The Northern Pacific and Great Northern railroads are jointly engaged in taking the kinks out of mountain travel. They expect to have this accomplished so far as they are concerned by the first of the year when trains will begin running over the Spokane, Portland, and Seattle railroad. The road is as nearly a straight line as it has been possible to make it. It has reduced the distance from Spokane to Portland to 423 miles. Short curves have been abolished and, in consequence, it is said that one locomotive will be able to pull as many coaches over the mountains as it is able to start on level ground. Of course, such a road costs money. Twenty miles of track between Pasco and Kahlotus represent the expenditure of $5,000,000 or $250,000 a mile. Along the bluffs overhanging the Snake river there is one mile that cost $500,000. The surveying and building of this part of the line required the suspending of men over the cliffs with ropes. The railroad tracks are now laid where once these men hung in midair. We have reached the stage in railroad construction where nothing is impossible to our engineers, and the stage in competition where no expense is too great if it results in a saving of time to railroad passengers and of engines to the companies.

Kansas Plans Reform in Road Building

Big strides in road building will be taken by the state of Kansas, according to statements by Walter Roscoe Stubbs, the newly elected governor, who takes office after the first of the new year. Of course there will not be highways across the entire state at first, but the eastern part of Kansas is to build roads, by a systematic plan, so that each link will help to form chains of continuous roads. The project suggested by the new governor include a road from Kansas City to Lawrence and thence to Topeka, the capital of the state. Another project is to mark the old Santa Fe trail, already staked out through the whole of Kansas with red granite monuments, with a permanent road. This road was selected for its moderate gradient and the old route, macadamized, would make one of the finest highways in the country. When the new governor takes office it is understood that there will be in his message a paragraph asking the legislature to create the office of highway engineer or commissioner, so that a comprehensive plan of road building may at once be begun. Material is close at hand, so far as regards the eastern counties of the state. The dirt roads farther west will be given the best treatment devised for their soils.

PORTLAND LETTER.

One of the most important gatherings to be held on the Pacific Coast during 1909 will be the convention in Portland of the Association of American Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations, brought here through the instrumentality of President W. J. Kerr, of the Oregon Agricultural College. The American Association of University presidents, the American Association of Farmers' Institute Workers, the Agronomic Society, and the Association of Agricultural Chemists always hold their conventions at the same place and time as the Association of Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations, and will therefore be here also. Delegates to these meetings comprise college and university presidents, directors of experiment stations, experts in the different bureaus of the Department of Agriculture, and other specialists, and an attendance of between 1200 and 1500 is expected. An extended visit to the A.-Y.-P. Exposition is included in their schedule. The exact date of the convention will be announced later.

J. E. Defebaugh, editor of the American Lumberman, of Chicago, who has bestowed such marked praise on Douglas fir, has the following to say editorially in the current issue of the Lumberman:

"The Pacific Northwest makes a wonderful appeal to every visitor. It is a land of living waters, of golden soil, of mineral wealth beyond comprehension, of forests which will bless mankind when other lands are desolate; a land of mountains, plain and valley; of a people great in intellect, energy, endurance, and kindness. In this golden Northwest, in a climate without the harshness of the North or the enervating softness of the South, these people are building lean Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations for power, or pouring them over the plains, have produced fruitful fields and gardens; they are wrestling from the earth its mineral wealth they are converting the forests into forms of utility and beauty; they are building schools and colleges; the Bible vision of every man dwelling under his own vine and fig tree is realized here, where every bodily need and intellectual want may be gratified. The natural wealth of the country is great and great are its achievements, but better than all this are the people themselves—a chosen race—growing in numbers and in all the accomplishments and graces which make a people mutually useful and happy."

The convention of the Oregon State Dairy Association at Salem last week was the most successful ever held by that body. Washington and California were represented in both attendance and exhibits. The grand prize for the best display of dairy products was awarded to F. A. Schubinger of Salem for an exhibit comprising 26 varieties of cheese. The Douglas Creamery Co., of Roseburg, won the first award for highest scoring creamery butter, P. G. Matcke, of Sweet Home, for highest scoring butter, and T. J. Ballantyne, of Hobsonville, for highest scoring cheese. The dairymen pledged a fund of $150 per month for the employment of an expert to bring dairy conditions throughout the state up to the highest possible standard. An appropriation of $6000 will be asked from the Legislature. President F. L. Kent, of Corvallis, was re-elected, with Carl Abrams, of Salem, secretary. The time of next year's meeting will be chosen to harmonize with the date selected by the Washington dairymen, who meet at Chehalis this week. Hon. C. L. Mitchel, of the Dairy Division, U. S. Department of Agriculture, is in Chehalis for this meeting.

Nathan Straus, at a meeting of the Judeans, a Jewish organization, last week, attacked the contention of Dr. Koch that tuberculosis can not be communicated to human beings by cows affected with the disease. Mr. Straus declared that he had written to Dr. Koch calling upon him to recede from the position he had taken, but that the German scientist had not replied.

The condition of winter wheat on December 1 was 85.3 per cent, as compared with 91.1 on December 1, 1907; 94.1 on December 1, 1906, and a ten-year average of 92.3.

GLAD IT DID SO MUCH GOOD Druggists Hear Much Praise for a Simple Home-Made Remedy

Some remarkable stories are being circulated about town and among the country people coming in of this simple home-made mixture curing Rheumatism and Kidney trouble. Here is the recipe and directions for taking: Mix by shaking well in a bottle one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Take as a dose one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime. No change need be made in your usual diet, but drink plenty of good water.

This mixture has a peculiar tonic effect upon the kidneys; cleansing the clogged up pores of the eliminative tissues, forcing the kidneys to sift and strain from the blood the uric acid and other poisonous waste matter overcoming Rheumatism, Bladder and Urinary troubles in a short while.

A druggist here who has had hundreds of calls for these ingredients since the first announcement in the newspapers last October stated that the people who once try it "swear by it," especially those who have Urinary and Kidney trouble and suffer with Rheumatism.

All the druggists in this neighborhood say they can supply the ingredients, which are easily mixed at home. There is said to be no better blood-cleansing agent or system tonic known, and certainly none more harmless or simple to use.
