OUR COAST ARTILLERY.

Appalling Deficiency in Strength of Essential Branch of Army.

In his annual report to the war de partment Brig.-Gen. Fred Grant, commanding the department of the east, which includes the entire Atlantic coast from Maine to Florida, earnestly urges legislation for an increase of the strength and the pay of the coast artillery. The entire strength of the oast artillery now serving the fortifiations along the whole Atlantic coast is only 6,531 enlisted men. One relief for the guns already installed would equire about 15,000 enlisted men, says he Baltimore American. During the oint army and navy exercises around Baltimore it was found that all the oast defenses from Norfolk to Baltimore and Washington were so under manned that it was necessary to draw artillery troops from as far north as cause men would not remain in the coast artillery and recruits would not enter that arm of the service.

It is not difficult to understand why oen shun the coast artillery. The physical work is very hard, and because of the grease and oil used in the heavy machinery it is dirty and ruinous to the soldiers' clothes. Nor is it a disparagement to other enlisted men to ay that for the coast artillery a class of men of high intelligence is indispensable. The men in charge of the electric material of the power by which the heavy guns are handled, those who operate the rangefinders. who use the plotting-boards, the gunners, the rangekeepers and all others who form a part of the manning body of the coast guns require intelligence of the highest class. Unfortunately experience has shown that when the army has secured men of this class and has taught them the technical knowledge needed for their work, it has made trained electricians and expert machinists, to whom it offers only a soldier's pay. The inevitable result civil life at greatly increased pay, so healthy condition. It cures safely as well as certainly, because there is not a particle of mineral in it. along the Atlantic coast during the war with Spain cannot yet be entirely forgotten. The navy is always ready: buge appropriations for new ships and for the constant practice of old ships provide that the navy is prepared at a moment's notice to defend the seas. But the coast artillery should be no less efficient and prepared. death is left behind. Contagious Blood Poison is the black flag of the great and all the companies were found to army of disease. This vile disorder is known as the blackest and most hide- be below their authorized strength, beous of all human afflictions, overthrowing its victims and crushing out the life. It is no respecter of persons; no matter how pure the blood may be or how innocently the disease is contracted, when this awful virus enters the circulation the hideous, hateful and humiliating symptoms begin to appear, and the sufferer feels that his very presence is polluting and contaminating. Usually the first sign of the disease is a little sore or ulcer, but as the blood becomes more deeply poisoned the severer symptoms are manifested, the mouth and throat ulcerate, the glands in the groins swell, a red rash breaks out on the body, the hair and eyebrows come ont, and often the body is covered with copper-colored spots, pustular eruptions and sores. In its worst stages the disease affects the nerves, attacks the bones and sometimes causes tumors to form on the brain, producing insanity and death. Not only those who contract the poison suffer, but unless the virus is driven from the blood the awful taint is handed down to offspring, and they are its innocent victims. Blood Poison is indeed a "black flag." Mercury and Potash, so often used, never can cure the trouble. These minerals merely drive the symptoms away for awhile and shut the disease up in the system, and when they are left off it returns worse than before. This treatment not only fails to cure blood poison

Several years ago I had blood poison and my flesh was in an awful condition. Great sores would break out and nothing I put on them would do any good. My hair and eyebrows fellout and I was "a fright." My mouth was so sore I had to live on milk and water. I took Mercury for a long time and instead of getting better I continued to grow worse and my arms and hands became solid sores. My legs were drawn so I could not walk and I felt that my time was short here if I did not get some relief. I began to use your S. S. S. and it helped me from the start.
