The Publisher's Claims Sustained

UNITED STATES COURT OF CLAIMS

The Publishers of Webster's International Dictionary allege that it "is, in fact, the popular Unabridged thoroughly re-edited in every detail, and vastly enriched in every part, with the purpose of adapting it to meet the larger and severer requirements of another generation."

We are of the opinion that this allegation most clearly and accurately describes the work that has been accomplished, and the result that has been reached. The Dictionary, as it now stands, has been thoroughly re-edited in every detail, has been corrected in every part, and is admirably adapted to meet the larger and severer requirements of a generation which demands more of popular philological knowledge than any generation that the world has ever contained.

It is perhaps needless to add that we refer to the dictionary in our judicial work as of the highest authority in accuracy of definition; and that in the future as in the past it will be the source of constant reference.

FORT KLAMATH

Fort Klamath is located in the northern part of Klamath county, and is in the center of what is recognized as the Switzerland of America. In close proximity to Crater Lake and surrounded by the greatest natural and scenic wonders on the continent, it will, within a few years, be one of the greatest tourist resorts on the Pacific coast.

The delightful weather so natural to this section of country still holds on and many visitors are coming in and admiring our beautiful valley.

The Chamber of Commerce here has made a collection of grain and grasses—that grow to such perfection all over our 35,000 acres of open meadow. The potential strength of the soil here is very little understood, but the farmers are beginning to realize the value of land that will produce sixty bushel of oats, seventy bushel of barley, of both the bald and bearded varieties, vetches six feet high and heavily seeded, with timothy red top and clover in several varieties. We venture to say that our exhibit of forage grasses at the National Irrigation Congress at Sacramento will compare favorably with any display there.

John Cox is fencing off a sixty foot road through his ranch, two miles long, with cedar posts and woven wire furnished by Gaddis & Dixon of Medford. This road is known as the Cox-Gardner road from Fort Klamath to Pelican Bay, and was ordered to be opened last spring by the County Court. We trust that that body will see to it that their orders are carried out this fall, as this road is badly needed.

Dr. Magilton will be in Fort Klamath on the 17th and will remain for two weeks. She will be pleased to meet those in need of dental work. 8-22

Dan Ryan and Lew Smart went out to Korn Canyon on a visit to the Indians. In the two days they were there they picked up some fine beef steers.

The old Hessig building is being remodeled by its new owners, D. W. Ryan & Co.

The two large livery barns here are taxed to their utmost to keep the tourists moving to and from Crater Lake, Spring Creek and Seven Mile.

Will G. Steel is one of the most active pedestrians. On two occasions during the past week we have found him at the breakfast table after a moonlight stroll from Crater Lake, 22 miles away.

Ed Hoyt is training a new race horse. He took his out one day this week for exercise and judging from appearances on his return the exercise was strenuous on both sides. Ed says he used to be a good buccaroo.

Mr. C. E. Hoyt is busy getting her new hotel, "The Hoyt", ready. Everything is new and the wall paper and carpets show excellent taste.

Broderick Resigns

An easy solution of the strife existing between the mayor and city council was this week offered by W. J. Broderick, who has been acting as chief of police since Mr. Bishop's inauguration. Mr. Broderick tendered his resignation to the mayor. The action was prompted by a determination on his part to enter the hotel business, which he will do as soon as he is relieved from his duties on the police force.

It was supposed that at a meeting of the council held last Monday evening the mayor would name as successor to Mr. Broderick, R. E. Hunsacker, but there were not enough members in the city for a quorum and adjournment was taken subject to the call of the mayor.

Now that the bone of contention has been removed it is to be hoped that the council will get down to business and give to the city some of the legislation so much needed. One of the first things that should occupy its attention is the sewerage question. There are many sections of the city demanding relief along this line and some way should be devised to accede to the wishes of the property owners.

A mere whiff of arsine gas will prove fatal in from three to eight days. This deadly gas killed its discoverer, Adolph Gebien.

Sunstroke in Egypt is an evil genius which, according to the natives, must be massaged into the forehead and bitten out.

The Coliseum at Rome was built by Vespasian to accommodate 100,000 spectators. It covers five and one-half acres and was 120 feet high.

"Do you believe that the good die young?" "I think they do, if all my wife tells me about her first husband is true." —Pick-Me-Up.

Where crocodiles abound in Africa native children are caught in case of an attack to gouge out the animal's eyes. Many save their lives that way.

Purity in the Milk Pail

Having for his text the pure milk campaign, Samuel Hopkins Adams in McClure's Magazine lays stress upon the plan for insuring the purity of milk at its fountain head. Where this has been carried out a decreased death rate among children has resulted. Mr. Adams believes that the plan of requiring milk to be pure and germ free to start with is better than any system of killing all or some of the germs by sterilization. He notes the demand that all milk shipped to or offered for sale in New York be pasteurized and acknowledges that unquestionably this would do away with the original danger of active infections and in an emergency might be necessary. But as a general and permanent principle he believes it to be wrong and harmful. He says:

Young children do not thrive upon pasteurized milk, and it is to this class of the community that milk is vitally necessary. In the heating which destroys the pathogenic bacilli (disease germs), ferments proper to the milk are destroyed, thus decreasing its nutritive qualities. Finally, the pasteurizing of all milk means the tearing down of all that has been built up in the way of improved dairy conditions, since the filthiest supply may be admitted after treatment by the germ killing process. No one wants to eat decayed meat, even though it be deodorized and treated with bactericidal processes. Similarly, the public of a great city should not have the gates thrown open to filthy milk, no matter how protected against specific infections.

The expense of keeping milk cattle well and clean and guarding against all forms of impurities in handling, transporting and serving is greater than where sterilization is resorted to, but the writer argues that the more costly method is more economical when the whole public welfare is considered.

France and Morocco.

Unless the Hague teaches the nations to divide up the earth without appealing to the sword there will soon be a war due over Morocco, and France will not be on the outside. Slowly but surely France is swallowing that rich prize by means of "pacific penetration." The empire is covered with French scientific missions, and for every scientist mobbed by natives a slice of territory is occupied by French soldiers, "to maintain order." Strange it will be if France is allowed to pick up 1,300 miles of coast line on the Mediterranean and the Atlantic, with 300,000 square miles of fertile land lying at Europe's door, without burning powder.

Germany fought to despoil France of Alsace-Lorraine and to take the duchies from Denmark. England had to fight two wars in order to bring the Transvaal and the Orange Free State permanently under the British flag. Russia laid her claws upon Manchuria, but was called to answer with the sword. If the great nations of Europe had no interest in the fate of Morocco beyond a sentimental one France would have absorbed the country long ago. For fifty years the French have been working to extend their influence over the whole of northern Africa. Morocco is the key to full development of French enterprise along the southern shore of the Mediterranean, and all Europe recognizes it. An acute crisis will come when it transpires that France must fight to hang on or else let go for good. And to let go means to sink the labors and sacrifices and banish the dreams of half a century.

A New York woman was run down and killed by a street car while attempting to save her umbrella. This is another argument against the private ownership of umbrellas, for no one would sacrifice his life in the attempt to save a borrowed one.

One thousand Japanese are reported to be in Mexico ready to invade Texas as soon as war is declared. Not a large force, to be sure, but if they tackle the Texas cucumber crop that number will be doubled, yells and all.

The world's fashion arbiters in Paris can never be brought to look upon Japan as one of the great powers since it has leaked out that the styles in women's clothes in the mikado's realm have not changed in 2,500 years.

Immigration beat all records in the last fiscal year, but the demand for laborers worth their price in field and factory and especially in the kitchen was never so great as it is now.

It remains for some enterprising amateur world politician to evolve a theory that a navy is to be sent to the Pacific in order to back Japan up in the absorption of Asiatic territory.

After all, the fuss of getting a billionaire to court his conversation does not usually amount to a "hill of beans."

Those disgruntled wine growers of France have decided to keep their grievances bottled up for future use.

Lost River

Mr. Martin and family are now living at the Bloomingcamp place.

Among the buildings that are to be erected in this vicinity this fall are barns by Ed Ream and Arthur Addison.

Work on the J. G. Stevenson barn is progressing satisfactorily and it will not be long until it is completed.

Ed Allen and party returned Thursday from a delightful trip to the coast.

Mrs. Ream is still confined to her bed with illness.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Phillips and Archie Colson went to Pokogama where they expect to meet some relatives who are coming to visit them from Wisconsin.

The Ream Header company has dissolved partnership. The old header will be operated by Messrs. Stevenson, Phillips, Colson and Munson. Messrs. Ream, Emman and Koontz having purchased a new one. This was made necessary on account of the increased acreage in grain, one machine being unable to handle it all.

New Teacher

Miss Bessie Applegate was this week appointed to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Miss Alice Applegate as teacher of English in the High School. She is a talented young lady and should be well qualified to fulfill the duties of the position. Miss Applegate is a graduate of the high school and the State Normal school of San Jose and the Stanford University. In addition she took a one year's post graduate course at the latter institution, during which time she was tutor in the English department. As an evidence of her high standing as a student she was elected to membership in the Phi Beta Kappa, the national honorary scholarship fraternity. To be eligible to membership in this fraternity requires a high order of ability.
