

ARGUMENTS TO BE HEARD ON CRATER LAKE ROAD CASE

Leaves Plenty of Time for Beginning
Work Next Spring if Decision Is Favorable.

Slowly but surely the time for a hearing in the Crater lake road case is drawing near, this time December 13th being the date set for the hearing before the supreme court of the state. If nothing arises in the meantime to prevent the attorneys or the court from taking up the case on that date the arguments will be made at that time. This will afford ample opportunity for the court to consider the matter and render its opinion in time to permit of the commencement of work in the spring, provided that decision is in favor of the construction of the road.

It now rests with the superstitious to enter protest against the hearing being held on the date indicated—the 13th. It is to be hoped that it will prove a lucky number in this instance, and that when the decision is handed down it will be along the broad lines of progress and permitting the development of the great natural resources of the state.

The number of visitors to Crater lake this year—aggregating 4,568—is indicative of what it will be when it is opened to the tourists of the world by means of a highway giving easy access. It means that ten times that number will visit it annually for the next few years, the number constantly increasing as the fame of this great natural wonder in spread throughout the world. While it is true that the greatest benefit from this immense travel will be confined to Klamath county, it cannot be denied that other cities of the state, particularly Portland, will be vastly benefited also.

ANOTHER ROAD FOR KLAMATH

Will Follow the Klamath River to
This City and Then Hike Out
For Idaho.

A dispatch from Eureka, Cal., says that George Henderson, the well-known Eureka railroad man, will at the next meeting of the city council apply for a railroad franchise through this city. He has interviewed the different councilmen on the matter and it looks like everything is clear sailing for the road.

That there are big interests behind Mr. Henderson is evident from the fact that the gentleman wants it stipulated that every bidder for the franchise shall put up a forfeit of $25,000.

As near as can be learned the Henderson road is to be built up the coast along the Klamath river, to Klamath Falls, thence east into Idaho, if need be, reaching points on the road where many advantageous connections with other roads can be made.

There is a strong belief that Mr. Henderson is being backed by the Hill interests, and it is also said that the proposed road will be able very easily to make a junction with the Western Pacific.

In order to reach the Klamath from this city it would be necessary to tunnel the Bald mountain ridge between Redwood creek and the Klamath river. It is said that the route has been surveyed for several years.

The road will open up a vast territory rich in undeveloped copper deposits, valuable timber holdings and a fertile agricultural section.

It is a well known fact that for many years Mr. Hill has had in his possession surveys for a road down the Klamath river, but it is doubtful if he will ever use them. His objective point is undoubtedly San Francisco, and while he would open up a country of wonderful resources, it is not likely that he will thus early in the game begin the construction of branches that can as easily be constructed after he reaches his goal. Klamath Falls will welcome a road from Eureka, but it is not likely that it will be called upon to extend the glad hand to this new arrival in the field for many moons to come.

TEACHERS INSTITUTE

Prof. Alderman Says We Are Coming to Regard Work From an Artistic Standpoint.

The following proceedings for the last day of the teachers' institute of last week were received too late for our issue of last week, but for the pleasure of those interested we give them space in this issue.

Wednesday afternoon saw the close of the Teachers' Institute, after a delightful three days' session.

Wednesday morning, after the usual opening exercises, Superintendent Swan addressed a few remarks to the teachers, among other things recommending that teachers from outlying districts request their boards to grant them an extra day to return home, thus allowing them to attend the full session of the institute. He also recommended systems for keeping records of school libraries and showed some report cards which he suggested for use in the public schools. Mr. Dunbar also gave some explanation of the grading system used in the city schools as suggestions for smaller districts.

Cyrus H. Walker of the State Grangers association was then introduced and made a few pleasing remarks. Mr. Walker has the honor of having been the first white child born in Oregon, his parents having been members of the Whitman mission.

The first regular address of the morning was delivered by Mr. John T. Butcher, principal of the County High School. Mr. Butcher's address was strong and forceful as himself. His theme was "The Influence and Effect of Work Upon the Human Character." He defined the purpose of the public school "to line up a system of stimulus which will cause the pupil to act along the line of his highest development"; the duty of the teacher "to hold the child to the most appropriate response of which he is capable," and he expressed it as his opinion that "good, honest, hard, conscientious work is at the foundation of the formation, as well as the reformation, of all character, which is the fruitage of the more abundant life."

Mr. Alderman, in commenting on the speech, suggests the time may be coming when we will learn to look at work from an artistic standpoint and find our greatest pleasure in the work we do.

"The Child We Teach" was the title of the splendid talk which followed. Prof. Alderman gave credit for the most of his talk to a little book which he held in his hand, "Youth; Its Education, Regimen and Hygiene," by F. Stanley Hall. Mr. Alderman said, in part: "We deal with two things—the book and the child. Formerly we emphasized the three Rs; now we emphasize the three Hs—Head, Heart and Hand."

The forenoon session was closed with a forceful and enthusiastic discussion of the institute and its lessons by Superintendent R. H. Dunbar of the city schools. "We will get out of this institute," says Mr. Dunbar, "what we put into practice." He advanced the thought that we can get the most out of our boys and girls by encouragement; that few things are deliberately planned by our pupils, but that they act largely through suggestion. He emphasized the importance of making the pupils responsible for the preservation of the school property, and also the good which springs from a broad sympathy between the school and the home, suggesting that it is a part of the teacher's duty to become acquainted with the parents of their pupils.

Mr. Panek opened the afternoon session with his final lesson in callisthenics, giving the theory of systematic play in the lower grades.

Ex-County Superintendent J. G. Wight gave a good address on the "Personal Influence of the Teacher" and it was well appreciated by all.

After recess Prof. Alderman gave a "Three Talks in One," simply condensing three subjects which we would have enjoyed had the time permitted, and closed the regular session with a beautiful lesson in literature. Superintendent Swan then called for reports from some committees which had been appointed earlier in the session.

The committee on local institutes recommended the division of the county into three sections, the center of each being Bonanza, Klamath Falls and Merrill, and recommended that two or three local institutes be held in each during the year.

The committee on debating and declamation awoke an enthusiastic discussion of the "school fair" idea which will probably bear fruit during the coming year.

The committee on resolutions reported as follows, their report being adopted, and the institute adjourned:

"Be It Resolved, by us, the teachers of Klamath county, in institute assembled, that we voice our appreciation of the excellent service rendered us by our institute instructors during the past three days.

"There, Be It Resolved that we extend our thanks to our worthy state superintendent, J. H. Ackerman; our county superintendent, J. G. Swan; Professors Alderman and Ressler, and all the other instructors who have so ably aided in making this institute a splendid success.

"Be It Further Resolved, that we extend to the officers and teachers of the Klamath Falls schools our thanks for the hearty welcome accorded us and the use of their school buildings.

"We wish also to extend our thanks to the pulpit and press of Klamath Falls for the interest exhibited toward our work.

"Be It Also Resolved, that it is the sense of the teachers of Klamath county that the great state of Oregon should provide normal training for its teachers.

"Be It Further Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the records of this institute and that copies be forwarded to the several papers of the county.

MAMMOTH POTATOES

A. F. Bunnell of Merrill brought to the city last week some potatoes that are wonders for size and smoothness. Some of them have been placed on display in the exhibition booth.

One freak potato looks a good deal like a duck, but it will have to be passed upon by the congregation of knockers before an appropriate name can be chosen for it. Some of the potatoes raised by Mr. Bunnell weigh over seven pounds. They were grown on Stukel mountain, and furnish another demonstration of what can be done here when proper efforts are put forth.

On account of the cave-in on the Southern Pacific the train will not arrive in this city until 10 o'clock in the evening. The leaving time has been changed to 12.05 p. m., this schedule remaining in force until normal traffic conditions on the main line are resumed.

THE INGRAHAM SHOOTING

A preliminary hearing of the case of the State vs. Harry Ingraham was held last Thursday at the courthouse before Justice of the Peace A. D. Miller. H. M. Manning was attorney for the defendant and D. V. Kuykendall prosecuting attorney for the state.

The first witness called to the stand was Chas. Ogden, complaining witness. Ogden testified that after a quarrel with the defendant's father, James Ingraham, concerning a stove which belonged to Ingraham but which Ogden was holding until he should be paid $5.00 for the rent of the building occupied by Ingraham and in which the stove was placed. It seems that Ingraham and his son have a contract for clearing sagebrush off the land round Maney's camp, that he has employed a number of Greeks who sleep in the cabins owned by Ogden, rented to Ingraham, and as yet the rent is unpaid.

James Ingraham had gone over to get the stove, but was refused admission even after offering a note for $5. Then a quarrel ensued in which Ogden beat Ingraham and his son and threw them out of the cabin. They left and Chas. Ogden came and stood in the door with something in his hand, according to several of the witnesses, when two shots were fired—one striking Ogden in the wrist.

Two Greeks were then called to the stand, but as their answers were unintelligible, it was decided to leave their testimony out until a suitable interpreter could be procured.

The camp cook, J. J. Z'mois, was then called, and testified that there had been a fight but he was unable to tell who fired the shots.

W. Lawrence was called to the stand, but beyond corroborating the story of the other witnesses, his testimony added nothing.

James Smith was another witness called, who several times contradicted himself as to where the boy

Raises the dough and complies with all pure food laws.

CASE OF STATE VS. HARRY INGRAHAM IS DISMISSED

At the preliminary hearing of the case of the State vs. Harry Ingraham the case was dismissed. The complaining witness in his own testimony stated that before any guns were shown he had assaulted the defendant with a dangerous weapon and, though a great many witnesses were called, the state's attorney failed to make a case against the defendant. It is rumored, however, that some of the most valuable testimony was not available at the time, and the case will probably come up for trial again in a few days. If such is the case the next trial should be interesting. It seems remarkable that two men cannot live across the road from one another without resorting to gun plays and the law to settle their disputes.
