LEADING NEWSPAPER OF INTERIOR TWO DOLLARS PER YEAR IN ADVANCE

GOVERNOR HUGHES

A few months ago when the name of Governor Hughes was mentioned as a possible candidate for president, ninety percent of the people asked "Who is he?" But that question did not remain long unanswered. Hughes was a man little known until the era of "investigation" struck New Yark. The good political effect of the Lexow Investigating committee had worn off, and the politicians of the Empire State began to cast about for something else to investigate. They hit upon the Gas Trust, A committee was appointed and proceeded to New York where as much political capital as possible would be manufactured without doing too much injury to the trust. They selected as their attorney a Mr. Hughes, a man practically unknown in New York City. He accepted the honor with the understanding that he would be unhampered. The knowing ones winked. That closed eye, however, was opened wide before the investigation proceeded very far. They found that Hughes was a man beyond approach. No similar investigation, for honesty and thoroughness was ever before carried on. They could not stop him and the real purpose for which the committee was appointed was accomplished.

Then came the insurance investigation. Popular demand secured Hughes the appointment as attorney for this as in the previous investigation. Along who recently rented the ranch. about this time the Republican party was seeking out a candidate for Governor. The wise politicians thought they saw a "a likely lookin' critter" in the attorney who had made the investigating committees a reality. They were thunderstruck, however, to find that he was imperturbable to their advances. He simply stated that if the people wanted to nominate him he would then state whether he would accept it or not. There were no deals or private understandings. Everything was open and above board. The convention assembled, States who was.

The same is not true of Mr. Hughes. Every day he is gaining in strength. His record seems to inspire the confidence necessary to success. Several canvasses have been made throughout the nation. In each of these Hughes gathers new strength. On the first canvass he was last on the list. Today he is second, and giving Mr. Taft a hard run for first place.
