Against Her Better Judgment.
"Ain't you rather young to be left in charge of a drug store?"

"Perhaps so, ma'am; what can I do for you?"

"Don't your employers know it's dangerous to leave a more like you in charge of such a place?"

"I am competent to serve you, madam, if you will make known your wants."

"Don't they know you might poison some one?"

"There is no danger of that, madam; what can I do for you?"

"I think I better go to the store down the street."

"I can serve you just as well as they can, and as cheaply."

"Well, you can give me a 2-cent stamp, but it don't look right."—Houston Post.

QUEER STORIES

One of the largest works of man's hands in the artificial lake, or reservoir, in India, at Rajputana. This reservoir, said to be the largest in the world, known as the great tank of Dhebar, and used for irrigating purposes, covers an area of twenty-one square miles.

A novel excuse for stealing was given in Bucharest the other day. A woman was charged with the larceny of twelve cases of silver. Said the judge: "Come, tell us the truth." Said the woman: "The truth, my good judge, is that I have not been able to resist the temptation. Consider, your Honor—they all love my initials."

Huge stone slabs suitable for sidewalk construction are seldom encountered in France, and asphalt walks are equally rare. The popular material is a cement block, which is cheap, durable and satisfactory. These blocks are made in a variety of shapes and colors, and in their more expensive forms are much used in interior work.

Professor Shipley, in a lecture at the Working Men's College, St. Pancras, dealt with the relation of flies to disease. In tropical lands the mosquito and tsetse fly were responsible for malaria and yellow fever, while at home he had no doubt the common house fly, by dropping into milk and food, caused much of the diarrhoea suffered by children in summer, and thereby increased the infantile mortality.

The English papers tell a story of a simple minded curate who was invited to London to spend a week at a great house. The curate, ignorant of society, asked advice of a man of the world, who told him how he should conduct himself, and wound up with the words: "I think, too, you had better take a servant with you." "I will," said the curate, and in due time the poor fellow arrived at the residence of his host with some modest luggage and a housemaid.

There has been almost a revolution in Ellenhansen, a little village near Göttingen, Germany, over an order forbidding any young, unmarried man to escort a young woman on the streets after dark. This order was the work of the deputy town clerk, who is not a ladies' man, and had been made the butt for ill-natured jokes. He thought he saw an opportunity for revenge when the order of power came temporarily into his hands. But his action has cost him his place.

The London milkmen have a cow whose function corresponds to the "Bittrekaute," prison editor of the German press. When a milkman is arrested for selling below legal grade he is entitled to summon his cow to his defense and have her milked before the judge, and so prove that the poor milk was the cow's fault. Many milkmen have evaded fines in this way of late, and recently it was discovered that there was one cow which was famous for her bad milk that could be hired for court purposes.

MODERN DEVIL-WORSHIP.

Grotesque and Horrible Practices Still Observed in Europe.
Mack Thompson in Everybody's makes the following remarkable revelations:

"The dark forces which science recognizes but does not define exercise marvelous attraction on minds of a certain order. In scores of temples they are worshipped under different names. I know a little temple in Bruges where the followers of Lucifer gather, and not far from the Pantheon in Paris there is an altar to Pandemonium. This may seem grotesque; perhaps it is, but it is formidable."

"It need hardly be said that the rites whereby Lucifer is worshipped are held in much mystery. A couple of years ago I visited one of the 'chapels.' It was in the Rue Rochechouart. The black mass, which I have no desire to describe, was celebrated. It was Friday at 3 o'clock. Over the altar was a winged figure of Lucifer, and flames; he trampled under foot a crucifix—symbol of the church. A few days ago I found the chapel closed. Only after patient research did I find the new abode of the Satanists. Their chapel now is in a great new apartment house on No. 22 Rue du Rouleau, within the shadow of the Cathedral of the Sacred Heart on Montmartre. As of old, Satan is worshipped; every Friday the Luciferians gather. I could name many of them—men not unknown in the learned professions. Some of them have influence enough to secure, now and then, a right of midnight entry to the catacombs; there amid skulls and bones, with orgies I do not care to describe, they have worshipped the spirit of evil—calling upon Baphomet, upon Lucifer and Beelzebub and Ashtroth and Moloch, with cries and wailing hysteria. This attempt to re-establish the worship of the fallen archangel is, I think, the most remarkable manifestation of modern occultism."

"When I was serving my time as 'house' on the surgical side at Dunnington," said an active physician, "the county sent a man over to us to have a badly cracked skull patched up. The patient's card was a blank except for the one detail of the injury. Just what nationality the man might be none of us could imagine. When we had lifted the piece of bone that was pressing on the brain he made an address ten minutes long, and not one word could anybody comprehend. During his recovery he must have been seen by 100 visitors first and last, and no one could understand a word he said. One day we had an army surgeon visiting us who was going to show us an operation that was his particular stunt. After the operation we showed him through the wards. As soon as he came near our convalescent mystery the patient began his customary address. You can imagine our surprise when the Colonel began to jabber back. It then was learned that our patient was an Apache, the jettison of some Wild West or medicine show."

INJURY TO WATCH FROM FALL.

Moisture Bad for Timepieces—Breaking of a Spring.
"Do many persons allow their watches to fall?" recently asked a customer of a well-known jeweler.

"Half of those brought in for repair have suffered in that way," was the reply. "It is the most frequent accident. Accidents to men, on account of their having the watch attached to a fob. The number of watches injured by falls increases when this fashion comes in, and it declines when the mode of attaching watches is in vogue. But there are many other ways of allowing watches to fall."

"Who handle their watches most carefully, men or women?"

"I cannot say, but women are more accustomed to attach their watches to their clothing or to a chain worn around the neck, so that they are in less danger of falling."

"How is it with children?"

"Girls are more careful than boys, and their watches fall less frequently. Some boys will allow a watch to fall three or four times a day; others seem to play with it as with a football."

"Does a fall always harm a watch?"

"Most assuredly, and a little fall may be as injurious as a great one. Moisture is very bad for a watch; at times it penetrates where it could scarcely be expected. More than once a careless father, who has allowed his child to play with his watch, finds that it begins to rust. The brand of the child has affected it, or perhaps it has been taken into the mouth. A frequent cause for repair is the breaking of the spring, which will happen to the most careful person."—Horological Review.

HIS PROUDEST MOMENT.

On the day that Washburn's novel was listed among the "six best sellers" half a dozen of his old college chums gathered in his room to congratulate him.

"Well, old man," said one of them, "I suppose this is the proudest day in all your young life."

"Not quite," said Washburn, musingly. "There was one prouder."

"When was that? Tell us about it."

"Well, boys, said Washburn, 'that first summer we were out of college I fished round for something to do for a long time before I found it. I was on my uppers, with only a quarter of a dollar left; but I had kept my football appetite, and I was still hard as nails when I saw a sign, 'coal-heaver wanted.'"

"That looked good to me, and I applied. The boss looked me over, and said I'd do, so I went to work, forty dollars a month, twelve hours a day, shoveling coal out of cars into wagons. The yard was five miles from my house, and I walked down every morning and back every night."

"My back used to ache and my head get dizzy with that endless up and down, up and down with the shovel, over the side of the car, but I stuck to the job one whole month, during which time—and for three weeks after—my back never stopped aching nor did the soreness go out of my shoulders. But I stuck to it. Then I got a letter, offering me a berth as a reporter on a local paper to which I had applied."

"I drew my pay and left. A week later I happened round that way, and looked up the boss to say 'howdy.'"

"Washburn," he said, 'I'll give you forty-five dollars a month to come back to the job.'"

"What's wrong? I asked."

"Well, I've had three different fellows in the car this week, every one husky working men, and every one has stuck to the second day because he said the work was too hard. Say, I'll give you fifty to come back."

"I didn't go back. My shoulders were still aching. But that moment, when I found I had really held my own successfully against three other chaps on plain old muscle-taxing work, was the proudest of my life."

Bridge Has Longest Span.

There is now under construction across the St. Lawrence at Quebec a cantilever bridge which when completed will contain the longest span of any bridge yet erected, not even excluding the great cantilevers of the Forth bridge in Scotland.

The structure is of the cantilever type, and consists of two approach spans of 210 feet each, two shore arches, each 500 feet in length, and a great central span, 1,800 feet in length. The total length of the bridge is 4,200 feet, and although in extreme dimensions it does not compare with the Forth of Forth bridge, which is about one mile in total length, it has the distinction of having the longest span in the world by ninety feet, the two cantilevers of the Forth bridge being each 1,710 feet in length.

The total width of the floor is eighty feet, and provision is made for a double-track railway, two roadways for vehicles and two sidewalks. In a cantilever of this magnitude the individual members are necessarily of huge proportions, the main posts, for instance, being 825 feet in length, and each weighing 750 tons.

How the Kafir Smokes.

"The Kafir smokes on his stomach," said a tobaccoist, "using the earth for a pipe. This benighted savage, when the tobacco hunger seizes him, selects a piece of clay soil about a foot square, and puts a curved twig there, so that both ends stick out. Then he builds a fire over the place, and when the fire has sufficiently hardened the clay, he draws out the twig, and a channel, a kind of pipe stem, is left. One end of the channel he hollows into a bowl. The other end is his mouth place. He puts his tobacco in the bowl, drops a live coal on top, and, lo! and behold, the Kafir smokes away vigorously, and very black and strong are the fumes that enter his large mouth. He will not use an ordinary pipe. He likes his own way of smoking best. He is, I suppose, the only smoker whose pipe is the earth."

Underground Telegraphic Lines.
There is now underground telegraphic communication between London and Scotland. Germany's underground system dates from 1870. France followed suit in 1879, as the result of a great storm that isolated Paris in 1875. Up to date her system has cost $30,000,000, but is believed to have more than paid for itself. Lines constructed in 1880 are still in excellent condition.

A WHOLESOME CENSORSHIP.

When Miss Bangs visited the neighboring city and brought back an attractive young woman teacher who was, to say the least, very hard of bearing, there was much wonder in Miss Bangs' select school for girls. But as there was no denying that Miss Newcomb was delightful in spite of her deafness, and
