TO DETERMINE ROUTE.

Upon the results of an investigating tour to be made by leading Harriman officials into Central and Eastern Oregon within the next ten days will depend the route of the proposed invasion of that vast territory by the "Wall Street Wizard." In the party of officials which are to make the trip are General Manager J. P. O'Brien, Chief Engineer George W. Broschke and General Superintendent M. J. Buckley, of the Harriman lines, who are vying the real purpose of their present trip by a run over the Elgin-Joseph extension, which has just been completed, says the Portland Telegram.

General Manager O'Brien and Chief Engineer Broschke left for La Grande in Mr. O'Brien's private car and picked up General Superintendent Buckley, who has been in Eastern Oregon for several days. After the trip over the Elgin line to Wallowa, its present terminus, the party will return to Biggs and will start on one of the longest automobile trips ever made into the wilds of Eastern and Central Oregon from Shaniko. It will be several hundred miles in length and will cover a goodly portion of the great Oregon empire now untapped by railroads.

Mr. O'Brien expects to take a hurried look at the country around Madras, which would be the objective point in case the new Harriman line is projected eastward from the Corvallis & Eastern terminus at Detroit, and will continue his way down to Prineville, and from that point the movements of the party are largely a matter of convenience to themselves, though, during the trip, which will require about two weeks, Klamath, Lake, Harney and Malheur counties will be visited, and the most feasible routes considered from all standpoints as to productivity of adjacent territory, cost of construction and other details.

This trip on the part of Mr. O'Brien is to take the place of the one into Eastern Oregon which Mr. Harriman hoped to make before he ended his recent visit to this state, but was unable to because of the urgent demands upon his time in other places. It is also stated that one of the reasons why Mr. Harriman declined to say which of the three routes into the neglected territory would be followed was that he wanted to have a complete report on the situation in each case, based upon the surveys which are now being made by engineering corps. Mr. O'Brien, therefore, is acting as Mr. Harriman's representative in passing on the feasibility of the various routes, and at the same time Mr. O'Brien will be able to look over every foot of the ground himself, which is also important from the fact that the building of the new road will be under his immediate supervision, with Chief Engineer Broschke and General Superintendent Buckley, now with him, as his active lieutenants.

Surveying parties are now working eastward out of Detroit preparing data on what would be the most practicable route, from an engineering standpoint, in case the new road is to be run an east and west line. Another party is running its lines up the Deschutes canyon, for one of the proposed north and south extensions, and this is the route which is looked upon most favorably by the Harriman officials at the present time. The third party is making surveys south from Shaniko for a feasible route in case it is decided to extend the Columbia Southern railway.

These three sets of surveys, it is expected, will be completed by the time Mr. O'Brien has finished his inspection tour, so that it is highly probable that the announcement of the definite route into Mid-Oregon will be made within the next two weeks.

The O'Brien party will make stops, probably, at Lakeview, which has generally been looked upon as one of the points toward which the California & Northeastern will be extended eventually, also at Burns, Harney county. From there it is understood the party will continue its way over to Ontario, which is to be the Eastern terminus of the Harriman system across the state, surveys for which were made years ago.

Immediately following the selection of the route for the new road, right-of-way agents will go into the field and secure the necessary property, but this is not expected to be a very difficult matter, as the people along any and all of the suggested routes are only waiting for a chance to see the road come through, and will probably not throw any obstacles in the way of prompt negotiation for all the land needed.

Taking all things into consideration, actual construction work on the new road should be inaugurated within the next 30 days, and a good start made on it before the bad winter weather sets in.

Miss Bessie Fairclough left Thursday for Ashland.

THE SOIL SURVEY.

One of the great important works being done by the government in this section, and one of which very little has as yet been made public, is the soil survey, which is being made of the lands under the Klamath project by A. T. Sweet, of the Bureau of Soils of the Department of Agriculture. Mr. Sweet has been here about two months and has covered a great portion of the lower country. He is at present working near Merrill.

When asked as to the nature of the work he was doing here, he said that the work consists of classifying the soils of any given section according to the texture of the material of which they are made up; the origin of the material and the crop value of the soils. "Thus," said Mr. Sweet, "soils may be divided into sands, sandy loams, loams and many other classes easily distinguished from the other and each differing as to ease of cultivation, best methods of handling and crops for which they are best suited."

"A map is constructed showing the areas covered by each soil found in the surveyed district, the different soils being examined carefully to determine not only the character of the surface soil but also of the sub-soil to a depth of six feet or more. Many field examinations and tests are made and typical samples are sent to our laboratories at Washington for complete analysis."

"In mapping soils not only are examinations of the soils themselves relied upon, but the appearance of the crops and the character of the native vegetation often give valuable information as to the kind of soil upon which they are growing. Thus in this area the small rabbit brush is found on a loose, light, sandy soil; the black sage on a somewhat heavier sandy soil, usually a sandy loam, and the greasewood and several other plants invariably indicate a soil that contains alkali in considerable amounts. During the progress of the work comparisons are constantly made, not only between the crops grown on different soils, but also between the crops grown on the same soils in different parts of the area and between crops grown in this area and other areas, where similar soils are found. Thus in this Klamath county we have soil quite similar in character and origin to the soil of the Yakima Valley, Washington, and barring the climatic conditions, soils which should produce as good results. Examinations are also made to determine the amounts and kind of alkali in the soil where it is found in sufficient quantities to be injurious to crops and a map is constructed showing the areas in which it occurs."

These maps, accompanied by a report describing the soils, crops and general agricultural conditions, will be published as a soil survey report and may be secured from Congressman Hawley or by writing to the Chief of the Bureau of Soils, Washington, D. C.

"A soil survey is made for several purposes, the most important of which may be of assistance to chemists, the farmers of the district surveyed which is to supply information to us in farming more successfully. Often we are able to suggest better methods of handling the soil, of adapting crops to soils, and of dealing with alkali and drainage conditions. Sometimes we are able to suggest new crops which may be introduced with profit, or better methods of growing those which are now being raised. The next most important purpose is to supply to prospective settlers and others who may be interested in the development of the country, reliable unbiased information concerning its present and prospective agricultural conditions."

"The work on the Mason contract on the South Branch is progressing nicely. Mr. Mason states that he has over a mile of the ditch opened up. The contract is for seven miles of canal and is to be completed by December 15. There are now 50 men and 100 head of horses on the job. They have three camps established, part of the work being sub-contracted. Mr. Mason states that he expects to have the contract completed by the middle of November. All of the excavation work is now being done with Fresno scrapers, but he will put on wheelers to finish up with."
