G. N. HACK OF OREGON TRUNK

Statement That 900 Miles of Construction Is Planned, Which Indicates the Bay City as Terminus

Announcement that Great Northern capital, and not that of James J. Hill individually, is backing the Oregon Trunk line, it is predicted, will soon be made. This prediction comes from a source close to Great Northern interests.

Coupled with this statement is the declaration that the Great Northern directors have decided upon the construction of 900 miles of railroad for its southern extension on the Pacific coast.

The building of 900 miles of railroad apparently can mean but one thing, although the report does not name the terminus of the Oregon Trunk line. The distance from Portland to San Francisco by the Southern Pacific is 772 miles, so 900 miles would provide for a road to the California metropolis, and also for the Oregon feeders that are reported to be planned. In addition, the positive statement is made that the Great Northern has purchased the Pacific and Eastern, the railroad now being extended from Medford eastward to Butte Falls and toward passes in the Cascade range of mountains leading into Central Oregon.

It is a well known fact that the Spokane, Portland and Seattle railway, or North Bank road, is owned jointly by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific. The former is Jas. J. Hill's pet road, and he is largely interested in the latter. It has been somewhat taken for granted since the definite announcement was made by John F. Stevens that Hill was backing the Oregon Trunk line, that this meant either the Great Northern and Northern Pacific interests combined or Jas. J Hill individually. It now appears that the Great Northern is the backer, which, of course, means Hill as well.

Hill has also taken a great deal of pride in the North Bank road with which other stockholders in the Northern Pacific are not greatly infatuated as it in effect is a competitor of the Northern Pacific. For some time there have been rumors of impending changes in the North Bank, and it is predicted that John F. Stevens will become president of that railroad. In addition to this the intimation is now given that the Great Northern is planning to take over the Northern Pacific interest in the North Bank as part of the scheme of invading California.

The Great Northern, according to the statements made semi-officially will connect up with the Oregon Trunk line in the vicinity of The Dalles by bridging the Columbia river. This plan will bring the Oregon Trunk into Portland over the Vancouver bridge and into the North Bank terminals.

Inspection of the map will show that via the Oregon Trunk line, North Bank to Spokane and the Great Northern to St. Paul the Great Northern will, with the completion of the California extension, have nearly if not quite, as short a route to San Francisco into the extreme Northern states of the Middle West as any other railroad. California fruit products find an enormous sale in that territory, while shipments by northern routes of perishable freight, it is said, are preferable to shipments over the southern routes, because of the lower temperature. In addition to that, California is now drawing the greater portion of its tourist travel from the prosperous farming communities of the colder northern states.

In fact, several good reasons are named why the Great Northern should invade California. John F. Stevens, president of the Oregon Trunk, is now in the East on a mission connected with the building of the Oregon road. It is said that he is likely to have an announcement of interest to make when he returns, if the information is not given out earlier through Eastern sources.

TOO HANDY WITH HIS GUN

L. L. Lockhart Contended He Was in Oregon, While Warden Claimed He Was in California

L. L. Lockhart, one of the Nimrods of this city, is well qualified to testify to the alertness of the game wardens. A few days since he and a party of friends went to White Lake, on the California and Oregon line, to hunt ducks and geese. Lockhart wandered across the state line into California, or, at least, Deputy Game Warden L. Alva Lewis said he did. The result was that Lewis attempted to arrest him for shooting in California without a license.

The Oregon hunter refused to go with the game warden and started for camp. Lewis drew a gun and ordered him to halt. Lockhart steadfastly maintained that he was in Oregon, and as he had a license to hunt in that state he refused to be arrested and taken into California. He informed the game warden that if he shot him he would have to shoot him in the back, and walked away.

The hunter was not arrested, and at this time no complaint has been lodged against him. Those who are familiar with the occurrence say that the game warden acted very hastily in drawing his gun in an attempt to force a man to accompany him for an alleged violation of a game law.

Doubtless there is considerable illegal hunting in the Klamath basin, but so far no arrests have been reported. If the game wardens followed the tactics of Lewis sportsmen would soon taboo the Klamath country as a hunting ground. While the wardens are to be commended for their alertness in protecting game and in the enforcement of the laws, still there are times when a little discretion could be used to good advantage.

COUNCIL MEETING

Kean & Co.'s Check Is Returned and Morris Bros.' Bid Accepted.

The city council met Thursday and the following were present: Mayor Sanderson, Councilmen Willis, Castel, Hanks, Obenchain and Summers. Councilman Wilkins was absent on account of the serious illness of his grandson.

The question of sewer bonds was taken up, and after a lengthy discussion on the matter the council instructed the city recorder to return to S. A. Kean & Co. of Chicago their certified check for $2,000, which was received with their bid. On investigation it was found that the financial standing of S. A. Kean & Co. was not satisfactory. The check, which was drawn on themselves, was photographed before being returned upon order of the city council. The recorder was also ordered to notify Morris Bros. of Portland that the council would now consider their bid on the sewer bonds, which taking into consideration the fact that the bonds will bear only 5 1/2 per cent interest, makes the change a good stand-off. It is considered doubtful, though, whether actual work will be done on the sewer system this year, owing to the delay which has been caused in investigating the financial standing of Kean & Co.

The council passed to its second reading a new building ordinance, which was submitted by City Attorney Drake.

The water and light question was then taken up and discussed.

The council then adjourned.

Wouldn't Hang the Jury.

An old negro named Ephraim, having been sworn on the jury in a murder trial, for some time resisted a verdict of guilty for no other apparent reason than his strong aversion to capital punishment in general. Finally the foreman explained to him that it was a question either of hanging the prisoner or hanging the jury and that it all depended on him. "Fo' gracious, sah," replied Uncle Ephraim, "on dem reasonments de prisoner an sho' guilty."

LOCATION OF NEW SCHOOL

Residents of Northeast Section of City Claim School Should Be Near Population Center

Saturday there will be held an election for the purpose of selecting a site for the new school house that is to be erected in this district. It is almost certain that it will come to naught, for there is a growing opposition to the location of the school on the west side of the river. The principal objection is raised by residents in the northeastern portion of the city, they contending that the building should be located in that section of the city, inasmuch as the greater percentage of the school children come from that neighborhood. Active steps are being taken to bring the matter to the attention of the property owners interested, in order that they may get out and cast their vote against it.

It is a question if there ever will be a site selected by popular vote. This is due to the fact that one section will vote against the other in such a way as to cause it to lose out, and eventually the selection will have to be made by the school board itself.

The principal objection to the location of the school on the west side of the river is that it places the institution on the extreme edge of the city, and that it will ever be thus. The probabilities are that it will be years before the hills on that side of the river will be occupied by residences, the opponents contend, while if it were located nearer to the northeastern portion of the city it would be closer to the center of population and be in a section that is growing and will continue to grow in the future. It will be along this line that the fight will be carried out, and it promises to grow in intensity until election day, when the largest vote ever cast in school matters will be recorded.

Back Numbers.

"William," said Mrs. Van Gelder to the man of all work, "I want you to clean out that large closet in the hall just outside the parlor. Burn all the old newspapers, waste paper and any other rubbish you may find there."

After a short time she met William in the hall carrying in his arms a huge pile of sheet music, the property of her eldest daughter.

"What are you going to do with Mabel's music?" she asked.

"Why, burn it, sure, as you told me to. It was in the closet there with the other rubbish."

"But I didn't mean the music. Put it back at once."

Noting his mistress' displeasure, William inquired in surprise:

"Why, hasn't she played it all?"

Moan Worship in China.

The fete of the moon is celebrated in China in the eighth month of the year, and this lasts six days. Presents are then made on which the figure of the moon is apparent, and a large pagoda is illuminated. Firecrackers and music add family reunions prevail. A midnight banquet on the last night terminates the feast, and then the descent of the goddess of the moon, which we call the man in the moon, is awaited. She is supposed to visit the earth at this time to grant the wishes of mortals. The moon with the Chinese is the patroness of poetry, and autumn is the poet's favorite season.

SOME FINE PICTURES

OF CRATER LAKE

The finest collection of pictures of Crater lake ever exhibited in this city have been placed on display in the window of G. Heitkemper by C. W. Miller, the McCloud photographer. They have been colored in oil and come nearer conveying to the mind an idea of the magnitude and beauty of Crater lake than anything of the kind ever seen here. The panorama is particularly fine, being free from the disproportionate imperfections usually manifest in work of this kind.

It has been suggested that several of these pictures should be secured by the Chamber of Commerce and placed on exhibition in Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles, with the inscription "Crater Lake, near Klamath Falls, Oregon."

While this plan is not original, it has the elements of truth, which is more than can be said of its predecessor. Cities in the East should be supplied with one of these pictures similarly labeled and they would prove a powerful advertising medium.
