his enthusiasm for your case, you give him something for his trouble, and arrange for his attendance at the case. But the altruism of your visitor has not carried him as far as that; he hates at the "something on account."

HAD TOO MANY LAWYERS.

Legal Fraternity Grew Too Numerous and King Henry VI Thinned Their Number.

The dowager empress of China threatens another drastic reform. She insists that the lawyers of her land shall—study law, reports London Black and White. We all know the boast of Peter the Great—that there was but one lawyer in the whole of Russia, and he was going to have that one executed. There was once a somewhat similar feeling in England, though as the statute in which it was expressed has been repealed, only lawyers now know anything about it. Henry VI. found that he had too many legal gentlemen in his dominions, especially in Norfolk and Suffolk. He drew a harrowing picture of the conditions as they had been and then were. Formerly, he declared, when there were but six or eight "attorneys" in those counties great tranquillity prevailed. But now the numbers had increased to fourscore, or more, "which come to every fair, market and other place where is any assembly of people, exhorting, procuring, moving and inciting the people to attempt untrue and foreign suits for small trespasses, little offenses and small sums of debt whereby priced many suits more of evil will and malice than of truth of the thing, to the manifold vexations and no small damage of the inhabitants." Therefore it was enacted that there should be henceforth only six common attorneys in Norfolk, and the like number in Suffolk, and two in the city of Norwich.

MOTHS FOND OF PRUNES.

Possible Substitute for Camphor Balls to Protect Winter Clothing.

"I have made a discovery, or, at least, I think it is a discovery," said the housewife, according to the New York Sun. "Miss like prunes. I have mentioned that fact to many persons since I found it was true, and they have scoffed at me, all but my grocer. He tells me that he discovered some time ago that moths are very fond of prunes. I have noticed for some time an occasional moth flying around my kitchen, and I wondered where they came from. I remembered a few days ago that I had placed a package of prunes on an upper shelf in the kitchen closet, and I went looking for it. Now, this was a pound package of prunes, and the package was sealed. I noticed several little holes near the top of the package, and as I cut the top open what was my surprise to find it full of moths! "If moths like prunes so much, I rather think that some day prunes may take the place of camphor balls when it comes time to pack away the winter clothing."

SHOCK BRINGS BACK VOICE

Physician Says That Electricity If Judiciously Used Often Restores Speech.

A young woman who had not been able to speak for five years has recovered her voice through electricity. One of the hospital surgeons who operated said: "We occasionally get patients who are unable to speak, not through any organic ailment, but simply because they are in a hysterical condition, and we often cure them by a strong electric shock. As a rule they yell out, and then they have no excuse for not being able to speak." We do not suggest that such patients have been shamming. They actually cannot speak, although there is nothing wrong with their voice. They are the kind of patients who sometimes go under quack treatment and make remarkable cures. There is a good deal of faith healing in this matter." Swedish doctors having found minute pieces of enamel from "granite" ware in cases of appendicitis, it is surmised that the common use of this ware may have something to do with the prevalence of appendicitis.

WOULD KILL INCURABLES.

French Professor Advocates Ending Lives of Seriously Afflicted Patients.

A French professor is advocating the establishment of deathrooms in hospitals, where patients affected with incurable diseases who have lost all desire to prolong their days may at their own request be sent painlessly out of the world, says the Newark News. It is extremely doubtful if such measures will ever be adopted in France or any other civilized country. Occasionally people are met with among ourselves who profess to believe that this kind of work is done in some hospitals, but they are quite wrong. It is the business of the physicians and all those connected with the care of the sick to prolong human life, not to shorten it, and under no circumstances whatever do they consider themselves justified in departing from this rule. To put people to death because of incurable disease would tend to diminish the sanctity of human life, and possibly open the door to the commission of many crimes.

Man's Nose Supported Him.

There was once a man who was deaf and dumb, and in consequence had difficulty in earning enough to support himself. As often occurs, those who are deprived of one sense have another in an unusual degree. This was the case with this man. He had a sense of smell so remarkable that he became an expert in detecting the presence of oil wells. His nose was purchased by a big company (naturally the man himself went along with his nose) and he managed to eke out an excellent living.—Washington Star.
