PEDDLERS CAN PEDDLE
AND HAWKERS CAN HAWK.

The farmers can now sell their products on the streets of Klamath Falls, the peddlers from Ashland can peddle their fruit, and the auctioneers and hawkers can ply their trade undisturbed or without paying a license into the city treasury, for the City Council has repealed the hawkers' and peddlers' license ordinance. It was a question whether the ordinance could be enforced if anyone desired to fight it, and, besides, a number of the members of the Council were opposed to making the farmers pay a license to come here to dispose of their farm products, and the result was that the whole ordinance was wiped out and the city thrown open for everyone to do business.

UNIVERSITY SUMMER SCHOOL.

This office has just received the May number of the University of Oregon Bulletin, which announces the summer school to be held at the University from June 28th to August 6th. The announcement is important to teachers of Oregon in that the summer session is conducted practically free of charge to their interest at a time when it is possible for them to attend. In the past the larger part of those attending have been teachers. The University believes that it can extend its advantages of library, laboratory, equipment, and teaching force in no better way than through the summer school. The courses offered for teachers cover the greater number of the subjects required in the State examinations.

FAKE ADVERTISING.

All Kinds of Schemes Being Tried to Get Money From the Business Men.

Now that the railroad is here and the date for the celebration of that important event is fast approaching, there is a little matter that ought to be called to the attention of the business men of the city. Following on the footsteps of the opening up of a new country (or the new development of an old one, as is the case here) is a horde of grafters. No line is exempt, but none is quite so prolific as that of the advertising graft. This fact seems to be pretty well understood by many of the business men now, but there still remain a large number who have paid little attention to it.

It can be put down as safe to consider ninety-nine per cent of the propositions presented by traveling advertising promoters as being fakes. In the past two years a good many hundred dollars have been paid out by the business men of this city for advertising that has not returned one cent on the investment. If any business man will stop and consider the various schemes on which he has been roped in and then look around and see how many of them are in evidence, he will find that none are to be found, with the exception of the city directory. This publication is a good one, but if you will notice, it was a local concern that got it out. Fakers do not take so much time for so small a return. They figure on "skinning" a town in a couple of days and getting out with the money.

They pass the word down the line that "the business men of Klamath Falls are 'easy money,'" and then a new scheme makes its appearance. As far as The Herald is concerned, it makes little difference to it financially whether these schemes succeed or not. It calls attention to them simply for the benefit of the business men who have not given the matter a thought. It can name offhand advertising schemes that it knows were absolutely worthless and that cost these same business men over $1,000 during the past two years. The promoters got the money and left the town; the product of their labors could not be found ten days afterwards. And yet hundreds of dollars were paid for it.

There are certain lines of legitimate advertising, and they are very limited. When you go outside of these lines you are throwing your money away. It is simply a question whether you wish yourself to be considered an easy mark by the itinerant advertising grafters, or whether you apply to your advertising the same business methods that successful merchants do.

NATIONAL RECLAMATION ACTS TO BE ATTACKED

SPOKANE, June 7.—Ex-United States Senator George Turner of Spokane has gone to Washington, D. C., to appear before the United States Supreme Court in the noted litigation of the Irrigation, Land and Improvement Company of Arizona against the government. He will first have a conference with Richard A. Ballinger, Secretary of the Interior, with the view of bringing about a compromise, in which event the suit will be dismissed. Otherwise it is expected to attack the constitutionality of the entire reclamation service, as organized by the government.

The case in question began when the government started a reclamation project in Arizona after the company had expended considerable money on its works. The company sued, claiming that through its entrance to the project the government has crippled and practically ruined the private enterprise.

A decision which has a bearing on the case, prepared by Justice Brewer and handed down to the Supreme Court two years ago, intimates that the reclamation work is not legal under the Constitution of the United States. If the Arizona case goes to the Supreme Court the case will be passed upon.

MONEY IN VETCH.

C. C. Brower, who recently returned from Albany, states that he spent about a week in the valley near Albany investigating the crops grown in that section. The farmers are planting a great deal of vetch and it has been a decided success. Experiments made by the Agricultural College at Corvallis have been a great help to the land owners. The land planted to vetch, when properly cared for, will bring a return profit on an average of $60 an acre. Tests made have shown that Klamath county is particularly favorable to the growth of this crop.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church have made arrangements to serve ice cream and cake on Railroad day, June 14th. Watch for further announcements.

IDEAL STOCK COUNTY ATTRACTING ATTENTION.

The Land of Three Hundred and Twenty Acre Homesteads Fast Settling Up.

CLIFF, Ore., June 4.—Very much interest in this part of Lake county by prospective homeseekers is apparent, as shown by the large number of people that have been coming in here daily for the last two months. A large percentage of the filings have been in the vicinity of Fort Rock. But recently many filings have been put on to lands farther southeast and nearer to Lake and Cliff settlements. Notice has been issued by the Lakeview Land Office that all of this county from township 25 south and all of ranges 11 to 23 east of lands still vacant, are subject to the new homestead law of 320 acres, or an additional 160 acres to all resident homesteaders.

A very large acreage of land throughout this valley is being cleared and put into crop. Owing to the almost extreme dry Spring that has prevailed, grain crops are not looking at their best. The weather, however, is getting warmer and cloudy, and indications are more favorable for better crops. Grass on the ranges is good and stock now doing well.

Christmas Lake valley is one of the best grass-producing sections in Southern Oregon. Consequently a fine and profitable stock-growing country. It is predicted that eventually this whole valley will be fenced and the homesteaders and private holdings will invest largely and successfully in stock-raising. The lay of the land in the whole valley is a level plain.

Quite a large amount of land is now held by private owners who scripped it, and some that has been commuted. As to land values, it is hard at this time to estimate the general price it can be bought for. Some of the best can be bought in this vicinity at about $10 an acre.

As to railroads, it is simply up to E. H. Harriman, when he sees fit to build. The final survey runs directly through this valley, emerging from the Cascades through the Walker range in by Fort Rock through to Christmas Lake, thence a little south and near Cliff, on through to the Harney valley country.

There is yet quite a large amount of government land, sufficient for a colony if such wanted to establish itself in one locality. Since the first settlements, some three years ago, it is so far only developed as a grass and stock country, while some have had fair success with grain, such as rye, barley, wheat and oats to a limited extent, and many have faith that it will ultimately produce good yields under proper tillage of the dry farming system.

THE HOME AS A SCHOOL OF GOOD MANNERS.

[Orison Swett Marden.]

Not long ago I visited a home where such exceptionally good breeding prevailed and such fine manners were practised by all the members of the family that it made a great impression upon me.

This home is the most remarkable school of good manners, refinement and culture generally I have ever been in. The parents are bringing up their children to practise their best manners on all occasions. They do not know what company manners mean.

The boys have been taught to treat their sisters with as much deference as though they were stranger guests. The politeness, courtesy and consideration which the members of this family show toward one another are most refreshing and beautiful. Coarseness, gruffness, lack of delicacy find no place there.

Both boys and girls have been trained from infancy to make themselves interesting and to entertain and try to make others happy.

The entire family make it a rule to dress before dinner in the evening, just as they would if special company were expected.

Their table manners are especially marked. At table every one is supposed to be at his best, not to bring any grouch, or a long or sad face to it, but to contribute his best thought, his wittiest sayings, to the conversation. Every member of the family is expected to do his best to make the meal a really happy occasion. There is a sort of rivalry to see who can be the most entertaining or contribute the spiciest bits of conversation. There is no indication of dyspepsia in this family, because every one is trained to laugh and be happy, and laughter is a fatal enemy of indigestion.

The etiquette of the table is also strictly observed. Every member of the family tries to do just the proper thing, and always to be mindful of others' rights. Kindness seems to be practised for the joy of it, not for the sake of creating a good impression on friends and acquaintances. There is in this home an air of peculiar refinement which is very charming. The children are early taught to greet callers and guests cordially, heartily, in real Southern, hospitable fashion, and to make them feel that they are very welcome. They are taught to make every one feel comfortable and at home, so that there will be no sense of restraint.

Fair Warning.

At the New York premiere of Porter Emerson Browne's play, "A Fool There Was" the author was opening telegrams with a trembling hand. One was from Channing Pollock, who does ground and lofty "criticizing" for the magazines, and contained this doubtful greeting: "We who are about to guy, salute you."

Nyal's Vegetable Prescription is indicated in all ordinary diseases of women. This remedy never disappoints, its good effects being perceptible from the very first. It is composed of the purest and the most reliable drugs; mercurials, opiates and other harmful drugs being excluded. The many disconcerting influences to which women are constantly subjected render her liable to many functional disorders that not only tend to destroy her comfort and happiness, but which gradually merge into chronic and serious diseases.

Nyal's Vegetable Prescription is without a peer for the successful treatment of female weakness, painful and disordered menstruation, hysteria, cramps, "bearing down pains," inflammation and falling of the womb. This is a remedy of sterling worth.
