The latest subject to furnish a topic for pulpit discussion is the dropping of "In God We Trust" from the new United States coins. It will not be long before Washington is deluged with petitions and appeals for the re-instatement of the motto, and it remains to be seen if Roosevelt will "stand pat."

Harry Wall, foreman of the Moore Brothers' logging crew at Keno, had his right forearm broken last Thursday evening. The accident was due to his arm being caught between the wagon and a small tree. He was on the ground driving the team, and in passing the lines around the tree his arm was caught. It was necessary to cut down the tree before he was liberated. Dr. Merryman was summoned and reduced the fracture.
