Victims of the Electricity Habit Are Becoming Quite Common in Gotham.

New York.—"Of all the habits, the one that sticks closest to a fellow is the electricity habit," said a young doctor. "The drink habit and the cocaine habit are mere summer fancies compared with it. But there is one thing to be said in its favor; it is usually beneficial. The electricity habit is contracted just like any other habit. A few currents are administered during an illness, they strengthen and stimulate, and the first thing the patient knows he finds the tonic indispensable. Even after he gets well he craves the treatment."

"I know one young woman who makes a fair living by calling at the homes of electricity victims and dosing them with a few shocks from a galvanic battery. Most slaves to the habit have their own batteries, but they are afraid to apply the treatment to themselves. That is practically a groundless fear, for there isn't one chance in a thousand of a person giving himself an overdose. Still, they prefer an experienced hand to manage the current."

"Not all the electricity fiends are invalids, by any means. Many of them are now as well as they ever were, yet they have become so addicted to the habit that they require the weekly, semi-weekly or possibly daily electric thrills to tone them up."

AMERICAN OUTBID THE KING

Secured Rembrandt Picture Which English Monarch Very Much Wanted.

Paris.—Theodore Davis possesses in Rembrandt's "Sybil" one of the master's greatest works and the czar owns none exceeding it. It was the property of the grand duke of Louchtemberg, the czar's first cousin, and remained in the duke's gallery many years. M. Laurie, a Paris dealer, offered it to King Edward, who wanted it badly, but Edward hesitated too long over the price. The king admired it so much that he requested M. Laurie to let him see it after it was sold to Davis. It was shipped to Buckingham palace, where it remained until the day before it was sent to America.

Mr. Davis paid $35,000 for the picture. The work is to be shown in public by Mr. Davis. "Sybil" is the figure of a young Jewess, wearing a forehead chain with jewels as pendants. She is turning the leaves of a book resting on her knees. The dark and light on her face is refracted by the jewels. Rembrandt's technique was never better accomplished. It is a masterpiece of individuality.

WILL ALLOW NO TEARS.

License Clerk Insists Upon Smiles When Girls Apply for Wedding Permits.

Pittsburg, Pa.—"Smile!" Marriage License Clerk Hegner cried out the other day as, with pen suspended in the air, he eyed Nasta John, a Syrian girl, who had appeared, in tears, with Isaac Ezer, of Rochester, for a license. And the little bride to be had to smile before the license clerk would issue the license.

The interpreter said that the girl meant nothing by tears; that it was the custom in her country, etc., for the prospective bride to cry.

"Custom be dashed!" said Hegner, angrily. "This is not Syria. She must smile when she gets a license here."

HOW WILL YOU HAVE EGGS

Fried, Broiled, Poached, or "Canned" Under a New Method Which Converts "Spotted" Into Good Eggs.

St. Louis.—One of the most unique concerns which was ever incorporated to do business in St. Louis is a company to can eggs. The Southern Egg Preserving company has opened a factory here and has begun the operation of converting "spotted eggs" into good ones. The enterprise buys up the broken and spotted eggs from the commission houses. Men divide the good from the bad portions and pour the part to be saved into a huge churn.

When it is full a girl churns it until it reaches the proper consistency for the egg preserving fluid. Again the churn is revolved for half an hour. When the eggs reach the proper point they are poured off into cans and stored away ready for use. The house claims to have orders from bakeries and other concerns in Chicago, Cincinnati, and other large eastern cities.

SUNDRY SQUIDS.

"Say, father, what is a 'nobody'?" "A nobody, my son, is a prominent woman's husband."

"Say, pa," queried little Johnny Bumpnick, "what's a peace congress?" "It's a lot of men who make war against war," answered the old gentleman.

"Money makes the mare go," said the old-fashioned man. "Not if it's my husband's money that has been bet on her," answered young Mrs. Torkins, positively.

"They seem to be very proud of their family tree," "Yes, but the only trouble with it is that it grew from a small soap manufacturing plant back in the early 30's."

"Don't be frightened, dear. So long as you hear the thunder you may know you are safe from the lightning." "But that's no comfort. If the lightning strikes me I won't hear the thunder!"

"I just peeped into the parlor as I passed," said Mr. Phamley, "and I saw quite a freak of nature." "Why, Bertha is in there with her young man." "Yes, I saw two heads on one pair of shoulders."
