SUMMONS

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, for Klamath County

W. F. Arant, Plaintiff, vs. Albertine E. Finck, otherwise Albertine Finch, whose true name is unknown, Defendant.

To the above named named Albertine E. Finck, otherwise Albertine Finch, whose true name is unknown.

In the Name of the State of Oregon: You are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled suit on or before Thursday, the Sixth day of June, 1907, that being the last day of the time prescribed in the order for publication of this summons as made by the Honorable J. B. Griffith, County Judge of Klamath County, Oregon, dated April 25th, 1907, and which order also directs that said summons be served by publication thereof once a week for six successive weeks, the first publication to be on the 25th day of April, 1907, in the Klamath Republican, a weekly newspaper published at Klamath Falls, Klamath County, Oregon; and if you fail to so answer, for want thereof, the plaintiff will apply to the Honorable Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, for Klamath County, for a decree of said Court, that you, the said defendant, have no interest or estate in or to the following described real property: The S. W. 1/4 of the S. W. 1/4 of Section 16 in Tp. 38 S., of R. 9 E., W. M., in Oregon; that the title of this plaintiff therein is good and valid and that he is the owner in fee thereof; that you, the defendant, be forever enjoined and debarred from asserting any claim whatever in or to said real property adverse to this plaintiff; and for such other relief as to the Court shall seem meet in equity.

C. C. BROWER, 4-25-6-6 Attorney for Plaintiff.

SUMMONS

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, for Klamath County.

California Northeastern Railway Company, a corporation, plaintiff, vs. Leo S. Robinson and the Klamath Water Users Association, a corporation, defendant.

To Leo S. Robinson, one of the above-named defendants.

In the name of the State of Oregon, you are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled action, on or before June 13th, 1907. Said date being six weeks from the date of the first publication of this summons, and if you fail to so appear and answer, Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in complaint, namely for judgment for the condemnation and taking of strips of land within the East Half of the Southwest quarter of Section 11, Township 40 South of Range 8 East of Willamette Meridian. A strip sixty (60) feet in width, being thirty (30) feet on each side of center line of a railroad now located and surveyed along and upon the said East Half of the Southwest quarter of said Section 11, more particularly described as follows: Commencing at a point on the North line of the East Half of the Southeast quarter of Section 11, Township 40, South of Range 8 East of Willamette Meridian, at or near a point known as "Engineer's Survey Station G No. 2903-40," thence running south sixteen degrees fifty-three and a half minutes (16° 53 1/2') west through said Section 11, to a point on the south boundary line of said subdivision which is at or near the point known as "Engineer's Station G No. 2875-60"; also for the purpose of proper construction, security, convenience and operation of said road and for side tracks, depots, water stations, cuttings and embankments, will condemn and appropriate two strips of land each forty-five (45) feet wide, lying one on the northwest and the other on the southeast side of the aforementioned right of way for its entire length, and immediately adjacent thereto, in the said East Half of the Southeast quarter of said Section 11, all or said tracts containing nine and five hundred seven-three thousandths (9,573) acres, and that the damages for taking and condemning said right of way be assessed.

This summons is published by order of Hon. J. B. Griffith, County Judge of Klamath County, made on the 30th day of April, 1907. By said order of the Court, it is directed that this summons be published in the Klamath Republican once a week for six (6) consecutive weeks. The date of the first publication of this summons was the 2nd day of May, 1907.

Dated this 30th day of April, 1907. W. D. FENTON, R. A. LEITER, C. A. COGSWELL, 5-2-6-13 Attorneys for Plaintiff.

When Bunny Was Bumped.

By LESLIE TRAIN.

Copyright, 1906, by E. C. Purcell.

Bunny Travers was not a bad fellow. On the contrary, everybody liked him, and everybody said it was too bad that he had money and had spent six months in London to learn the ways of an ass. One day when the subject of the up to date girl was on the carpet Bunny listened for awhile with a bored air and then observed: "It's all theory. She can't be found, ye know. They are the same old hangin' lot, just a lot of gurls, with their giggle and twaddle and waiting for a proposal. As I may have remarked before, they bore me—bore me dreadfully. Weally, I think I shall have to cut the whole lot of them."

Among those who regarded Bunny as an assine good fellow was Burt Galbraith, the young partner in a downtown brokerage firm. He had a wife and a home on the north shore of Long Island, and his sister Nettie lived with them. As he listened to Bunny's observations a smile hovered around his mouth, and that night when he got home he said to the sister: "Say, Net, we've got a feller in the Clipper club that needs bumping, and he needs it bad. I am going to invite him down to stay for a week."

"What for?" was asked. "So that you can bump him. He doesn't believe there's an up to date girl in America."

Bunny balked a little when invited down to the island home. He was at last prevailed upon, however, and one Monday afternoon he was safely landed at Ravensrest. Half an hour later Miss Nettie was dressed for a spin in her brother's auto and informed the visitor that a twenty mile ride was on the cards. If it would bore him, why? "Not in the least, me deah gurl. I rawther fawncy the thing, doncher know, or think I should if there was any speed in it. If you can assure me of twenty miles an hour I shall be positively chawmed."

He was quietly assured, and after the machine got well started he found the assurance well founded. Bunny began to get nervous after the speed exceeded fifteen miles an hour, but he managed to restrain himself until it had reached twenty-five. Then his hat blew off, his hair stood up, and there was a quiver to his voice as he turned to the girl and said: "Oh, now, I thought we came out to see the landscape, doncher know."

Farmers began to yell, dogs to bark and drivers of teams to draw out to the fences as the speed was raised to thirty miles an hour, and Bunny Travers confessed to himself that for the first time in two years he wasn't bored. The pace went to thirty-five and then to forty, and he finally judged that it had gone to a hundred and the auto was flying above the trees. Then it slackened as they entered a village, and the girl steered the machine up one street and down another and finally halted before the office of a justice of the peace. A benign looking old gentleman came out, and the girl handed him $5.

"Now, then, what's all this?" asked Bunny as Miss Nettie was turning the machine about. "Oh, whenever I exceed the speed limit I stop and pay a fine. They don't have to arrest me and have witnesses and a trial. Saves time and carries out the letter of the law, you know. Little invention of my own, and I am thinking of taking out a patent. I'll try for a mile a minute going back."

Bunny groaned. To his utter amazement, he was not in the least bored. On the contrary, he was anxious to suggest that Miss Nettie accept a check for $1,000 for the benefit of charity and allow him to walk home. Before he could state the case, however, the machine was under way. When they reached home the girl found a bundle of clothes in the seat beside her. After awhile Bunny Travers emerged from the bundle and said that he was a changed man.

An hour after breakfast next morning when Bunny had finished his cigar his entertainer asked him if he wouldn't like to have a bout with the falls. He smiled incredulously, but she asked him to follow her to the billiard room and there produced a pair of f's. Here was his opportunity to get even with her for the scare of the day before. He would disarm her three or four times and wound her vanity. It was Bunny, however, who was pinked and disarmed and driven all around the room and made to look like 30 cents. The afternoon was rainy, and Miss Nettie proposed billiards and pool. Bunny began by giving her twenty on billiards and four balls on pool and in the course of three hours found that she could give him all that and then win every game.

Next morning he got up to wonder what was coming. He soon found out. There was a cracking good snoring breeze, and the whitecaps were running on the sound. When Miss Nettie proposed a sail in her catboat, Bunny looked at those whitecaps for a long minute, and shivers ran up his back. He followed her down to the boat landing, however, and did his best to appear indifferent. The girl hoisted the sail, took a reef in it and then shipped the tiller, and the visitor was asked to sit amidships and trim the craft. When half a mile out and just after the fifth barrel of spray had struck him in the back, he said something about having an important engagement in the city, but the boat did not cease to bounce nor the spray to fly for nearly an hour later. Miss Nettie was also sopping wet and her hair flying, but she was bumping Bunny. On approaching the landing she rounded into the wind, held fast to the sheet and yelled out as the boat turned turtle. She was along side of him as he came up, spluttering and gasping, and as she reached out a hand and drew him to the overturned boat she said:

"Hang on here, and we shall be blown ashore. We might as well have a bath while we are about it. Hope you are enjoying yourself."

When Bunny went to his room for the night he was almost ready to admit that he was wrong in arguing that there were no up to date girls. The next morning something happened to please him. He was invited to take a morning gallop in company with the young lady, and he saw his way clear to pay off old scores. He was given the best mount, but the gallop had not covered a hundred rods when it was evident that horse and man were not agreed. At the first fence to be jumped the horse remained on one side and Bunny on the other, while the girl disappeared in the distance and didn't seem to miss her cavalier for a full hour. Bunny's excuse was that he lifted his horse too soon for the jump and that there was something wrong with the climate of the United States.

Next day the visitor and Miss Nettie went buggy riding. Bunny took the reins with a determination to show off. He was showing when Miss Nettie took the reins away and brought the runaway animal down to his paces. There was one more bump in store for the young man. Next day, after wrestling for an hour with his palpitating heart, he made a proposal in due form. Miss Nettie realized what was coming and was prepared for it. She simply handed him an advertisement she had written and proposed to insert in the leading papers. It read:

"An up to date girl wishes to adopt an orphan boy and be a mother to him. Will teach him how to climb trees, stand on his head and turn back hand-springs. All new ideas taught as soon as they appear. A positive guarantee given not to bore him. A cure for languidness and the London complaint kept constantly on hand. Address in confidence."

That was another bump for Bunny, but he took it like a little man. Instead of returning to his old ways and his old life, he went over to Oldfields and bought the right to plant oysters, and he has displayed such energy and ambition during the past year that Burt Galbraith looks at him across the club dinner table and mutters to himself: "I wonder why in thunder Net does not name the day. I know they love each other and are as good as engaged."

A Progressive Age.

Pierre de Campe, who was calculating the Brady kitchen, was so excessively slow that his discouraged employers began to fear that the deliberate Frenchman meant to end his days under their roof.

"Do you think," asked Mrs. Brady desperately, "that you'll be done by 5 o'clock, so we can cook dinner?"

"Madame," replied Pierre, pausing to gesticulate with his brush, "maybe you have hear som' peep' say dat dis ees de age of progress. Oul, madame, eet ees de age of too much progress. Evalre'ere hon dose states of America dere ees too much 'urry. 'urry. 'urry. Evalre'ere eet ees 'Make 'aste, make 'aste!' Dere ees no rippose—no time for do notting good. Evalre'ere I am come wit' ma pall, ma brush, ma scaffold, eet ees not 'Pierre, how good you can do dose yerk' but 'Pierre, how queek you ees got t'rough?' Parbleu! Biffore a man ees got one leg een hees hoivairhal som'bod' ees hask heen, 'Say, meester, how soon you go yay?'—Youth's Companion.

Books That Helped.

"What books have helped you most?" asked the sincere and serious young woman. "I can't recall all of 'em," answered Mr. Curox, "but they were mostly stories with love and fighting in them. You see, I was in the book selling business when I began to get prosperous."—Washington Star.

Explosive.

The Count—Have you asked for ze rich young lady's hand yet? The Duke—Yes, and I think lightning must have struck the telephone. The Count—Ah! Maybe the wires are crossed! The Duke—No. I think it is her father who is crossed.—Chicago News.
