

SKELETON OF MAN IS FOUND

DUG UP IN DITCH NEAR PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Discovered by Men Who Were Digging in Sewer Ditch—Bones Badly Decomposed

The skeleton of a man was discovered by S. P. Camp foreman of the sewer digging force, and two of his men, Fred Nel and Dewey Campbell, while they were digging in the trench Thursday afternoon.

The body was found on Third street just below the old Ankeny ditch, and at the corner of the Presbyterian church lot. The remains were found at the regulation six feet, and the bones were quite decomposed. The upper part of the skull and the lower jawbone as well as some of the bones were taken out. As soon as the bones were discovered the coroner was notified, and the remainder of the skeleton will probably be unearthed. The skeleton was lying diagonally across the ditch, and the head and trunk were in the path of the ditch.

The name of the person whose remains have been found has not been ascertained.

THINK THE SKELETON IS IDENTIFIED

BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN THAT OF HORNBUCKLE

Body Was Found at Lost River Slough and Thought to Have Been Kicked by Horse

The identity of the skeleton which was found by Fred Nel and Dewey Campbell while they were digging in the sewer near the Presbyterian church Thursday is believed to have been established.

O. A. Stearns, who is one of the earliest settlers of this county, says he remembers an incident of the early days that makes him think the skeleton is that of a man named Hornbuckle.

"Early in the spring of '69 or '70," said Mr. Stearns, "an Indian, either a Modoc or a Klamath, came to Klamath Falls (it was called Linkville at that time) and said that two horses were grazing near Lost river slough, and that the body of a man was lying near them. His statement created great excitement for a while, as it was thought the Indians had killed the man. But on second thought they knew that if the Indians had done the deed they would have taken the dead man's horses. A party went after the man and brought the body and the horses to this city.

"Lost river is very deep, and from the appearance of the ground it was believed that the man, who had evidently been riding one horse and leading the other, had thought that he could cross the river. He had apparently been dragged from the saddle by the horse he was leading and while he was on the ground had from appearance been kicked in the head by the iron shod hoof of one of the animals, for there was an ugly wound on the side of his head.

"From papers found on him it was learned that his name was Hornbuckle, and that he was on his way from Siskiyou county to the mines in the John Day country.

"At the place where he was buried the first cemetery in this city had been laid out, and Hornbuckle was either the first person or one of the first to be interred in the graveyard. There were no stones to mark the grave, and when the bodies were removed from the old cemetery to their new resting place where they now lie, Hornbuckle's remains were probably overlooked."

DEAD MAN DRIVES HORSE AND BUGGY TWO HOURS

The Corpse Sat Upright in the Vehicle Until It Was Stopped by a Pedestrian

LONGMONT, Colo., Sept. 15.—For over two hours yesterday the body of John W. Penquite, one of Colorado's early settlers, sat bolt upright in his buggy, the reins tight, gripped in both hands, while the old family horse ambled along the country roads to the Penquite home here.

Numerous passers-by lailed the old man, who was a familiar figure in this part of the country, but it was not discovered that he was dead until a neighbor stopped the horse to ask Penquite for a lift.

Physicians declared Penquite's death was due to heart disease, and said that it must have occurred at least two hours before the body was discovered.

FINAL SURVEY ON OREGON TRUNK BOUND OVER TO THE GRAND JURY

ENGINEERS ARE AT WORK NEAR PELICAN BAY ALEXANDER TO ANSWER FOR SHOOTING POWELL

Present Survey the Third That Has Been Done—Saves Two Miles of Hill Work Prisoner Waived Examination and Is Taken Back to Jail—Coroner's Jury Renders Verdict

The final survey of the Oregon Trunk line is being made by the engineers of that road on the northern shore of Upper Klamath lake, and the line will run within two miles of Pelican lodge. The engineers are working directly east, and it is expected that the work will be completed within three weeks.

It will be necessary to put a bridge across the channel connecting Upper Klamath and Agency lakes, and this cost will be borne by the railroad rather than to go to the expense of constructing two miles of hill work, which would have been necessary in case the road had gone around the lake instead of across the straits as it now will.

In the Deschutes canyon men are blasting for the roadbed, and it is necessary to let them down with ropes in order that they may reach the precipitous place where the road will run.

It is certain that the Oregon Trunk will come to Klamath Falls, but on which side of the lake cannot be said.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT HAS TENACIOUS GRIP

Hangs on to Money Like Grim Death When It Gets Hold of It—No Release

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 15.—An instance in which the government placed a tenacious grip on $50 has a place in current treasury records. It shows that B. M. Leach paid $50 for a license to sell curios and photographs in Yosemite National park for one year, beginning January 1, 1910. He was given the privilege of occupying a cabin in the Mariposa Big Tree grove. Leitch died in April, before he had opened his place of business for the year. As no goods had been sold under the license and it was non-transferable, the administrator of Leitch's estate thought that the government would be willing to refund the license fee of $50. He applied to the treasury officials for the money but the only answer they could make was that there was no law authorizing a refund in such cases. Leitch's death revoked the license, but that invoked no drawback. In May the privilege that had been held by Leitch was sold to E. N. Baxter, who paid $50 for a year's license. At last accounts Baxter was in good health.

FIGHT WITH POPE IS TO CONTINUE

President of the Spanish Chamber of Deputies Says That Canalejas Will Win

MADRID, Sept. 16.—Count Romanos, president of the Spanish chamber of deputies, is reported in an interview as declaring that the policies of Premier Canalejas are gaining daily adherents among the adversaries of the government, as the country is convinced that he is working for the best interests of the nation.

The count thinks that Spain will be emancipated from "fanatical clericalism," which, he says, has for centuries weighed heavily on it. The struggle is not against Catholicism, but against clericalism, which is impeding the commercial development of Spain and mingling in politics.

At the opening of the cortes, Canalejas, according to the president, will announce an unmodified continuation of his religious campaign. The "padlock bill," prohibiting the creation of further religious establishments until the revision of the "oncorua has been completed or a definite law on the subject has been passed, which measure is opposed by the Vatican, will not be withdrawn, but on the contrary, the senate will resume its discussion of the legislation.

Indianian Buys Property

Chas. P. Stewart from Indiana purchased through Chilcote & Rice lot 4, block 57 Nichols' addition. He expects to commence construction next week of a modern bungalow. Mr. Stewart is very favorably impressed with Klamath Falls as a place for investments, and will erect several houses in this city in the near future. It is almost impossible to secure a vacant house in the city at the present time.

That Is the Question

Tommy heard Mrs. Jones tell his mother that she used sour cream to make gingerbread they were eating. He was duly impressed with this piece of information, and turning to Mrs. Jones he solemnly said, "Mrs. Jones, this is fine gingerbread you've made. I can't taste the sour cream a bit. Did you use bad eggs, too?"—Delinquent.
