A letter received from Wm. V. Mong by J. V. Houston states that the Eckhardt's Ideals, which played to such big houses in Klamath Falls during the carnival, had disbanded in Washington on account of poor business. Mr. Mong joined the company at Medford. He states that members of the troupe were only given four day's notice.

Chas. Horton, the cattleman, who was in the city, states that this has been an ideal winter, so far, for stock. He has not had to feed any of his stock cattle yet and they are doing fine. The pasture is good and the snow has not been deep enough yet to prevent them from reaching the feed. It is the cold rains and storms which are so hard on cattle and stock.
