

Fastling Spiders.
An interesting instance of the much discussed ability of spiders to exist for lengthy periods without food has been noted by J. H. Fabre, the eminent naturalist, who while studying the habits of the spider known as Lycosa narbonensis observed that this species carries its little ones upon its back during several months and that during this time the young spiders consume absolutely no food. He concluded from this observation that it is the solar heat and light that for them directly take the place of nourishment. In other words "The motor heat in these young animals instead of being released from the food might be utilized directly as the sun, source of all life, radiates it."—London Sphere.

One Eyed Giants.
Sir John Mandeville saw all sorts of queer things and wrote about them in his celebrated book of travels. It was in 1536 that the voracious John visited a certain group of isles (yles he called them) which was inhabited by a race of one eyed giants. Of them he says "In one of these yles ben folk of grait stature, as gigantes, and they are hieous for to loke upon. An thei han but on eye, and that is in ye middle of ye front." He also tells of another one of these "yles" inhabited by a race of one legged dwarfs, each having three eyes.

Nothing but Fruit.
"I say, I'd give anything to be as strong and healthy as you are," remarked the lazy man. "What do you live on?"
"Nothing but fruit," answered the other.
"What kind of fruit?"
"The fruit of industry," was the brief but significant reply.

Read what Dr. G. F. Hanson of San Francisco says of this water:

"A careful examination of the water convinces me that it is unsurpassed in the nature of its mineral content, and should prove of the greatest possible utility in the treatment of congested conditions and for the general flushing of the tissues. Dyspepsia, sluggish liver, habitual constipation, so-called biliousness and bilious headaches, indefinite rheumatic pains due to the accumulation of uric acid or retention of other waste products in the system, faulty elimination by the kidneys, and a long train of ailments dependent upon above states of bodily ill-health are benefited by the free drinking of and bathing in such waters."
