

KLAMATH REPUBLICAN

E. J. MURRAY, Editor.

LEADING NEWSPAPER OF INTERIOR OREGON.
TWO DOLLARS THE YEAR IN ADVANCE.

Klamath Falls, Ore., Thursday, June 21 1906.

Klamath Falls is to have a daily paper—so we are told, with F. P. Cronmiller as the guiding spirit. We extend the glad hand to Brother Cronmiller, but believe he is somewhat premature.

If the Chamber of Commerce does not want the Goose Lake Forest Reserve it should immediately forward a vigorous protest to Senator Fulton. He has succeeded in having this thing held up in order to give the commercial bodies of the various communities affected an opportunity to make their protest.

A law that should be passed by the next legislature is one making it a misdemeanor, punishable by fine and imprisonment, for anyone to circulate, or cause to be circulated, false or misleading information or stories about the existence of contagious diseases in any community. The enactment and enforcement of such a law would either place where they belong a lot of vermin-eating fools, or cause them to hibernate.

The sextette of boosters who did things right in Portland are men of whom Klamath Falls feels proud. How much better it looks to say a good word for your home town, than it is to knock it. No one has any use for the knockers. He is like a pestilence—avoided. Boys, you did it right, and your efforts have already borne fruit. We have seen a number of letters of inquiry, produced by your energy, and no doubt there will be others. We only hope that every man who goes to Portland, or anywhere else will do half as well.

If the people of Oklahoma, Indian Territory, Arizona and New Mexico accept the terms of the statehood bill passed by congress last week, it will remove the last of the territories within the boundaries of the U. S. proper. It is to be hoped, however, that the people of Arizona will vote it down, and thus be instrumental in preventing the admission of the Mexican element of these two territories. As well make full-fledged citizens of a lot of goats as most of the Mexicans of these territories, who are even more ignorant and un-American than the aborigines of the Philippines.

Er long there will be forty-six, and possibly forty-seven stars on the blue field of the American flag. The new star will be Oklahoma, the bill for which was signed by the President on the 16th. At the same time he also signed the bill for the admission of Arizona and New Mexico as one state, provided a majority of the people in each of the territories vote in favor of it. The people of New Mexico are indebted to W. H. Andrews, the delegate from that territory, for the passage of this bill. It was through him that the late Senator Quay became interested in its passage, and it was his influence that later brought to its support the backing of powerful interests that resulted in its passage. He is a candidate for United States Senator, and if the people of these territories accept the terms of this bill, he will be elected. But his success will be attended by a scandal that will result in its being carried before the Senate for investigation.

Roosevelt has again brought the trusts to their knees, this time it being the Beef Trust that stands in the limelight. One would hardly believe that a single individual could be found in the lower house of congress who would oppose the proper inspection of canned meats, especially when it was known that diseased, decomposed and dirty meats were being put up in cans for consumption by the public. And yet it required the most vigorous action ever exercised by a president to bring the members to his way of thinking. It would be a good thing for the country if these trust-controlled congressmen could be compelled to live on the filthy output of the packing houses, for it would result in permanently removing them from public life. The American people may well feel safe while a man of Roosevelt's calibre is in the White House. If the republican party has to go before the people with someone else as its candidate in 1908, it would not be surprising to see it meet defeat.

HENRY E. ANKENY

Lies Dangerously Ill at His Home in Eugene.

Henry E. Ankeny, who for nearly half a century has been a prominent figure in the business life of the Pacific Northwest, is seriously ill at his home in Eugene. During the past few days his friends and business associates in this city have received alarming reports from his family, and his life is despaired of. His illness is of such a character that only a fatal termination can be looked for, and his death at any time would not be unexpected.

Mr. Ankeny is one of the best known of the early pioneers of Oregon, and is a son of the late Captain A. P. Ankeny, who was one of the founders of Portland and during many years a prominent factor in the up-building of the city and state. Levi Ankeny of Walla Walla, United States Senator from Washington is the Eugene man's step-brother, and was for a time associated with him in mercantile pursuits in this city.

Henry E. Ankeny is a pioneer of the pioneers, and his adventurous career is typical of the sturdy frontiersmen who blazed the way for civilization in the Oregon territory. He was born in Virginia in 1844 and crossed the plains with his father and step-brother in 1850, settling in Yamhill county. In the early 60s he came to this city and began his long and successful business career by entering the employ of the Wells-Fargo Express Company. At the same time he became engaged in merchandising with his father and brother.

In 1866, in which year he was married to Miss Cordelia Striker, of Vancouver, Wash., the young merchant, with the restless business energy which has been characteristic of him through life, sought new and larger fields for his enterprise in the new gold fields of Idaho, removing to Lewiston, where he established an express route on the Upper Snake River, operated packtrains between that town and the new "diggings" and engaged in mining on his own account. A little later he extended his operations to the Fraser River gold mines in British Columbia, which were then the Mecca for argonauts from all over the world.

In the early 70s Mr. Ankeny returned to Oregon and securing a large farm near Jefferson settled down to agricultural pursuits and stockraising. Later he again tried his fortune at gold-seeking and operated extensively in the placer fields near Galice Creek, in Josephine county.

In 1880 Mr. Ankeny removed his family to Southern Oregon and made his home in Jackson county, where, with his brother-in-law, Vin Cooke, he operated the famous Sterling mine, regarded as the best property in that district until it was sold, a year ago.

Mr. Ankeny is one of the successful business men of Oregon, and has large interests in various parts of the state. Among these is a big alfalfa farm and stock ranch in Klamath county, with valuable irrigation ditches and water rights. He is president of the Mollford National Bank and vice-president of the Chambers-Pristow Banking Company, of Eugene. The latter city has been his family home since 1896.

Mr. Ankeny's family consists of a wife and six children—Frank E. Ankeny, of Klamath Falls; Mrs. John S. Orth and Mrs. John Kramp, of Jacksonville; Roscoe Central, of Klamath Falls; Alfred H. Miller, of Medford, and Miss Gladys Ankeny, of Eugene.

He is a member of Eugene Lodge, No. 11, A. F. and A. M.; Eugene Lodge Knights Templar, and Portland Scottish Rite and Mystic Shrine.

Dropsy, from which he has for some time been a sufferer, is the disease which now threatens Mr. Ankeny's life.

COLD BLOOD-ED MURDER

Half Breed girl Murders Infant in Siskiyou County.

One of the most cold blooded and revolting murders in the history of Siskiyou County, California, was committed near Lower Klamath lake last Sunday morning. The murder was the act of an enraged half-breed Indian, Dora Chipp, and the victim the 18 months old daughter of Mrs. William Beal.

Mrs. Beal was driving along the road, when she was confronted by the Indian girl, who demanded the horse Mrs. Beal was driving. It seems Mrs. Beal had traded for the animal with the girl and the latter believing she had made a bad bargain demanded the return of the horse. This Mrs. Beal refused to do, and when the girl started to remove the horse, she attempted to prevent her. This so enraged the Indian that she fired at Mrs. Beal, the bullet taking effect in the jaw. Stunned by the shock and suffering intense pain, Mrs. Beal started for assistance, and when she returned she found her infant daughter dead in the buggy, having been shot twice in the head.

Immediately after the shooting the girl fled towards the Klamath reservation. The authorities notified Sheriff Obenshain and he instructed the officers throughout this county to look out for the murderer. She was captured in Bonanza Tuesday morning and brought to this city, where she was turned over to Charles Howard, Sheriff of Siskiyou county, who will take her to Yreka for trial.

Mrs. Beal is resting easily and the prospects for her recovery are very bright.

Dora Chipp is well known in this city, having been employed for some time as a servant in the Edmund house, now known as the American hotel.
