

CELEBRATION WAS SUCCESS

PARADE WITNESSED BY CROWDS
FROM ALL PARTS OF COUNTY

ILLUMINATED PARADE TONIGHT AT 9

All Are Asked to Take Part and Help
Make It a Success—Public Wedding From Goddess Float

The Fourth of July celebration here Monday was one of the finest ever held in this portion of the state, and the committee having the affair in charge deserves a great deal of credit for the success of the undertaking.

The parade in the morning was under the direction of Sheriff Barnes, Mrs. Harry Stills and Guy Merrill, who were in the lead. Following these came several of Klamath Falls' beautiful women and girls on horseback.

The splendid black team belonging to Guy Merrill and driven by two pretty women, Mrs. J. Ross Anderson and Mrs. W. O. Smith, took the silver cup for the best lady's turnout, and the ladies presented the cup to M. Merrill, as he was the owner of the splendid animals, although the simple but beautiful decorations were their own ideas.

Following the band was the float on which rode Miss Maysell Sanderson, the Goddess of Liberty.

Behind this float came the Hay-makers calthumpian band. Then came the float entered by the Red Men in the order named: Gun Store, Star Drug company, the city float, Shive Bros., the Boston Store, the Portland Store and John Bauer's wagon. The latter was one of the most unique in the procession. It represented the products of the gardens which Mr. Bauer cultivates, and besides being out of the ordinary the fertility of the soil of this valley was exceedingly well presented. The float attracted a great deal of attention, and many thought it deserved the first prize. This, however, was awarded to the next float in the parade, that belonging to the Merrill Record, and it also was exceedingly clever as well as a good advertisement for the energy and enterprise of the publisher of that paper, Mrs. Nate Otterbein. In the float was a printing press operated by the publisher and her son, and the copies of the Record which they printed as the parade passed along were thrown to the bystanders on the sidewalk. The last float in the line was that from Midland, and it showed conclusively that the citizens of that little city to the south of us are strictly up to date.

Bringing up the rear were the automobiles of Sheriff Barnes, Alex Martin Jr., Mr. Clapp, Dr. White George R. Hurra, Fred Schallack, Mr. Clarke, Will Baldwin and Judge Baldwin.

At the courthouse square after the reading of the Declaration of Independence by Miss Grace Nickerson, Mayor Sanderson welcomed the visitors with the following remarks:

Fellow Citizens—Standing today beneath and surrounded by this emblem, I am going to remind you that 133 years ago, or one year after the adoption of the Declaration of Independence, the American congress passed a resolution stating that the flag of the United States should be thirteen stripes and the union of thirteen stars on a blue field. Thus originated the beautiful flag we now call our own. The flag symbolizes the Union. It is beautiful as a flower to those who love it. It is the symbol of all we are and of all we hope to be. It means history wonderful and glorious. It means liberty—free hands, free lips to all except the enemies of our freedom. It also means protection for every American standing under its folds, whether at home or abroad. It is the symbol of the reign of law. It means law protected freedom, law protected labor, law protected wealth and law protected happiness. Not only have our brave fathers set up this banner in the name of God over the well-won battlefields of the Revolution, but think where, also, their descendants have carried it and raised it in conquest and protection. What countries and seas has it not visited and been the herald of a better day.

Fellow citizens, it becomes my pleasant duty to extend to you all the hearty welcome of Klamath Falls, and to place in your hands the key that insures you the freedom of the city. Let every citizen and visitor remember that we have gathered here today for the purpose of commemorating the most important event in the history of our nation. Under the sheltering folds of "Old Glory" let your minds dwell for a moment amid the sacred memories of the past, then turning your faces again to the future permit yourselves to enter heart and soul into the pleasures of the day.

Mr. O'Neil, the orator of the day, was introduced by Mr. Dunbar, and in part said as follows:

Fellow Citizens—It is with pride that I thank you for the honor you have conferred upon me by calling on me to address you today. July 4 is a day upon which the loyal hearted American pays tribute to the memory of the men who 134 years ago signed the document that made possible the American republic. It is a time when we Americans should stop to consider its meaning and weave into the hearts and minds of the young people of the country the lessons of liberty that everyone should hold as the richest prize of his inheritance.

The future of the American nation must depend upon the younger generations of today, for the time is coming when conditions will arise that will tax the manhood and womanhood of America and call out all that is good in their characters. We have reached a point today that should cause us to stop and consider how far we are going to go; whether we shall continue as hero worshippers or turn in our mad plunge and examine into and support the truths of conservatism and justice. We should not forget what the emblem of the stars and stripes stands for, and in the exercise of our sovereign citizenship should ever remember that we have a solemn duty to perform both to ourselves and posterity. The government is right, but some of the privileges exercised thereunder are wrong. And that wrong rests with each and everyone of you. There is no wrong so bad but what you have the power to right, and if you fail so to do you are wanting in your duty as an American citizen.

In the course of his remarks Mr. O'Neil called attention to the wrongs that brought the war of revolution, briefly sketched the events of that great war and the succeeding results, and urged his hearers to profit by the sacrifices made by the founders of this republic. His speech was one of the most scholarly addresses ever delivered in this city, and was closely followed by a large and interested audience. It was the first time that Mr. O'Neil has made a public address in this city, and he will doubtless be heard again on many future occasions.

Ray Anderson was awarded the saddle for being the best rider at the bucking horse contest at the bell grounds in the afternoon. William Stark suffered from a broken thumb and his horse got away from him, or the story might have been different. Jesse Johnson of Merrill also gave a good account of himself as a rider. The judges had a hard time to choose between the three men.

O. N. Thompson of Burns gave an exhibition of riding that was about as good as any that the judges had seen, but as he had not been entered for the competition he was not awarded the saddle.

J. Frank Adams was awarded the $29 for the wildest horse.

Water Carnival

The water carnival at night under the direction of H. C. Telford was one of the finest ever seen on Lake Ewauna and the fireworks directed by A. D. Miller and Mr. Mongold were also splendid.

The committee, consisting of K. Sugarman, chairman; Arthur Livermore, secretary; Mr. Swanson, director; O. M. Hector, treasurer, and Fred Houston and Cale Oliver, directors of sports, deserve the utmost credit for the success of the celebration.

Steed Smarter Than Soldier

Trooper Brown of the British Territorials was "green." His horse, likewise unaccustomed to war, seemed from its appearance and general structure to have been not very long ago a dray horse. But it was a wise animal, and had learned through experience that to keep one's mouth shut is to avoid many troubles. Much practice had enabled it to keep its mouth shut very successfully—and very tight.

On the first morning parade in Trooper Brown's first camp the Lieutenant rode down the line of his company. "All the men turned out, sergeant-major?" he queried.

"Yes, sir," said the sergeant-major, "all except Trooper Brown. He's waiting for his horse to yawn so's he can slip the bit in, but the worst of it is, sir, the brute doesn't seem a bit tired."—Dundee Advertiser.

TENNIS CLUB ENTERTAINS

The White-Maddox hall was the scene of a brilliant entertainment Friday evening when there were about 75 members of the social set guests of the Klamath Tennis club. This was the third annual reception given by this well known athletic club, and is given in honor of the visiting players who come here this week to participate in the tennis tournament for the championship of the Middle Pacific states. The tennis enthusiasts of the club were present in large numbers, and were accompanied by large audience of friends and visitors. With the hall beautifully lighted, the spacious floors highly polished and the balmy air filled with beautiful waltz strains from the Klamath Falls orchestra, it seemed that the surroundings were those of a veritable fairy land. Many of the guests whiled away the delightful hours in waltzing, while others enjoyed themselves in mingling with the crowd and sharing in the delights of music and engaging friends in pleasant conversation. So pleasantly was the evening spent that scarcely had the audience diminished perceptibly at the hour of midnight. The club is to be congratulated upon such a reception and entertainment. It does credit to the organization and is responsible largely for the repeated trips from distant cities of the tennis experts who take part in the tournament annually in

The club is under obligations to Messrs. A. B. NEGRO LOSING GROUND IN LONDON SPORTING CIRCLES

National Sporting Club Believed to Have Wagered $250,000 on the Outcome of Fight

LONDON, July 1.—Betting on the Jeffries-Johnson fight is now at even money, whereas a fortnight ago the odds were ten to seven with Johnson as the favorite in the betting.

It is stated that the National Sporting club alone has wagered a quarter of a million dollars on the event. The sporting writers claim that the change of sentiment is due to race prejudice, and not choice. The Evening News says: "Some take the extreme view that it is impossible for a negro to be better than a white man under the same circumstances. But ring history will not bear out this contention."

All Invalids

When the office boy came in the stern old broker looked over his glasses with a frown.

"Young man," he said, slowly, "why were you absent from work yesterday afternoon?"

"Went to see the baseball game," confessed the lad, fumbling with his cap.

"You did, eh?"

"Yes, sir; you said the only occasion I could take an afternoon off would be to visit the sick."

"And what has that to do with it?"

"Well, sir; this was one of those occasions. It was the sickest bunch of ball players that ever came down the pike. We got whitewashed to the score of 17 to 9."—Chicago News
