CALL INSURGENTS GUERRILLAS

SPEAKER CANNON SAYS MOST OF THEM ARE DEMOCRATS

He Did Not Say They Should Be Shot—Lays All of the Blame on Bristow

United Press Service.

KANSAS CITY, July 20.—Speaker Cannon arrived here today and returns to Danville tonight. He thinks the Kansas campaign assures the reelection of Congressmen Miller, Campbell, Reeder and Calderhead. He looked unwell and tired. He said: "I do not want the insurgents shot. I never said that. This is peace, not war; in war they would be shot. They are fighting both sides. Because Bristow and a handful of men were not satisfied with the way things were going they wanted to start guerrilla fighting. Most of them are democrats, yet every manly democrat hates them. No one likes a traitor. Although guerrillas should not be shot, they should be hated and despised by everybody."

PRESIDENT TAFT ON A CRUISE

EVERLY, Mass., July 20.—President Taft has left for a ten days' cruise in the Maine waters. The presidential yacht, Mayflower will keep close to the shore, and will be in wireless touch with navy stations along the coast the entire time the president is aboard.

The trip to Maine was planned at first wholly as a vacation outing. At the last moment the president consented to make three speeches at different points in Maine. The addresses, however, will be entirely formal, and Mr. Taft will not touch upon politics in any way.

JOHN SHOOK AND U. P. SEDGE DELEGATES TO ASSEMBLY

Traces Found of Cattle Rustling on the Reservation—Many Ranchers Are Putting Up Hay

Two men from Crescent City, Calif., one a merchant and the other a hotel man, were in Yonna Valley last week on a land-hunting tour, and stayed at Dairy Saturday night. They expressed themselves as highly pleased with the country. They were dissatisfied with the low altitude of the country where they lived, and wanted to settle in some locality where the atmosphere was dryer and purer. They will probably return here before long.

John S. Shook and W. P. Sedge, the postmaster, went to the Falls Saturday, attending the republican "assembly."

George Chastain of Klamath Falls was visiting with the Shooks over Sunday. He looks as if he enjoyed better health than he has for years.

Emil Flackus has taken the contract to put up the Dave Shook hay crop this season, amounting to 1,500 tons.

A story of cattle rustling and killing comes over from the reservation that may develop into a criminal charge in the United States court. It seems that certain well known white people, a few weeks since, made a camping tour northwest as far as the head of Williamson river. When at a place known as Quakenasp Springs they saw evidences that indicated that some cattle had been killed there. Further on they came to the camping ground of some government forest rangers, and near there was another camping place. At this locality a campfire was still smoldering, and smoking. Curious to know what this meant a member of the party took a stick and began scattering the coals, when he discovered a beef hide beneath the fire, which was evidently made for the purpose of burning up the hide. As Harrison Brown (a Klamath Indian) is the only man who has cattle running on that range, he is investigating the affair, and believes he is close on the trail of the rustlers—who are said to be some squaw men.

Tom Michael is putting up the crop of hay on the M. P. Neilsen place.

Henry Stanley was a business visitor to Dairy Monday. Henry enjoys the distinction of being the youngest eighth grade graduate of the Hildebrand school this year.

Miss Beulah Flackus is doing domestic work at the Gros ranch in the Upper Langell Valley.

Much of the wheat is heading out, but without rain the stalks will be very short—and probably the head, too.

The "subscriber" has been helping in the hay harvest during the past week, and had little time for hunting; up news items.

At the rate of progress made by the road-building crew at work on the Pine Flat grade it will take twenty working days to complete the work—a mile and a quarter.

It is noticed that mosquitos are more plentiful and pestiferous this summer than ever before in this valley. And there appears no known cause for the fact, either. It has certainly been dryer than usual this year.

John Pool and "Doc" Pool have each built a new house close to the Scy Pool home in the north part of the valley, and the neighbors now call the locality "Poolville."

Has a postmaster (or mistress) a right to withhold postal cards from the mail? is a question that has been asked by a good many people here-aways lately.

Ebenezer McNair has moved from the reservation into Poolville.

Miss Elsie Oden departed Monday for a visit with her sister at Susanville, Calif.

Frank McGier, who has been visiting with the Odens in Pine Flat, departed for his home at Fox, Ore., Monday.

Jesse Drew went to the Falls Monday for a load of freight for Dairy.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wood of Bonanza were visiting friends in Dairy Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Michael visited Edgewood Sunday.

Miss Nett Drew visited with her sister, Mrs. Campbell, in Langell Valley Sunday.

Mrs. N. S. Drew has been visiting her mother below the gap.

A fire broke out on Saddle Mountain, in Sprague river valley last week, but was subdued by the government forest rangers before much damage was done. Forest rangers on Mt. Yamsey have also been busy lately putting out fires.

REDUCED RANGE FORCES SALE OF BIG HERDS

BURNS, Ore., July 20.—Considerable property has changed hands in Harney county lately to outside capitalists. The parties who bought the Wagon Road land grant have sold several choice tracts for $60 an acre, and several of the small ranchers that have been in Harney Valley for several years have disposed of their land and stock to outside buyers at high prices. Most of them sold out on account of the short range and the prospects for a short hay crop. Since the settlers have taken up the government land stockmen have had to rustle for range, and it has made the raising of stock in large herds a losing business the past two years. The new owners of the land will put their holdings to producing grain and raise stock in smaller numbers. There have been more cattle sold here this year than for several years by the small stockmen.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORS MEET AT SANTA CRUZ

SANTA CRUZ, July 20.—The state Christian Endeavor met in convention at Garfield Park today. The reports of the officers of the various societies were read this morning. Rev. H. O. Breeden speaks tonight at the League of the Cross encampment.
