TEDDY ACCORDED A GREAT WELCOME

HANDS OUT THE USUAL AMOUNT OF "D-E-ELIGHTED" TALK

The "Ambitious Politicians" of the State and Nation Are All on Hand to Greet Him

United Press Service.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Well, the whole nation, in fact, the whole world may now breathe a sigh of relief. Teddy's home again! And what a welcome! It seemed as if Napoleon, and Alexander, and Caesar, and Nero, and a few more of the big bugs of old were on their way to U. S. A. The guns boomed and the whistles blew, and the people yelled—though the Terrible Ted did not hear the latter.

The Kaiserine Augusta Victoria reached the Ambrose channel at 7:05 o'clock this morning, and was off quarantine at 7:45. Roosevelt boarded the revenue cutter at 8:30 a. m., and when it steamed away from the great ocean liner the gunboat North Carolina boomed out its salute of the mighty conqueror of the African jungles. It was a wine to his lips, for he clapped his hands like a school boy, crying out in the exuberance of his self-satisfaction—"Look at them! Aren't they wonderful, beautiful? Can you blame me for wanting that kind of a navy? It is worth coming all the way to see."

All the way down the channel the ex-president was greeted by the shrieks of whistles and the cheering of hundreds of thousands of people who had come out to extend to him the warm-hearted welcome they felt. Mayor Gaynor welcomed the ex-president on behalf of the city and state of New York and the American nation. In reply to the mayor's words of greeting Mr. Roosevelt said:

"I wish to thank you and your committee and through them the American people for this greeting. I need not say that I am deeply moved. No man could receive such a greeting and fail to feel very proud and very humble. I have been away about a year and a quarter and have thoroughly enjoyed myself. Now I am glad to be back in my own country and among the people whom I love, ready and eager to do my part in helping to solve the problems that must be solved, if the greatest democratic republic of the world is to see its destinies and rise to the highest level of its hopes and opportunities. This is the duty of every citizen, and it is particularly my duty. Any man who has ever been honored by being elected to the presidency of this nation is forever rendered debtor to the people and is bound throughout his life to remember this prime obligation, so that the people may never regret that they once placed him at the head of their nation."

Crowds of politicians are waiting to confer with Mr. Roosevelt. Probably few of them will see him. There will be no conferences today, and probably not before the middle of next week. Most of the conferences will be held in the offices of the Outlook. The first topic to be considered will be the Republican situation in New York state.

The reception to Colonel Roosevelt started at daybreak this morning, when the Hamburg-American liner Kaiserin Augusta Victoria came abreast of Fire Island, down the Long Island coast, 60 miles out of New York harbor. It continued at Quarantine and in a naval pageant up the Hudson river; it reached a climax in Battery Park, where the official welcoming took place, and became a real American greeting in which Theodore Roosevelt was the guest of his friends, the "common people," in the march up Broadway and Fifth avenue.

It had been publicly announced that the Kaiserine Augusta Victoria would reach Quarantine exactly at 9 o'clock, at which hour the formal reception was to begin. It was secretly arranged, however, that the vessel should come up to Quarantine at 7:45 this morning, so that Colonel Roosevelt's immediate family should have some time with him before the public took him in charge.

A large number of excursion boats, yachts and press tugs gathered at Fire Island last night and were there when the Kaiserin hove in sight. Among the boats were the Albany, bearing the Republican Club of New York; the Nassau, carrying 300 of the Roosevelt Neighbors' Association of Oyster Bay; the Commodore, with the Hamilton Club of Chicago, and several private yachts which gave Colonel Roosevelt a noisy salute as soon as the Kaiserin was close enough for the figure of the returning hunter to be discerned.

The Kaiserin didn't slow down, but continued to Quarantine, where she anchored promptly at 7:45, while the health officers went on board. No one was allowed to board the liner until she had been formally inspected and given her health clearance papers.

At 5 o'clock, just about daybreak, the revenue cutter Manhattan, which had been placed at the disposal of the Roosevelt family by Collector of Customs William Loeb Jr., Colonel Roosevelt's former secretary, made her way to Quarantine and was hove to there when the liner anchored. On board the Manhattan were only the immediate Roosevelt family, including Rear Admiral W. S. Cowles (retired) and Mrs. Cowles, the latter Mrs. Roosevelt's sister; W. S. Cowles Jr., Douglas Robinson and wife, the latter the sister of Colonel Roosevelt; T. Douglas Robinson and wife; Monroe R. Robinson, R. D. Roosevelt and wife; G. Hall Roosevelt, J. W. Alsop and wife, the latter Mrs. Roosevelt's niece; Theodore Roosevelt Jr. and his fiancée, Miss Eleanor B. Alexander, and her mother, Mrs. H. A. Alexander; Archibald B. Roosevelt and Quentin Roosevelt, the younger sons of Colonel Roosevelt; Nicholas Longworth, the ex-president's son-in-law; Mr. and Mrs. W. Elmer Roosevelt; George R. Roosevelt, Miss I. S. Wagner, formerly Mrs. Roosevelt's social secretary, and the Misses Langdon and Osborn, neighbors of the Roosevelts at Oyster Bay.

As soon as the Kaiserin was passed by the health officers, the Manhattan drew up alongside and the Roosevelt party boarded the cutter. There was a happy scene as the Colonel and Mrs. Roosevelt greeted their sons and other relatives. In the party which boarded the Manhattan were Col. and Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. Alice Longworth, Kermit and Ethel Roosevelt, Mrs. E. Reed Merritt, a cousin of the ex-president, and the party of newspapermen who have been constantly with Roosevelt since he emerged from the African jungle at Renk on the White Nile.

The transfer was completed by 8 o'clock and the Manhattan steamed up and down in the Narrows while the Roosevelt party breakfasted.

The Naval Parade.

While the Roosevelt party was thus engaged the naval flotilla that was to act as escort gathered. The vessels, 300 in number, were divided into twelve divisions, each commanded by a vice commodore, all under the general command of Commodore Fred B. Dalzell, on board the tug Dalzelline. The first and second divisions consisted of steam ships and steam boats, each laden to the gunwales with cheering thousands who almost fought for advantage points from which to get the first glimpse of the returning nimrod. The ships and boats were all brilliantly decorated and presented a splendid sight as they stretched in two long lines, 200 feet apart, back to the Robbins Reef lighthouse on Kill von Kill. The third division, to the rear, was composed of private yachts, a large number of which, flying signal flags from every peak, greeted the former president. Behind the yachts lay the tugs, steamers, launches and small craft, the entire line being several miles in length.

At 7:45 o'clock the revenue cutter Androscoggin had left the battery for Quarantine, carrying the Roosevelt reception committee, of which Cornelius Vanderbilt was chairman. Among those on board the Androscoggin were Chairman Vanderbilt, William Loeb Jr., Judge E. H. Gary, of the steel trust; John Hays Hammond, Lewis Nixon, the ship builder; Herman A. Metz, former comptroller of the City of New York; Levi P. Morton, J. Bronson Reynolds, a member of Col. Roosevelt's famous "tennis cabinet;" Judge J. W. Herard, of the supreme court of the State of New York; Maj. Gen. C. W. Roe, of the New York National Guard; Geo. J. Gould, Geo. R. Sheldon, former treasurer of the Republican National Committee; Ogden Mills, William G. McAdoo, builder of the Hudson river tunnels; Henry Clews and Jacob Schiff, bankers; Joseph H. Choate, Francis K. Pendleton, former corporation counsel of New York; Cesare Condi, noted Italian banker; Theodore P. Shonts, R. A. C. Smith, Commodore of the New York Yacht Club and chairman of the Roosevelt harbor display committee; Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia University;

Paul Morton, of the Equitable Life and a former cabinet officer under Roosevelt; Henry W. Taft, Geo. B. Cortelyou, president of the Consolidated Gas Company, and another former cabinet officer; Gustav H. Schwab, William Nelson Cromwell, Rear Admiral Leutz, commandant of the Brooklyn navy yard; Lloyd C. Griscom, chairman of the County Republican Committee; Gen. McCoskey Butt, of the New York National Guard; Col. H. H. Treadwell, Dr. Lyman Abbott and 200 other prominent New Yorkers who had been appointed members of the Roosevelt reception committee by Mayor Gaynor. The Androscoggin was accompanied by the revenue cutters Mohawk, loaded with congressmen, senators, governors and cabinet officers, and the Seneca, which Collector Loeb had turned over to out-of-town newspaper men. Promptly at 9 o'clock the Androscoggin went alongside the Manhattan at Quarantine and Col. Roosevelt and the newspaper men were removed. Mrs. Roosevelt and the remainder of the Roosevelt family remained on the Manhattan.

As Colonel Roosevelt, attired in frock coat and wearing a high hat, stepped on board the Androscoggin, the tug Dalzelline sounded three sharp blasts from her siren. This was the signal for the noisiest demonstration heard in New York bay in many a day. Every craft opened its whistle wide and for several minutes the din was terrific. Colonel Roosevelt made an effort to say something to the welcoming committee and the welcoming committee tried to say something to Colonel Roosevelt, but it was all lost to the crowd in the noisy salute. It was the first part of America's welcome to her returning ex-president.

As the sirens ceased, the Androscoggin started up the bay, preceded by a whole fleet of revenue cutters and police patrol boats. Immediately behind the Androscoggin came the Manhattan, bearing the Roosevelt family; the Mohawk, the Seneca, and the Dalzelline.

This tiny fleet headed the procession, passing through the long lines of craft, which dipped their colors to the returning chieftain and then fell into line in order. The Androscoggin, with Colonel Roosevelt on the bridge, sped up the Upper bay, and, following close along the Jersey side of the Hudson river, proceeded to the stake boat, anchored off Fifty-ninth street.

All the piers along the Jersey and New York side of the river were decorated and packed with people to cheer Roosevelt, while every boat that was passed on the river sounded its welcome. It was a continuous ovation along the entire river front, and Colonel Roosevelt was compelled to lift his hat many times and bow to the commuters on the passing ferry boats who manned the rails and cheered him enthusiastically.

At Fifty-ninth street the Androscoggin rounded the stake boat and headed down stream, followed by the other boats in the parade. As the Androscoggin proceeded the rest of the fleet passed in review, the vessels taking a heavy list to starboard as the thousands on board strove to get another and closer glimpse of the national hero. Nearly every one of the craft carried a brass band, which played as the cutter passed on toward the Battery.

The Land Ceremonies.

While the harbor pageant was taking place, Battery Park, where Col. Roosevelt was to land, and Broadway and Fifth avenue, along which he was to pass, were filling. It is estimated that in Battery Park alone, where the formal welcoming took place, 150,000 persons had gathered.

Two hundred feet from the entrance to the building of Department of Docks and Ferries, on the western seawall of the Battery, had been erected the stand on which Colonel Roosevelt was to be received by Mayor Gaynor. On this stand were gathered 250 of the most notable men of America, including senators, cabinet members, governors of states, representatives and professional and business men.

About the stand were 200 massive pillars, gaily decorated and joined by garlands of flowers. In the space they thus marked off stood 3,000 distinguished guests. Near the reception stand was a private stand erected for Mrs. Roosevelt and her personal friends. This box was loaded with rare roses and orchids. The great Whitehall building, the customs house and the other buildings facing Battery Park, were festooned with decorations. The park was so packed with spectators that the police were compelled to close the side streets and prevent the entry of others, fearing that in a panic hundreds might be precipitated over the seawall into the bay.

Nearly every person in the great assembly wore the official badge, a silvered coin, bearing the profile of the ex-president in bas relief. The medals worn by the members of the reception committee were silver, dangling from a blue and white ribbon, the official colors of the City of New York. The badge of the Rough Riders was pendant from a yellow ribbon, the cavalry color. All were suspended from a bar, which showed the coat of arms of New York, the American eagle, and the name of the association. A single gold medal of like design was presented to Colonel Roosevelt.

Promptly at 11 o'clock, the Androscoggin, at the head of the returning fleet, tied up alongside the pier and Colonel Roosevelt and the reception committee came ashore. The Androscoggin was followed in turn by the other cutters, which disembarked their passengers, while the remainder of the fleet hurried back up stream to unload their passengers, that they might take part in the land reception uptown.

Mrs. Roosevelt and her party proceeded at once to their private box, which contained only Mrs. Roosevelt, Nicholas Longworth and wife, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Cowles and son, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. T. Douglas Robinson, Monroe D. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Alsop, Theodore Roosevelt Jr., Miss Alexander, Mrs. Alexander, Kermit, Ethel, Archie and Quentin Roosevelt and Miss I. S. Hagner.

As soon as Mrs. Roosevelt and her party had taken seats, Colonel Roosevelt and the reception committee advanced over the platform to the receiving stand. This 200-foot walk was raised six feet in the air, so that Colonel Roosevelt passed above the heads of the assembled thousands, giving them all a good look at him. As he came from the pier house and advanced toward Mayor Gaynor, who was waiting for him with outstretched hands, Colonel Roosevelt was given the noisiest vocal greeting it had ever been his fortune to hear. From massed bands there came the roar of music; from the thousands of throats came one hurrah that lasted for several minutes.

Among those on the reception stand were Governor H. B. Quinn of New Hampshire, Governor Franklin Fort of New Jersey, U. S. Senator F. P. Flint of California, Dr. Charles P. Neill, Commissioner of Labor; Lawrence O. Murray, Comptroller of the Currency; Senator H. C. Lodge of Massachusetts, Congressman Hamilton Fish, Henry M. Goldfogel, William Sulzer, Herbert Parsons, W. W. Cocks and C. V. Wornes of New York; Congressman John W. Langley of Kentucky, Edward R. O'Malley, Attorney General of New York; A. M. Cheney, Superintendent of Banks of New York; Gifford Pinchot, former Chief Forester; Dr. L. S. Rowe, of the American Academy of Political Sciences; Gen. Luke Wright, ex-Secretary of War; Fire Commissioner Waldo, Dr. Booker T. Washington, and others equally prominent.

In addition to the reception committee which escorted Mr. Roosevelt to the stand were Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, Secretary of the Navy Meyer, and Capt. Archibald Butt, the president's personal aide, the latter bearing a personal letter to Colonel Roosevelt from his successor in office.

As soon as the terrific cheering ceased sufficiently for his voice to be heard, Mayor Gaynor, in the name of the people of New York and speaking as a representative of the American nation, welcomed Colonel Roosevelt back to his home.
