THE HALL OF FAME.

After being six minutes under water Amadee Martel, a schoolboy of Northboro, Mass., was recovered and resuscitated.

William A. Broome, a laborer of Washington, Pa., was so overcome by the news that he had inherited $100,000 that he died of the shock.

George W. McEnaney, who has been for seven years postmaster of North Sebago, is, it is said, the oldest postmaster in Maine. Although he is eighty-two years old, he manages the office in a satisfactory manner.

Joseph Knight, since 1883 editor of Notes and Queries and dramatic critic of the Globe, Athenaeum and other periodicals, died in London at the age of seventy-eight years. He was the author of many theatrical works.

J. W. Beers of West View, Pa., has one of the most valuable libraries of shorthand works in the world. He has books and pamphlets on the subject by the thousands, and they include practically all the systems invented since the year 1700.

Alonzo Smith of Skowhegan, Me., has an old gun which was used in the battle of Bunker Hill, 131 years ago, by his great-grandfather. The gun is in working order, barring the loss of the flint, and could be easily equipped for actual use.

Duke Ulrich of Wurttemberg deals in cakes and oatmeal, and, in conjunction with Prince Christian Hohenzollern, he manufactures coquets, sold under the name of "Hohenzollern coquets," which have a vast sale among south German ladies on account of their princely trademark.

Since his retirement from public life Hon. William F. Forman, who used to be in congress from the East St. Louis (Ill.) district and who afterward was commissioner of Internal Revenue, has built up a large and lucrative law practice in East St. Louis, of which he has been for many years a leading citizen.

Asa G. Candler of Atlanta has subscribed $75,000 to the Wesley memorial enterprise, launched by the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Mr. Candler is one of the wealthiest men in the south. Thirty-two years ago he trapped to Atlanta from his country home in the state, his only asset being the clothes he wore.

The degree of doctor of medicine has been conferred upon Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, C. M. G., by the University of Oxford, cause honoris, in recognition of the work he has achieved in improving the social condition of the Labrador fisher folk. The honor bestowed upon him by his old university is all the more marked by reason of its being the first honorary M. D. degree conferred by Oxford.

PITH AND POINT.

A pretty girl yawning is a terrible sight.

It is very easy to jar the table over a nervous person is writing.

If the day goes slow to you, take a pill every hour and see how fast time will appear to fly.

You can tell when a man begins to get old by the way he will say he is just in the prime of life.

A sane man knows he doesn't know it all. It's the crazy man who knows everything and knows he knows it.

If you run into a stone wall, go round it. Don't back off and butt it and keep at it as long as you can stand.

You think an orphan child is a sad sight. What do you think of parents who have outlived all their children? Isn't that a sight with more grief in it?—Athlon Globe.

Editorial Flings.

Russia is always ready to talk about peace. It is another instance of human nature's tendency to discuss those things of which it knows very little.—Washington Star.

A well known physician points out the beneficial effects sure to result from walking to work, but no doubt the majority will continue to look forward to the pleasure of walking the other way.—Washington Post.

If the baseball that is said to be making rapid progress in Great Britain is of the variety that some of the clubs are providing in this country it should never again be complained that Englishmen cannot appreciate a joke.—Providence Tribune.

Animal Curios.

Storks devour kittens.

Fish never has their food.

The horse has no eyebrows.

Turtles eat tortoises have no teeth.

The sheep's upper jaw is toothless.

All cud chewing animals have cloven hoofs.

A well grown kangaroo can leap fifty feet.

Hares and snakes sleep with their eyes open.

The frog can only breathe with its mouth closed.

The mother condor must keep her young a year in the nest before they are able to fly.—Los Angeles Times.

YOUR TRUE COMMUTER.

He Must Be by Nature a Man Who Takes to Routine.

Your true commuter must be by nature a man who takes to routine. There are some who have commuted for a quarter century or more and yet have not acquired the trick and never will. They are the ones who write letters to the newspapers, airing their grievances against the heartless railroad corporations. They are not born commuters. They have had commutation thrust upon them. But many really enjoy the life of the commuter. They like the clocklike regularity. They like the pleasant social aspect of the early morning trip to town, the neighborly interest in one another's affairs, the ample time for reading the newspapers, which numerous city residents miss by not being obliged to get an early start. They look forward to the pleasant relaxation of the whist game on the way home, with head on one side to keep the smoke out of their eyes. Some of them even say that they enjoy being awakened early in the morning.

In time all who work in New York will come to it. Meanwhile, for the man with a family it appears to be in many ways a happy solution of a difficult problem. Undoubtedly it is a more wholesome existence physically, but mentally and spiritually it has the defects of its virtues when pursued all the year round. The commuter devotes the best part of the day to one narrow corner of the city. The rest of his time not consumed on the train is in still more narrowing atmosphere of the suburbs. He neither gets all the way into the life of the city nor clean out into the country. So his view of things has neither the perspective of robust rurality nor the sophistication of a man in the city and of it. His return to nature is only halfway. His urbanity is suburban. Much of our literature, art and especially criticisms show the taint of the commuter's point of view.—Jesse Lynch Williams in Century.

His Limitation.

"Your friend D'Auber is an artist, isn't he?"

"Yes, that fellow can draw anything."

"Indeed! I have heard it said that he hasn't drawn a sober breath for years."—Philadelphia Press.

If you don't scale the mountain you won't view the plain.—Chinese Proverb.
