

SALT IN THE GARDEN

'Twas years ago, this story I unfurl. Of one who now is well along in years; But then acting—girl, with nut-brown cur. Whose life was mixed with joys and tears.

It was in April she was born. A winter and two summers, came And passed, ere she could talk 'Cept childish chat she lisp'd her name. Then winter came one night, and brought The first snow-fall of the year; And white the landscape covered o'er— It sparkled bright both far and near.

At break of day the father rose And to the kitchen went, a blaze To set, as was his daily wont. While wife and babes could once more doze.

But soon, with merry, joyous shout, A little tot came toddling out— Had left her mother sleeping, Her nightgown Hung limply down, Her tiny fingers clasping.

Then quickly toward a window turning, A chair she climbed for discerning: What she could see without— The mantle white of snow so bright.

Entranced her wond'ring eyes As she gazed out with great surprise: She to her papa thus spoke out: "Sa't papa, sa't in 'e garden!"

E. W. GILLETTE & CO.

"Won't you walk into my parlor?" Said the Spider to the Fly. 'Tis the prettiest little parlor That ever you did spy."

Of course it was a pretty little parlor, for that Spider was a wise one—wise beyond his generation—and had furnished his pretty little parlor at the store of E. W. Gillette & Co. (Mang Block, Sixth street), where he found that he could get everything that goes to make a home pretty and comfortable at prices that were easily within the means of a Spider that had to do his own drumming up of business. The fable goes on to relate that this particular pretty little parlor was so cozy and "comfy" that Mr. Fly could not resist the temptation to enter, with disastrous results to Mr. Fly, but to the entire satisfaction of the Spider.

The story goes to show that when you want to furnish a home—parlor and all other rooms—if you will hire yourself to E. W. Gillette & Co. you will find that you can furnish it complete in the most comfortable and attractive manner, and make it so pleasing to the eye that an invitation into your "pretty little parlor" will be sure to be met with pleasure. Another thing about this house is that it doesn't take more to furnish the house than it does to build it. But you will find prices so reasonable that you will wonder why you didn't take advantage of it and have all those nice things long ago. Just drop in some day and get their prices on all house furnishings. You will be surprised. You will find that you can afford that easy rocker; that new carpet; one or two of those pretty rugs or art squares that you have wanted so long to brighten up some particular room. And get the prices on some of the other things that you think you can't afford at present; you'll find that they are not beyond reach after all, but that you can afford them now and not have to wait.
