

DEPARTMENT CREATES NEW POSITION

KLAMATH INDIAN SUPERINTENDENT MAY BE PROMOTED

Superintendent to Have General Supervision of All the Indians Within the State

The Department of Indian Affairs is considering the creation of a new position. It proposes to have a State superintendent, whose duty it will be to have general supervision of all the Indians within the State, including the schools and the reservation. This position has been offered to H. G. Wilson, superintendent of the Klamath Indian Reservation.

Superintendent Wilson left Monday morning for Portland and when seen at the train he refused to discuss the promotion further than admitting that he had been offered the position. Mr. Wilson stands well with the Indian department and is one of the best men in the service. He has made valuable improvements on the Klamath Reservation and would be the proper person to have charge of the State work.

Mr. Wilson states that he has taken up the Hawley bill for the opening of the reservation, with the Indians, and it has been approved by them with the exception that they believe they are entitled to a larger timber reserve than the bill provides for.

UPPER LAKE NOTES

Great Klamath Lake is slowly rising, and, judging from similar seasons, has not reached the top yet. There is a lot of snow in the hills yet and when melted it may put the water a foot higher.

The roof of the box factory as well as that of the saw mill will be painted shortly. The factory will also be whitewashed. Alex. Noster will do the work.

Some gardening is being done in the Buena Vista addition and early plants will soon appear above the ground. Likewise the jack rabbit, for he likes lettuce and cabbage and has no fear of the city pound.

The second smoke stack at the mill was raised a few days ago. Lockwood did the job in good shape which is at least commendable, as this is always a difficult piece of work.

There are about twenty dogs, more or less, yelping around the foothills after rabbits or something else they never overhull. If a tax of $100 per head were collected of these dogs and paid out for rabbit scalps it would soon tally ten rabbits to one dog and save said dog a lot of hot-air expense.

O. B. Cavanaugh moved back to his Shippington house a few days ago. He will take a position in the mill when it starts up about the 20th.

A little the tallest music ever heard in this neck of the woods in a coon's age was handed to us by the Day orchestra at the St. Cloud dance last Saturday. It was so fine in fact that we will have another treat from these excellent musicians on next Saturday night. Everyone is invited to be present on this occasion.

John Wesley Gaines, of Tennessee, tells a New York reporter that he never knew rest until he left Congress. Neither did Congress.

Members of the Typewriter Pioneers' Union will scorn Mr. Glavis since his confession that he writes articles for nothing.

SUMMER SCHOOL AT CORVALLIS

Opportunity for Every School Teacher to Learn Something About Industrial Education

CORVALLIS, March 14.—The Oregon Agricultural College has announced its 1919 Summer School, to be held in Corvallis June 29 to August 5.

Special instruction will be offered in Industrial Pedagogy, School Supervision, Primary Methods, Grammar Grade Methods, High School Methods and in preparation for teachers' examinations. The regular courses in all branches of Agriculture, Domestic Science and Art, Economics, English Composition and Literature, Entomology, History and Political Science, Mathematics, Mechanical Drawing, Physical Geography, Physics, Physiology, Surveying, Stenography, and Typewriting will also be given.

Superintendent Frank Rigler of Portland, Supt. J. A. Churchill of Baker City, Catherine Montgomery, supervisor of grades in the Washington State Normal Training Department; Supt. A. C. Strange of The Dalles, Supt. U. G. Smith of Medford, and several other prominent educators have been secured to assist the members of the college faculty.

It is the purpose of the college to make it possible for every public school teacher to learn something at first hand about industrial education and school methods as well as to offer work in the various branches of regular collegiate courses.

No entrance examinations or other educational test will be required, except that no person will be registered who is under 16 years of age.

VALUATION OF FARM PRODUCTS

Census Bureau's Statement Concerns Method of Ascertaining It

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 12.—Inquiries have been made of the Census Bureau whether farm products should be valued by farmers, in replies to census enumerators, at the general wholesale prices or at the actual prices obtained by the producer. It was pointed out by the enumerators that many farmers sell a proportion of their eggs for breeding, at much higher than the regular price. Others sell part or all of their milk, butter and cream at retail. Quite a number sell pure-bred live stock of various kinds at more or less fancy prices. The bureau's correspondents are of the opinion that if sales are quoted in this way in the census reports, the results might be somewhat uncertain as a basis for the average market prices.

Responding to these inquiries, Census Director Durand states that in forming its inquiries and instructions with reference to the value of domestic animals and fowls, the Census Bureau must necessarily follow the lines laid down in the law governing its action. That law requires the bureau to ascertain the number and value of animals and fowls. The value sought is not the value of some particular class of animals or fowls, but of all animals and fowls. Good pure-blooded animals will sell for more, and thus have a greater value, than the poor animals. Where there are many pure-blooded the average will be higher than where the opposite condition of affairs prevails, but, as a matter of fact, the pure-blooded animals are so thoroughly distributed that they left no appreciable influence upon the average published by the twelfth census, except in the case of young colts of the State of New Jersey.

No appreciable influence on the average price or value of eggs, milk or butter is observed in consequence of the practice mentioned by the enumerators. The high-priced eggs, milk, butter, etc., are found about as much in one part of the country as in another. The average which the census will publish is not that of a particular class of eggs, but of all eggs produced. It is the same for all animals, fowls and domestic products. The relative number and value of the animals and products to which specific attention has been called does not exert, for the country as a whole or for many of the States (an influence sufficient to make the average published by the census materially different from the average market prices.

HORSE SALE

All lovers of good horses will do well to attend the horse sale at the Ankeny ranch four miles from Klamath Falls, Friday, March 25. As pretty a bunch of all-purpose horses will be offered at this sale as have ever been offered in Klamath County, or in Oregon. These horses were selected from such well known bands of horses as the W. C. Dalton horses at Tule Lake, the Merrill band of horses of Langell Valley, and the famous Horse Shoe brand of Lake County. If you want something good weighing from 1100 to 1400 pounds, this sale is the place to get it. Remember the date, Friday, March 25. Free lunch on the ground. 1t-d&w.

NOTICES BIG CHANGE IN THREE YEARS

PHILIP S. BATES, OF PORTLAND, IS SURPRISED

Col. Hofer, of Salem, With a Party of Portland People Expected Here Tonight

"The change in Klamath Falls has been wonderful since I was here three years ago," said Philip S. Bates, of Portland, who was here Monday. Mr. Bates is editor of the Pacific Northwest, the greatest farm magazine on the Coast, and he is considered one of the best posted men in this line in the West. Three years ago Mr. Bates made a trip to Klamath County and came in one the stage by way of Pokegama. He was not prepared for the wonderful change that has taken place in Klamath Falls since that time and since the arrival of the railroad, and therefore he spent the day taking in the city and noting the changes.

Mr. Bates states that Portland is going after the trade of this section, now that they have been given the same treatment in respect to freight rates as San Francisco. In speaking of the passenger service he said that while the local train waited for the train from the south, he noticed that it often left not over fifteen minutes before the arrival of the train from the north. "A lot of our people," said Mr. Bates, "have purchased property in your city and are interested here, and we are entitled to as much accommodation as are the people from California, and this matter will be presented to the Portland office of the railroad to see if we cannot get a better schedule. There will be hundreds of people coming here from Portland this summer and we feel that there are more desirable places to spend our vacations than at Weed."

According to Mr. Bates, a party of Portland people are expected to arrive in Klamath Falls this evening or tomorrow. Among them will be Colonel Hofer, of Salem, editor of the Journal.

GARFIELD CLOSING EVIDENCE IN BALLINGER-PINCHOT CASE

All Oral Testimony Except Wilson's Has Been on Pinchot's Side, and Much of It Circumstantial

United Press Service.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 10.—The prosecution practically ends its case with Garfield's testimony in the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy today. There are already over 1500 printed pages of testimony, much of the evidence being circumstantial and depending largely on inference. All of the oral testimony, except Wilson's, has been on Pinchot's side. From the testimony the attorneys for Pinchot believe they have established the following contentions, which it is now up to the Ballinger witnesses to disprove:

"That Ballinger, as Land Commissioner and Secretary of the Interior, had more than a 'formal knowledge' of the Alaskan coal land investigation, and while commissioner unsuccessfully attempted to force these claims to patent. That as Commissioner he directed final steps for securing the Cunningham claims, estimated to be worth $90,000,000.

"That as a member of the Republican National Committee, Ballinger sought Glavis to abate activities until certain interests involved in the Alaskan cases had contributed. That Wickersham, reporting on Glavis' charges to the President, suppressed material evidence. That Wickersham's accusations that Glavis had procrustinated in criminal prosecutions were unjustifiable, because Glavis attempted and was refused assistance by the Federal authorities. That the Land Office appointed Sheridan, an inexperienced, inefficient law school graduate, to handle the Cunningham cases. That Ballinger asked Glavis not to attempt to obtain evidence from Congressmen who were claimants for Alaska lands. Ballinger appeared before the House Committee in favor of the Gale bill, which the prosecution declares would validate the Cunningham claims."

The Ballinger side scored a point already by Pinchot's practical admission that his evidence was not obtained first hand, but was a series of inferences and conclusions.

30 LAWMAKERS TO GREET ROOSEVELT IN NEW YORK

ALBANY, N. Y., March 10.—A joint committee of ten Senators and twenty Assemblymen, to represent the Legislature of New York State at the ceremonies in New York City in honor of the return of former President Roosevelt, is provided for in a joint resolution which will come up for consideration this week. The resolution appropriates $2000 for the committee's expenses.

AS TO A PETITION FOR PARDON

To the Editor of the Herald:

It will be remembered that a trifle more than a year ago this county was convulsed and excited as it had not been for many years over the commission of a series of crimes in the home and cattle stealing line, and the result of that excitement was the conviction and sentence of four men for the theft of a car load of horses and their shipment to a California market. One of those men was Charles Liskey. Of the four men he was the only one who preserved a bold front and did not confess to a share in the transaction. The proof was so conclusive that the jury had no doubt of his guilt and was out only a few minutes. His sentence was a light one—only six years. Now, however, I hear that a petition for his pardon is in circulation. I think it unfortunate for him and the public, for reasons which are herewith appended:

It is a trite saying that almost everybody will sign a petition, and for the most trivial reasons; and that seems to be measurably true in this case. Although I can hear nothing to the effect that Liskey has repented or confessed his fault, numbers of people, I understand, have appended their names to the paper asking the Governor to set him free; and among them are names of those who were direct losers of property at the hands of the party convicted. This seems strange, in view of the fact that the present is the first year in many that no losses of stock from the range have been prevalent. While this is not legal proof of the source of the losses incurred in the past years, it is quite convincing, nevertheless. This community is now at peace; its herds and flocks are safe and secure. Others may have been engaged in the stealing of cattle, horses and in the raiding of poultry houses, but they have kept their hands off during the past year. The conviction of those men was a great triumph for the moral forces of the community. A certain man was asked if he had signed this petition for pardon, and he gave an evasive answer. "I might have signed it," said he. Just then another man stepped up and said: "I signed it, and I think was right, too. It'll keep them off of us (referring to the Liskey family.) But," he added, "it will do them no good. The judge and the prosecuting attorney won't sign it, and they can't get him pardoned without their help." And there you have it. These men are prominent people. In a fair way they represent the average citizen. They are afraid of the malign influence of the Liskey boys—of their power or disposition to hurt them (which is far more imaginary than real)—and were willing to throw the onus—the burden—of a public duty upon the court and the public officials. Is it not a sad condition to represent the average citizen's backbone—his moral stamina? Suppose the men who made up the Nation's defense in '61 had said, "I'm afraid those southern mean to fight; but we have Lincoln at the helm; he'll save the Union; I won't go and risk my life"—what would have become of this country? Fortunately, the men of the North had the moral courage and the patriotism to shoulder the burden the hour placed upon them, and the Union was saved. They were not mollycoddlers. Just so it is in time of peace; every good citizen is often called upon to serve the community's interests, and he has no moral right to palm that duty off on somebody else—who has burdens of his own to bear; and it is a shameful and cowardly thing for him to do.

Now, in a personal sense, I have no grievance against Charles Liskey or any of the members of his family. They are all to be pitied. He and I were friends before I became convinced that he had gone wrong. And I am very sorry that he is not still a respected member of this community. In his present and past state of mind I think it unsafe for him to be at large, and his release now would defeat the ends of justice. With me a sense of public duty commands me to stand by that public's interests, and demands that he shall at least show that he is repentant and determined to live an honest, upright life; one that is not only straight, but is above suspicion. He ought not only to do that but he should take back the threats he made at the time of his trial to "get even" with the officers of the law, and to recognize the fact that they were simply doing their duty as the law required. When this is done there may be some justice in seeking his pardon.

Respectfully submitted, C. W. SHERMAN, SR., Dairy, Ore., March 11, 1919.

FAIRBANKS RETURNING HOME

LONDON, March 12.—Ex-Vice-President Fairbanks sailed from Liverpool today for America after his tour through Europe. When previously interviewed by the Evening Post he said that he wouldn't say what his policy would be, but he may re-enter politics at no distant future. He declined to state what field of politics he would re-enter.

THE PAINTING VALUED AT $10,000

"SHEPHERD AND HIS FLOCK" IS CUT FROM FRAME

Stolen From European Art Room in Museum at Golden Gate Park Yesterday

United Press Service. SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., March 14.—The authorities are thoroughly mystified and today are still without a clue to the robbers who yesterday cut the famous painting of the "Shepherd and His Flock" by J. T. Millet, from its frame in the European art room at the museum at Golden Gate Park. The picture was valued at $10,000. Two policemen were on guard in the building at the time of the theft.

NOTICE TO ORCHARDISTS

The time of the year has now arrived when the trees and shrubs need cleaning up and pruning preparatory to the spraying with sulphur and lime solution.

This work, if thoroughly done now, will reduce the danger from insect pests and fungus diseases later in the season. All prunings, leaves and other refuse should be promptly burned. I would recommend that all trees that were in any way infected with the woolly aphid last season have the dirt removed for about two feet around the trunks just before spraying, so that the surface roots may be exposed and well treated at the same time as the trunk and limbs.

Everyone who has a tree, berry bush or rose bush should take pride in thoroughly treating the same, else you may be the cause of breeding pests to injure your neighbors' trees. Delays at this time are dangerous, while a few hours well spent among the trees now will later repay all your trouble and cause you to feel proud of your horticultural achievements.

Do it now. O. A. STEARNS, Fruit Inspector.

KILGORE-RANKIN

Mr. Harold H. Kilgore and Miss Eula Bee Rankin were united in marriage last Saturday at the residence of Mrs. Louis Gerber in this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. B. Griffith in the presence of immediate relatives. The young couple left after the ceremony for their future home near Bonanza.

The groom is one of the prosperous young ranchers and stockmen of the upper country and has recently purchased the Nichols ranch three miles from Bonanza. The bride has been a resident of Langell Valley for the past two years and has many friends in this city and the county.

With Judge Lionel R. Webster in charge, headquarters have been opened in Portland by the Oregon Good Roads Association and it is planned to wage an active campaign constantly for good roads throughout the State. Funds to carry on the work have been subscribed, and not only will good roads legislation be fathered, but demonstrations of approved road making will be carried on and it is hoped to secure the appointment of a highway commission. Much good is expected to result from the campaign.

Tungsten incandescent lamps are now made as small as one-half of a candle-power.

Nyal's Vegetable Prescription is indicated in all ordinary diseases of women. This remedy never disappoints, its good effects being perceptible from the very first. It is composed of the purest and the most reliable drugs; mercurials, opiates and other harmful drugs being excluded.

The many disconcerting influences to which woman is constantly subjected render her liable to many functional disorders that not only tend to destroy her comfort and happiness, but which gradually merge into chronic and serious diseases.

Nyal's Vegetable Prescription is without a peer for the successful treatment of female weakness, painful and disordered menstruation, hysteria, cramps, "bearing down pains," inflammation and falling of the womb. This is a remedy of sterling worth.
