A PORTION OF THE CASCADE COURT.

The Palace of Oriental Exhibits forms one of the twelve mammoth display buildings first completed by the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition. Its lines are in pleasing contrast to the Agricultural and Manufacturers' buildings, with which they are grouped, and their position overlooks the beautiful formal gardens and water display of the Cascades and Geysers Basin.

The exhibit placed within the walls of the Oriental building constitutes one of the most gorgeous displays of Far Eastern art and manufactured articles ever shipped from the Orient, and is bewildering in beauty and extent. Not a country of Asia is without representation, and treasures of old and modern art, never before permitted to leave the lands in which they were created, will be seen for the first time in the land of the Occident. The matter of arrangement of the Oriental exhibit has been placed in the hands of the most competent and artistic men at command and its display will be worthy of the magnificent collection.

About the Oriental building are gathered the great buildings housing the United States exhibit and the Alaska, Hawaiian and Philippine displays. One of the largest bandstands in the world will be heard daily.

HOW TO BREED GRADES.

Select the best cows you can find, that is, those that come the nearest to the standard of excellence for the purpose wanted; then select a bull coming in the most eminent degree possible the points of real excellence for the outcome expected, not in fancy breeding but in adaptability to the end sought.

If for milk, the bull must have come of a line of uniform milkers, for here the udder and milk veins are the essential part. In fact, the male must possess the peculiarities characteristic of the breed, and better if from a family of extraordinary excellence.

Start The Herd.

With one yearling bull for each ten two-year-old heifers, selected as stated, and which have not been bred, keep them from contact with other cattle, and especially keep their own bull as much in sight as possible. The next year's produce should be ten calves, one-half of which should be heifers. Geld the steers, and make what use may be desired of them. Rear the heifer calves in the best manner possible, and with their sire and dams when in the pasture, and at other times do not allow them to see strangely marked animals.

At the age of two years breed them to their sire. He will now be four years old, and should be kept simply in good flesh, not really fat, certainly not lean; but strong, vigorous and healthy. When these calves are two years old, breed them to the same sire, and so on to the fourth generation. Thus this produce will inherit 15-16 of the blood of the sire, being the fourth generation from the original sire and dam. They will grade as follows: First generation, one-half bloods; second, three-quarter bloods; third, seven-eighths blood; and fourth, fifteen-sixteenths bred.

Ten Years' Produce.

In one year from the ten cows and one bull, we have ten calves, five heifers and five steers; the second year, ten calves; the third year, ten calves; the fourth year ten calves. This year we have also five calves, the produce of the first year's calves. The sixth year we will have twenty-five calves, the seventh year thirty, the eighth year thirty-five, the ninth year forty, and the tenth year forty-five calves as the produce of the original cows and their progeny, making in all two hundred and forty animals ranging in age from calves to thirteen years old, of which one hundred and twenty-five should be females.

As indicating the heavy movement of colonist traffic this year, officials of the Harriman Pacific lines, including the Oregon roads, estimate the volume to that territory this month and next month at 70,000, against less than 38,000 a year ago. The record Spring movement for colonists was in 1907, when 68,300 were carried West in March and April. In the first four days of March, 1262 colonists went West through Southern Pacific gateways, El Paso and Ogden, as compared with 768 a year ago.

Representative McCall of Massachusetts believes the Philippine Islands should have their independence and that if they were independent they should be neutral territory, so as not to become the theatre of wars among foreign powers. Accordingly he has introduced a resolution requesting the President to open negotiations with the various nations of the globe looking to an agreement for the neutralization of the islands and for the recognition of their independence whenever it is granted by the United States. The preamble to the resolution sets forth that the argument for not giving the islands their independence has been that if the United States abandon them some other nation would take them. This danger, it is set forth, can be removed by an agreement among the nations of Europe and Asia, whereby the independence of the Philippines would be declared and they would become neutral territory.
