

LONG WALK IN OFFICE.

Average Business Man Covers Vast Territory in a Year. "If I had a cent for every mile I walk during office hours every day I'd soon be able to retire," is a remark frequently heard from men and women who are kept on their feet while at business.

A downtown office man has just finished an experiment of this nature. He carried a pedometer six weeks, registering its total each night. At the end of that time it was found that the distance traveled, though varying greatly from day to day, came to a fairly even average at the end of each week.

How many miles do you suppose he walked on the day of his highest record? Twenty? Thirty? Fifty? No, only nine miles. The lowest record came the very next day and was a mile and a half. But the average for each week was thirty-three and one-third miles, or an average of six and a half miles for each working day. The six weeks showed totals as follows: 204, 277, 27, 34, 32 1/2, 30, or an aggregate of 233 miles and a half mile over. At the end of six weeks, therefore, he would have collected $2 at a cent a mile.

In the course of a year this office traveling represents an impressive walking tour, with its total of 1,733 miles. If made as a continuous trip across country it would take him from New York to Bismarck, N. D., or to Galveston, Tex.—Brooklyn Eagle.
