DINNER ON A SMOKE STACK

Guests Will Be 250 Feet in the Air on a Surface Eight Feet from Edge to Edge.

Hamilton, O.—A dinner served 200 feet in the air and where a four-foot stick can reach to the edge of the dining hall is looked forward to by residents of Hamilton. The table is to be spread on the top of the smoke-stack of a brewing company's power plant, which is nearing completion, and the dinner is being arranged to celebrate the completed work.

Not a drop of spirituous or malt liquor will be set out at this feast, for no guest will be hardy enough to risk the hazard of a muddled brain or a dizzy head.

The guests will be taken to the banquet board by means of an improvised elevator run up through the center of the stack. On this same lift the viands will be taken to the top. The table will be but eight feet in diameter, and the guests will necessarily be few. As a precautionary measure to prevent those in attendance from being affected by the sway which tall structures of this kind have in the event of a wind, the dinner will be given on a calm day, no matter how many postponements may be necessary.

Figures are given which show that the variation at the top of the stack during an ordinary breeze is something over a foot, and this movement would be fatal to those unaccustomed to such altitudes in a breeze.

The chimney is built on a solid masonry foundation, which extends 15 feet into the ground, and is 30 feet square. The lower diameter of the stack is ten feet and seven inches inside, and it gradually tapers to eight feet at the top. The wall is 18 inches thick at the bottom and narrows as it goes up. The weight of the mass will be 1,000 tons, as nearly as can be estimated.

POLICEMAN GAINS RICHES.

Speculative "Cop" of Brooklyn Starts with Capital of $5 and Is Now Worth $150,000.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Erastus G. Wolcott, of this borough, is a policeman attached to the Oak street precinct, Manhattan. He is 27 years of age. He has been in the city only since 1895. Yet in real estate deals he has been able to acquire property in Brooklyn worth nearly $150,000, and which is bringing him an annual rental of $15,000.

Before Wolcott came to New York city he was employed in the Birmingham state hospital, and he came here to go on the police force when Theodore Roosevelt was head of the police board. Wolcott was formerly a farmer, but in his real estate speculation in Brooklyn he has developed the shrewdness of a man who had been in that business all his life. Starting on a capital of five dollars, he has built up his real estate holdings until his investments now, so he told an Eagle reporter the other day, stand to bring him in a profit over and above all expenses of over $5,000 a year.

Few men have been as successful in real estate deals as this modest upstate countryman, who is holding down a beat in one of the toughest police precincts in the city. Whether it was shrewdness or just plain luck that made Wolcott's fortune in real estate is hard to say. He does not talk like a man well up on real estate. He appears to know more about the police business, but he has shown such good judgment in his purchases and sales that it cannot be said that he owes what he has got merely to good luck.

MUST NOT SHOOT MAIL BOX

Texas Man Who Adopts That Form of Amusement Being Prosecuted by Uncle Sam.

Fort Worth, Tex.—Shooting into a mail box is not a sport approved by the United States government, as Jim Wilson, of Comanche county, has just learned.

Information reached Deputy United States Marshal Thomas, charging that Wilson had adopted such form of amusement recently. After an investigation, Marshal Thomas made complaint, charging that Wilson did "willfully and maliciously shoot into and injure a receptacle established by the postmaster general for the safe deposit and delivery of United States mail matter."

A warrant was issued, Wilson arrested, and the scene of action transferred to this city, where Wilson was given a hearing before United States Commissioner Dodge, and released on $300 bonds for his appearance at the next term of court.

The case is a unique one in the records of this district, although the offense is specifically provided against in the federal statutes.
