

KLAMATH REPUBLICAN

E. J. MURRAY, Editor.

LEADING NEWSPAPER OF INTERIOR OREGON.
TWO DOLLARS PER YEAR IN ADVANCE

One week from next Monday Congress will meet and then will begin the great quadrennial gabfest of the statesmen of both parties. Speeches on all sorts of subjects will be made for distribution through the mails during the next presidential election, and these will be transported at Uncle Sam's expense. All of the prominent candidates for the Republican presidential nomination will be in Washington, with the exception of Governor Hughes. He will be conspicuous by his absence. Heretofore the national capital has been the mecca for all aspirants, but Hughes is going to break another of the time honored rules and remain away. He will stay in New York state and look after the interests of the people. In the meantime he is gaining strength through the country and every day brings the nomination nearer to him. The followers of Taft hope to make his return from his trip around the world a triumphal event and once again bring their idol before the limelight, but it is safe to say that this effort, like all that have preceded will fail to rally the fast dying strength of the big man from Ohio.

Additional Briefs

WANTED—This office will pay five cents per pound for old rags. They must be clean; linen or cotton preferred.

Miss Edna Houston, who has been in Merrill visiting Miss Hazel Burris, returned home this week.

Mrs. C. H. Underwood returned this week from a two month's visit with her parents in Albany.

G. W. White, president of the First National Bank, who for the past ten days has been at his farm near Midland supervising the erection of a fine residence, returned home Tuesday evening.

An alarm of fire summoned the department to the Gem Restaurant Monday evening, where it was found that the trouble was due to soot burning in a flue. No damage was done.

The attention of the readers of the Republican is called to the financial statement of the First National Bank. It speaks for itself, and truly may it claim as good, if not better, showing than any bank in the state.

In this issue of the Republican appears the advertisement of the Belmont Feed Stables, and it would be a good thing for the readers of this paper to look it over. There is something in it that will interest you.

E. A. Dunham returned the first of the week from a brief visit to the Rogue River valley.

The legal holidays make it impossible for Circuit Judge H. L. Benson to transact court business and he is consequently enjoying a vacation which he is spending in Portland and Salem.

E. W. Gowan, who has had charge of the railroad work being done by the Mason Construction company, has resigned his position and Archie Mason, who arrived here from Portland Monday, is now superintending the work.

Within the past ten days there have been about 1500 customers in Mr. Duffy's Notion Store, all of whom were heard to make the remark, "I saw your ad in the Republican."

Mrs. A. L. Evans will remove to San Diego, Cal. Have a few household articles to dispose of; also sewing machine. Inquire at Duffy's Store, opp courthouse.

Zim Baldwin returned home Tuesday evening after an absence of several months in Frisco, where he went to take a full course in plumbing.

Ivan Daniels is mourning the loss of a fine duck. Recently an excavation was made under the Light & Water company's building for the purpose of installing a heating plant. The hole partially filled with water and his duck-ship decided to use it for bathing purposes, having sleeping quarters farther under the building, where it was warm and comfortable. Everything went along all right until some of the boys left a package of vitrol under the building. Attracted by the bundle the duck began an investigation. After breaking through the paper and rather liking the flavor of the vitrol he proceeded to fill up. The rest of the story is brief, for Mr. Duck is now at home in his happy hunting ground.

GERMAN NOTIONS.

Square Tiles Like Painters' Palettes Used For Breakfast Plates.

For breakfast, instead of plates, long tiles are made in Germany, something like a painter's palette made square. Instead of a thumb hole there is only a small hole in the middle of one end to hang this tile on a hook or peg. These tiles are thick and glazed with white, like any stoneware. One seen was blue and white, and one red in pretty flowing designs.

They are used for bread and butter served with a cup of coffee. Doubtless in Germany they are taken to the garden on bright mornings. Here they are used as curios. It is said that old gentlemen used to them would feel quite "put out" if given a round plate instead of this tile, with a good piece of butter on it, and a couple of fresh rolls for breakfast daily.

German ways of setting the table are at variance with those of other countries. The knives for dinner parties are arranged out at an angle into the middle of the table. Knives and forks are laid obliquely to the plate with the tips touching it. Finger bowls have spoons in them by which to dip the water over the fingers. This idea is not out of the way.

Quite gaudy glassware for wine is shown, purple, blue, orange and yellow, with decanters to match.

A bunch of violets is on every plate at the beginning of a formal dinner.

REAL BEAUTY SLEEP.

A Vienna Specialist's Ideas on This Fascinating Subject.

The old fashioned definition of beauty sleep was the sleep that is taken before midnight. Beauty sleep is the sleep a woman gets after she has slept seven hours and before she has slept nine, says a Viennese specialist.

A woman needs all of seven hours' sleep for the building up of her system. Then she needs two hours more for the recuperation of her body, and the extra two hours will restore her complexion, make her eyes bright, take the wrinkles out of her face and keep her form elastic.

The woman who wants to derive the fullest benefit from her beauty sleep will compose her mind before sinking off into slumber. She will think pleasant thoughts. Worrying makes furrows in the brow and sets lines around the mouth. A little light in a bedroom is a good thing for some people, for it will act cheerfully upon the nerves and drive away nightmare.

Do not allow yourself to be awakened in the morning if you mean to get beauty sleep, or if you must be aroused let it be ever so gently. Do not wake up with a start, with an alarm clock or in consequence of a bell ringing, for any of these sounds will jar the nerves and destroy some of the good the sleep has done you.

She Deceived Ibsen.

The late Henrik Ibsen upheld the superiority of women in his dramas, but in real life he considered them inferior to men in many lines of usefulness generally classed as feminine. For example, his friend, John Paulsen, in the London Times says that one of Ibsen's maxims was this: "No woman can write a cookery book, and no woman can sew a button on fast."

He lived up to the latter part of his dictum. When he detected a loose button on any of his garments he retreated to his own den, locked himself in and with elaborate preparations sewed the button on. He took as much pains with the work as he would with the final copy of one of his plays. Then he used to brag about the performance, saying that he would not put trust in a button sewed on by any woman, not even by his wife. His wife used to laugh. She confided to Paulsen that she secretly reseeded all the buttons that the poet had sewed sewed them as only a woman can, she said. He always forgot to fasten the thread. "But don't deceive him," the faithful wife added appealingly. "It makes him so happy to think that he does it."

A Summer Dish For Winter Time.

Fried tomatoes are a luxury that comparatively few housewives can afford to serve during the winter months, yet if they will follow this old Maryland recipe this dish may be enjoyed on the coldest days of the year as easily as in the middle of summer, says the Delineator. To accomplish this feat, however, the tomatoes must first be cooked in the summer, when they are plentiful. Select the large, firm tomatoes and fry them just as you would if you intended them for immediate service. Then pack them in medium sized stone jars while still hot and pour a rather thick coating of warm lard over them until they have been completely covered. When the lard has cooled thoroughly cover the jars first with a cloth and then rather thickly with paper and let them stand in a cool, dry place until required. When you desire to serve them remove the slices carefully, relieve them of any superfluous lard and then warm by drying slightly. They will prove every bit as delicious as when freshly fried.

To Make Friends.

Fight against the feeling of restraint, reserve, the feeling of shrinking away from people, shyness, oversensitiveness or the feeling of antagonism.

When you greet people with a handshake let your heart run out to your finger tips.

Do not be afraid of giving too much of yourself to the people you meet.

Do not hold yourself back as though you are afraid you would give something away that you ought to keep or that you would say something that you would be sorry for.
