

EASTERN SENATORS AND CONGRESSMEN AGAINST IT

If the West Gets the $10,000,000 Bond Issue It Will Be Only After a Strenuous Fight.

Notwithstanding the fact that the proposed issue of bonds for $10,000,000, to be used in completing the reclamation projects now under construction, will have the support of President Taft and the senate committee on irrigation, it is going to have a strenuous time in passing congress. The following dispatch from Washington indicates that eastern senators and congressmen are already manifesting opposition to the plan:

President Taft's proposal that congress shall authorize the issuance of $10,000,000 worth of bonds in order to raise additional funds with which to complete government irrigation projects in course of construction in the West has already met with unusual criticism in the East, and it is daily becoming more apparent that the legislation when proposed next winter will be vigorously opposed in both senate and house of representatives.

A number of influential Eastern newspapers have criticized the proposed bond issue as unnecessary and inadvisable. These papers reflect the sentiments of many Eastern men in both branches of congress—men who have never been in sympathy with the policy of reclaiming the Western deserts by government aid, and at the proper time these men will line up against whatever bond legislation may be presented.

Cannon Will Lead Opposition.

Speaker Cannon unquestionably will oppose the bond proposition. He was one of the most determined opponents of the reclamation bill when it was before the house and, but for the powerful counter-influence of President Roosevelt, would have killed that measure, notwithstanding at that time he had not yet become speaker. From that day to this Mr. Cannon has been opposed to any legislation which would tend to perfect the national reclamation law, and always he has been successful.

Mr. Cannon, as chairman of the appropriations committee, when he was fighting the irrigation law, predicted that the time would come when congress would be asked to make direct appropriations for constructing irrigation projects, and he declared his purpose to fight all such legislation. The bond issue, it is true, is not in any sense a drain upon the Federal treasury, for it is proposed to redeem the bonds out of the reclamation fund. Nevertheless, Mr. Cannon will enter objection, and his opposition will carry much weight.

Narrow Eastern Views.

Lined up behind the speaker will be that strong Eastern element that has never understood or never believed in the irrigation policy of the government. Among them are men who believe the government should have left the reclamation work to the states; those who believe private enterprises alone should have undertaken the reclamation of the desert, and those who take the narrow view that the government should not enter upon a policy which will benefit only one section of the country.

Before the Eastern peasants or objectors can be won over or a sufficient number of them to make the bond issue a possibility, a campaign of education must be carried on at both ends of the capitol, and these men must be made to understand that practical business methods call for the immediate use of more money than is available in the reclamation fund act at the present time.

Apr Return From West.

If the sectional line is drawn, Western senators and representatives probably will make use of the fact that the tariff bill passed at the recent session was a measure manifestly of greater benefit to the East than to the West; that the West was compelled to bow to the demands of the East before that measure could be passed. Having made that concession to the East the West will demand a return favor on this irrigation bond bill. That argument, even such leaders as Senators Aldrich, Hale and Crane cannot overlook, for those men were deeply indebted to Western senators for their votes on the tariff bill, and those same Western senators will, without exception, be demanding Eastern support of the bond-issue bill.

THIS CITY WILL BECOME COMMERCIAL METROPOLIS

Portland Journal Boosts the Chief City of Southern Oregon.

The following editorial from the columns of the Portland Journal gives some idea of the favorable light in which Klamath Falls stands. It is such faith in her future that is going to make this city, as the Journal truthfully says, "the commercial metropolis of Southeastern Oregon."

"A big store at Klamath Falls has undertaken a worthy effort to show the resources of the country tributary to the town by setting aside space for a display of the products of farm, orchard, atop and mill. It is said that the display has surprised even the most optimistic settler of that new country.

"Klamath Falls is located in a new country, with the railroad line less than a year old. Until recently the section was considered fit only for the stockman and the herder, with alfalfa as cheap winter feed. The old delusion seems to be fast disappearing. Klamath Falls promises to become the commercial metropolis of Southeastern Oregon, largely by reason of its ideal location. Once the country settles a large population will center about the place, and the town will profit by the efforts now made to induce settlement and proper cultivation.

"An exhibit of fruits, grains and grasses kept constantly before the public will have the effect of encouraging diversified farming, of promoting more scientific cultivation of the soil and showing to the world the mystifying results of the mixture of sand and water."

PRESIDENT TAFT AND PRESIDENT DIAZ MEET

President Taft of the United States and President Porfirio Diaz of Mexico met and exchanged expressions of good will Saturday, while the bands and cannons of the two great republics joined their echoes across the Rio Grande.

President Diaz was met at the American approach to the international bridge by Secretary of War Dickinson, Brigadier General Meyer and Governor Campbell of Texas.

After being welcomed to the country by Secretary Dickinson, Diaz was welcomed in the name of the state of Texas by Governor Campbell, and to the city of El Paso by the mayor.

The infantry was drawn up about the house where the meeting of the presidents took place, and when General Diaz arrived came to salute.

Captain Archibald Butt, the military aide of President Taft, emerged from the house as the brilliant entourage arrived at the block, and escorted President Diaz from his carriage to the presence of the president of the United States.

President Taft grasped President Diaz's hand warmly, told him how glad he was to welcome him in the name of the people of the United States, and expressed the hope that the cordial relations that had existed for so many years between the two great republics of the western hemisphere would continue for ages to come.

President Diaz, who speaks English with fluency and accuracy, replied in the same happy vein.

Half an hour later, or shortly before noon, President Taft emerged from his temporary residence, crossed the international bridge, and was received in his turn by President Diaz.

As the Mexican chief had left his soldiers on his side of the river when he came visiting in the United States, so President Taft dropped his military escort at the bridge approach, and rode over the Rio Grande accompanied only by his military aide, Captain Butt.

The ceremonies in Juarez were practically identical with those in El Paso except that instead of receiving the official respects of General Diaz, Mr. Taft paid his own.

SILVER LAKE DELEGATION

If First Trial Proves Satisfactory It Means a Permanent Market for the Future

Another delegation of Silver Lake ranchers arrived in the city Saturday morning, having brought 368 head of cattle for J. C. Mitchell. It consisted of H. Adams, J. S. Cliff, W. Kittridge, W. B. Ousley, Curly Stockwell, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Buick, Kinnear Buick and Charles Fitcher. In speaking of the prospects for this city enjoying the trade of the ranchers of the Silver Lake country Mr. Ousley said:

"We have been keeping pretty close track of affairs down here, and the result has been that most of the people up our way will come to Klamath Falls for their winter supplies. With most of them the thing is an experiment, which, if it proves satisfactory, will result in their doing all of their trading here. The roads are now in fairly good condition, and we appreciate the fact that the merchants of this city are anxious to have our patronage or they would not do such good work on the roads.

"The party that came down here with the Mitchell cattle is going to take back a great deal of merchandise. Within the next three or four weeks there will be many others come here, and the result will be quite profitable to the business men of the city."

Mr. and Mrs. Buick will continue on to Ashland, where they will visit with friends and relatives for the next few weeks.

DRILLING FOR WATER

Scarcely enough can be said in commendation of the work being done at Dhy Prairie by J. R. Edler, whose sheep range from Merrill to Harney lake. The artesian well borer which recently arrived by railroad is now in operation near Keno Springs. Though Edler himself, as is only right, will receive immense benefits, what it means to the settlers and homesteaders of that banner flat can hardly be estimated. Every spring after the snow water disappears, the grass and feed in that country withers and dies for lack of water. The sheep must leave, and the cattle soon follow, and save for an occasional stray band of horses no stock can feed there during the hot summer months. Now, with the wells that Mr. Edler is sinking all this will be changed. For several years past Mr. Edler has used this prairie every spring for his lambing ground, but has been forced to move for lack of feed before the summer set in. With water and possible irrigation the land will be fruitful all summer. The few homesteaders there will be greatly benefitted, as they well know. In a few years this barren tract, flat as a pool table, will be changed from a desert into a fertile garden through the efforts of the biggest sheepman in Southern Oregon.

The part played by the sheepmen in the colonization of this country has scarcely been recognized, yet they have made the way easier for the farmers and ranchers who have followed. In the history of the West they have been ever conspicuous, and in the colonization of Southern Oregon Dave Edler has done more than his share and done it well.

L. H. Sherwood, field manager of the Washington creamery of Portland, is in the city for the purpose of looking over this county as a prospective dairy section. He has spent three days traveling through the Merrill country, and is convinced that there is no locality in Oregon equal to this for dairying. He expects to remain for several days longer prosecuting his investigations.

A deed was placed on record Friday conveying from Colonel W. A. Holabird to Mrs. E. H. Harriman the lot at the corner of Eighth and Main streets.

APPOINTED CHAIRMAN OF PUBLIC HEALTH COMMITTEE

Doctor Hamilton, the local county physician and health officer, received a letter from A. C. Seely, the secretary and treasurer of the Southern Oregon Medical association informing him that he had been appointed chairman of the committee on public health. The other members of the committee are Dr. Shaw of Ashland and Dr. Hester of Jacksonville.

Dr. Pickle of Medford is chairman of the social and entertaining committee, with Drs. Seely and Lockwood of Medford as his associates.

The committee on program and scientific work is as follows: Dr. Swedenburg of Ashland chairman, Dr. Flanagan of Grant's Pass and Dr. Seither of Roseburg.

There are three associations in the state of Oregon formed by the medical men, which recommend to the state board of health measures for the care of the general health of the people of the state. They are the Willamette Valley Medical association, the Eastern Oregon Medical association and the Southern Oregon Medical association, with headquarters at Roseburg. These different associations work and confer together, looking after the health of the people. They are in an even better position than the state officers to know the conditions in the different counties, and to recommend measures for legislation, as the doctors of the various cities under their care are almost without exception members of one or the other of the different associations. Their work cannot be too highly commended, and they should have the earnest co-operation of the people.

HIGH SCHOOL AND BONANZA REPRESENTED

Had Exhibit in the School Display at the Seattle Exposition

Superintendent Dunbar has called the attention of the Herald to the fact that the High School and the school at Bonanza were represented in the school work exhibited at the A.-Y.-P. fair in Seattle. In speaking of the matter Mr. Dunbar said:

"The winning of the award is a source of the keenest satisfaction to me as a citizen as well as a worker in the schools of the city. In addition to the honor that comes to the city schools equal credit is due to the High School and the Bonanza school, both of which were represented in the exhibit. The honor is big enough for all, and will be an incentive for higher aims next time."

Nyal's Vegetable Prescription is without a peer for the successful treatment of female weakness, painful and disordered menstruation, hysteria, cramps, "bearing down pains," inflammation and falling of the womb. This is a remedy of sterling worth.
