

A CORNER BENCH.

Attractive Seat, Easily Made at Home at Little Cost.

A very pretty corner seat is shown in the illustration. This was made by a young bride of limited means. The wooden seat she painted white to match the rest of the woodwork in the room. She then fastened green denim behind the seat and finished it off at the top by nailing up a piece of white picture molding. She made the cushion of cheap hair and covered it with green denim. On the picture molding she arranged little cups and saucers, which give a pretty little touch of color. She made a few cushions for the seat from remnants she picked up in the stores for a few cents. So she is now the proud possessor of a delightful corner seat which, owing to her capability, cost almost nothing.—Philadelphia North American.

How a Woman May Succeed.

Sitting with folded hands, resigned to a life of railing at fate, is a form of death. Who does not know women who believe that there is nothing for them but keeping on the gray routine of days, with never a hint of grace or glory? You visit them and find them lacking in any charm of dress or manner. They repine about bad health or hard luck, yet all around them you see the reason for that bad health or what they call bad luck. The dust lies thick upon their books and pictures. Their hair is untidy. They lack even the desire for cleanliness. Nothing ever comes to this mood. It repels and drives away the forces that aid us up to the heights, says Woman's Life. We may long for a great many things that we feel are beyond reach, but if we put our hand to the nearest task that confronts us the faroff thing comes nearer.

MANAGING A MAN.

Good Advice About Nagging, Even Though It Be Hard to Follow.

The best time not to nag a man is when he's down—when he is suffering from the consequences of his own fault. Let him alone then if you never do again. Do not be afraid that he is not aware of his sins. He probably is. He probably has not an excuse in his own mind for his conduct, but if you begin to nag him all his human nature will rise in rebellion against the implied "I am better than thou," and he will justify himself, even though it be silently.

On the contrary, help him when he is down, not with ostentatious virtues, but by some sensible, practical aid in getting out of the trouble he has brought on himself. Don't act holy yourself, but "lend a hand."

Then when the trouble is all over don't rub it into him. More than likely he will confess to having been a beast. Don't take advantage of his humility. Just know that all human nature is the same and pin your faith to the good, not the evil.

Perhaps you are suffering from his fault. Perhaps the thought of your injuries is too strong to be borne. Then don't think about them. Turn your back resolutely on them and know that no one but yourself can injure you.

Your attempt to coerce a man and to drive him down some road of your making will surely wreck the cart. No individual has a right to attempt the control of another. Strew your own road with flowers of kindness and courage and the weary traveler will wish to walk therein with you.—Philadelphia Press.

A DOG IN THE HOUSE.

Keep the Children From the Animal if It Is Sick.

It makes you feel very mean to tear a fluffy bit of dog from the child or woman who is attached to it, writes Margaret Hubbard Ayer in the New York World, but in most cases too much dog petting is injurious for grownups, and particularly so for children. Families who live in the country have possibilities of avoiding the evil, for the dogs sleep in barns or outhouses. But for city dwellers a dog is liable to bring all kinds of disease germs into the house, and children are especially open to infection.

Setting aside the most terrible mauling of the dog, rabies, there are hundreds of other diseases which the pet animal can communicate to the human being. No one can deny a child the pleasure of having a pet, but the dog can and should be trained never to lick even the hand of a person about it. At the first sign of sickness on the part of a house dog the animal should be sequestered and the veterinary called in. Children should never be allowed to touch or even to go near a sick dog.

The dog should never sleep on the bed of a child or grown person, particularly not of a nervous child. No pet should sleep in the room of a person who is easily devitalized, as the animal takes away some of the air and some of the vitality which belongs to the

PIGS AS FASTERS.

The Wonderful Ability of Swine to Live Without Food.

Very few people have any idea of how long swine can live without food, although much has been said about the quantity they can consume. But, believe me, piggle is a record breaker when it comes to living without anything at all to eat.

The incident that I am about to relate occurred in Michigan and very well illustrates what I have above stated.

A farmer who had driven a large number of hogs into a settlement to sell after reaching his destination missed a fine black sow. Search was made in every conceivable place without discovering anything of the missing porker.

Weeks passed by, and the farmer had given up all hope of ever recovering his lost or stolen property when to his surprise it was found in the cellar of an old abandoned house.

As the house was situated at the edge of the road over which he had driven the hogs, it is supposed that she fell through the rotten flooring upon which she had stopped at some moment when the farmer's eyes had wandered in another direction.

When brought up she was a pitiable sight. The skin hung in folds upon her poor, unpadding bones.

Food was given her in small quantities at first, and it was not long before she entirely recovered from her long fast.

On referring to the books recording the sale of the rest of the stock it was learned that three months lacking five days had elapsed, showing that she had sustained life without nourishment for as long a period as the accredited hibernating animals.—New York Herald.

A CURIOSITY OF LUNACY.

Periodicity of Mania by Which the Patient Lives Three Lives.

There is a special form of mental disease, first described in France, whose definite character is given to it by its periodicity, and hence it is called folie-circulaire. In it there are three sections of the mental circle that the patient moves in—viz. elevation, depression and sanity—and in this round he spends his life, passing out of one into the other, for it is, when fully established, a very incurable disease.

The patient takes an attack of mania, during which he is joyous, restless, troublesome, extravagant and often vicious. He eats voraciously, sleeps little and never seems to tire. His temperature is a degree or so above the normal, his eye is bright and glistening, he is enamored of the other sex, he shows diminished self control and no common sense.

This lasts for a few weeks, or a few months more commonly, and then he passes sometimes gradually and sometimes rather suddenly into a condition of depression, during which he is sluggish, dull, looking differently, dressing differently, eating differently, fearful, unquiet and sedentary in habits.

This state will last a few weeks or months, and the patient will brighten up into what seems recovery and is to all intents and purposes in his normal state. This again lasts for a few weeks or months, and he gradually gets morbidly elevated. You find he is passing through every minute mental phase and habit he did at first. Depression follows as before, and then sanity, and this round of three states of feeling, of intellect, of volition and of nutrition, goes on, circle after circle, till the patient dies. He lives three lives.—Hospital.

Looking Down His Own Throat.

One of the quaintest reasons put forward for the origin of squinting was that given by a parent to Harold Grimdale, who read a paper before the Childhood society on the detection of imperfect condition of eyesight. A boy had swallowed a large sugar almond, and it was owing to his attempts to locate its position in his throat that the squint had developed. If taken in time squint was curable, but too often parents neglected the symptoms and only scolded their children for a bad habit. Short sight was entirely a disease of civilization, being absent in savage races.—London Mail.

Candy Capacity of a Girl.

"Yes, little girl," said the kind old man, "I have an immense candy store, and I am going to give you all the candy you can eat."
"Oh, goody!" cried the little girl, dancing about with happiness.
"Now," continued the kind old man, "how much candy can you eat?"
"How much candy have you got?"—Judge.

A Literary Crime.

Lord Crawford of England, president of the Royal Astronomical society, has a fine general library, which would have been much larger and grander but for the fact that one of his ancestors, the premier earl of Scotland, disposed of thousands of valuable volumes to cheese men, who used their leaves as wrapping paper.

A Stumbling Block.

Browne—So you think the Bible is contradictory in spots? Henpeck—Er—yes, I do. Browne—You surprise me. Where, for instance? Henpeck—Well, I can't reconcile the statement that Solomon was the wisest man with the further fact that he had so many wives.—Philadelphia Press.

He is a wise man that can avoid evil; he is a patient man that can endure it; but he is a valiant man that can conquer it.—Quarles.

No Additions to Midland

For the assurance of purchasers of lots in the town of Midland, as well as to furnish information to people interested in lands in or near to Midland, which purchasers or owners of land might be affected by the reports to effect that several additions would be made to Midland, we take this method of stating that there will be no additions to Midland for some years. We can give this assurance, for the reason that we own land on all sides of the town site, all of which will be kept vacant, except the vacant land on the south and the southeast of the town site, which has been set aside for the use of stock yards, sheds and loading pens.—MIDLAND TOWN COMPANY.

Chetko Copper

Chetko Copper Co. Is now offering its first allotment of Treasury Stock at 30 cents a share.

Chetko Copper Co. Was incorporated in August, 1905, under the laws of the State of Oregon, with a capital stock of $1,000,000, par value of shares $1 each. One-third of the issue is treasury stock.

Chetko Copper Co. Owns THIRTY copper claims (600 acres) and two water rights on the Chetko river in Curry County, Oregon, within eighteen miles of Chetko Harbor, on the Pacific Ocean.

On one of the claims is a fifty-foot vein of copper ore (which is being developed) that contains 13 per cent copper, at $25 gold per ton; making a total of

$90.40 per ton

Attention is called to the fact that the Trinity Copper Co., in Shasta County, California, capitalized at $4,000,000 with the ore values averaging about five per cent copper, is selling its shares in Boston at $27 to $30 share; and the Balakalala Copper Co., (situated near Trinity) capitalized at $3,000,000 is selling at $8 to $10 per share on the Boston and other markets.

Chetko Copper is capitalized for only $1,000,000; owns more claims than both said companies combined; containing ore bodies that greatly exceed in value the ores of the said two companies, and is now selling its first block of treasury stock at

30 cents a share

Soon as Copper Stock Buyers learn the facts about the Chetko Copper properties, the shares will eventually advance to $10 and better per share.

Chetko Copper at 30 cents a share is way far the best Copper Stock buy of the day. It has the highest grade copper-gold ore in quantity and the right management. It is sure to

Advance in price, and that soon

Samples of the Chetko Copper gold ore and prospectuses can be seen at the Lakeside Inn, Klamath Falls, Oregon. Albert E. Imbler, late manager and part owner of the Long Lake Lumber Co., of Klamath Falls, is personally overseeing the development of the large ore bodies on the Chetko Copper claims, and the company is proceeding to have all mining claims patented this summer.

Note: Advance in Price:—After July 5th, 1907, the price of the Chetko copper will be advanced to 50 cents a share.
