One Hundred Words on Oregon Fruit

Written by Hon. Wilbur K. Newell, president of Oregon State Board of Horticulture.

(Special Correspondence)
Portland, Oregon, September 14, 1907.
Weather conditions throughout the Northwest have been almost perfect for the harvest of all kinds of crops.

Oregon apples and pears have brought record prices this fall.

At the request of the Oregon Development League, Hon. Wilbur K. Newell has condensed in the following one hundred words a statement about Oregon fruit that should be printed in every language known to the tongue of man: "Oregon excels in fruit." Proof: Because her apples are the acknowledged standard of the world, bringing highest prices from the trade of New York, London, Paris, and Berlin.

"Her pears, cherries, dried prunes, and strawberries have a national reputation, unequalled by the fruit of any other section of the United States.

"Why? Because nature has given her a soil containing the necessary plant food, a climate without extremes, and moisture and sunshine just right to produce a fruit of beautiful color, firm texture, and unrivalled flavor.

"And her people have the intelligence to take advantage of these conditions."

Of the 400,000 leaflets printed advertising the low rates to Oregon, 351,000 had been put in circulation up to noon Saturday.

The Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, Great Northern, Burlington and the Denver & Rio Grande are running at least two daily trains in sections to accommodate the tremendous rush of colonists to the Pacific Northwest, and Oregon is getting her full share. Every citizen of the state should make an effort to bring some acquaintance, friend or relative from the east or middle west to locate permanently in Oregon.

Secretary Taft had many good things to say of this part of the United States before leaving for the Orient.

Langell Valley

After conducting evangelistic services here for some time, Mr. and Mrs. Blesley have gone to Merrill.

Walter Campbell finished haying on Saturday. Walter won $50 as a trophy for a sheaf of barley at Sacramento. Under irrigation greater things could be expected of this fertile valley.

Frank Swingle, accompanied by his brother, Oliver, of San Diego, Cal., has returned from a successful hunting and prospecting trip in the Umpqua mountains.

Some miscreant stole Carl Deal's saddle the other evening. Carl is on the war path for him.

Henry Duncan has gone south on an extended hunting and prospecting trip.

Grant Brewer leaves soon for Eugene to visit his parents and probably to buy a homo there.

Marshall Orr was here this week.

Henry Duncan expects to get a load of alfalfa seed soon which he will deliver to the farmers.

Visitors Entertained

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Morgan entertained informally Tuesday evening at their home on High street in honor of J. C. Hill of Oakland, M. W. Backus of Haywards, Miss R. H. Frierson of San Francisco and Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Wright of Berkeley, members of the excursion party that came to this city last week.

The evening was devoted to music, diverse amusements, in the planning of which Mrs. Morgan is talented, and the party numbered several soloists whose talent is well known. Those present besides the guests of honor were Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Worden, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ira White, Miss Louisa Sargeant, Mrs. Ethel McCauley, J. D. Carroll, Mrs. T. W. Mott, Geo. C. Hill and Perle Carroll.

Fred Busing started at noon in a carriage to the scene to bring Clendening home. The extent of his injuries are not known here.

Chief Engineer W. R. Journey was in the city a couple of days the first of the week from his camp at the Grohs ranch after a load of supplies. Mr. Journey states that in going over the pass from Langell valley they made four surveys before finding an easy grade and now says that he has found a one per cent grade which was much better than he expected. In running east from the Grohs ranch he says there is about six miles of rough rocky country but that he will have no trouble in reaching the open country through Drews valley, and from there on into Lakeview the work is comparatively easy. As near as can be learned his instructions are that when he reaches that point to return over the route and make a permanent survey of the whole line back to Klamath Falls.—Bonanza Bulletin.

F. G. Butler, formerly of Fort Klamath but now a resident of Spokane, passed through this city Tuesday on his way to the Fort on business.

One of Them.

A foreign tourist who had received permission to visit one of our large asylums for the insane was surprised at the neatness, quietude and good order that prevailed within the institution. He asked if it was always like that, and the polite attendant who was showing him through the buildings said it was.

"We have what we call our violent wards, of course, but I presume you would not care to see these."

"I think not."

"It is just as well, perhaps. They are rather noisy, although, of course, we exercise the same care in providing for the welfare of the inmates that you see in this part of the institution. We also have a section where we keep the 'incurables.'"

"These inmates, then, are considered curable."

"Their cases are at least hopeful."

"I am greatly interested," said the visitor, "but I will not take up any more of your time. You have other duties to attend to, have you not?"

"Yes, sir. This is merely one of my recreations. In one of the rooms in the main building I am engaged during most of the time in pursuing what may be called my life work."

"Your life work? May I ask what that is?"

"Haven't you heard?" said the attendant, in a tone of astonishment. "I am compiling an index to Webster's dictionary."—Youth's Companion.

For Shakespeare's Sake.

There is something remarkably attractive for an actress in the rolling cadences of the Bard of Avon, and I do not wonder that so many players dream of playing his work. I think it was in Los Angeles some years ago that a young actor who was then becoming popular decided that the time was ripe for him to do Hamlet. What his mental process was in arriving at this decision I have of course no means of knowing, but an apocryphal anecdote was told of him the morning after his first appearance as the melancholy Dane. It seems a friend approached him and said:

"How do you feel this morning?"

"I have failed to get my whole meaning into the character. I shall never play Hamlet again," was the reply.

"Oh, but you must play the part once again," remonstrated the friend.

"And why?" asked the young actor despondently.

"Shakespeare turned over in his coffin last night. You will have to do it once again, for you can't leave the poor chap in that position," said the friend.

Wanted Permanent Employment.

Old Sam had been for several days patiently sitting on the bank of the Rappahannock river near the dam, holding his shotgun in his hand. Finally he attracted the attention of a passerby, who asked, "Well, Uncle Sam, are you looking for something to do?"

"No, sah," answered Sam. "I's gettin' paid fo' what I's doin'."

"Indeed!" answered the stranger.

"And what may that be?"

"Shootin' de muskrats dat am underminin' de dam," answered Sam.

"Well, there goes one now!" exclaimed the stranger excitedly. "Why don't you shoot?"

"S'pose I wants to lose my job, sah?" answered Sam complacently.—Lippincott's Magazine.

The Nature of the Creature.

"Your cook?"

"Oh, she is so careless that I don't believe she could drop a remark without breaking her word."—Smart Set.

The Cooking

of Peas, like every other Preferred Stock vegetable (except tomatoes), should consist in just heating and seasoning. When used for salads, no cooking is required.

Preferred Stock Canned Goods

are thoroughly cooked in the sealed can, in a manner that preserves and "brings out" the garden flavor. Preferred Stock Peas are Wisconsin-grown, on the denuded timber lands which, in this particular state, are of a peculiar sandy nature especially adapted to the growing of fine peas. Preferred Stock Peas are never large, or yellow, or "tough-skinned."
Dinner in five minutes—the PREFERRED STOCK way.
