

MASONS WILL HAVE BIG CEREMONY

NEW LODGE OFFICERS BY ROYAL ARCH, BLUE LODGE AND ORDER OF EASTERN STAR PLANNED

It's going to be a big time for the Masonic fraternity Tuesday night when is to be held a joint installation of officers of both lodges of the brothers and the single lodge of the women affiliated with the organization.

The ceremonies will probably be held at Masonic hall, and the three bodies whose newly chosen rulers will be inducted into office are Klamath Chapter No. 35, Royal Arch Masons; Klamath Lodge No. 77, A. F. & A. M., commonly known as the Blue Lodge, and Aloha Chapter No. 61, of the Order of Eastern Star.

All the details of the ceremonies have not yet been announced, but it is considered likely that each lodge will have an installing officer act for it. Frequently the highest retiring acts in this capacity, so that it is probable that Alexander Martin Jr., retiring High Priest of the Royal Arch body, will officiate for that branch, with his brother, Dr. William Martin, retiring worshipful master of the Blue Lodge, and Mrs. Cora Sanderson, wife of Mayor Fred T. Sanderson, who has been worshipful matron in the Order of Eastern Star, possibly acting as installing officers for their respective lodges.

COOKS WASTE MILLIONS, MAKING LIFE COST HIGH

United Press Service
BOSTON, Dec. 18.—More than $20,000,000 is thrown away every year by cooks, chefs, housekeepers and hospital nurses, according to Miss Fannie Merritt Farmer, world-famous as an exponent of scientific cooking.

Miss Farmer ought to know. She can mix up a batter with one hand; break half a dozen eggs with the other for a New England sunshine cake; attend to the baking of a Southern "apple cobbler," and see to it that the meat doesn't burn as she passes the stove to concoct the ingredients for some luscious dessert—all at the same time. And she can do this without any waste. Miss Farmer has been making delicious edibles for some years over two decades, and she's been teaching others how to make them without spending too much money.

Miss Farmer, according to herself, is no radical, but she "does get mad" when she sees the way the young wife, or the careless cook, or the non-thinking nurse, will "murder good food."

"The cost of living has certainly gone up with skips and jumps," said Miss Farmer, "and it costs more now to make a cake or a pie or roast a beef for dinner than formerly. It's true that many grocers, by their counter characteristics, appear to be descended from those roving gentlemen who sailed the Spanish Main. But—and spell it with capitals—the grocer isn't to blame for more than 50 per cent of the high cost of living nor the cost of high living, either.

Much of the waste is through ignorance. More is wasted through carelessness and the growing shiftlessness of the younger generation. Right here in my own school, after I have concluded some demonstration I will turn away for a moment, only to find that the moment was costly. Twenty students, in that short time, will have pared twenty apples or peeled twenty potatoes, with no care as to the thickness or thinness of the paring. Out of the parings of the twenty apples or potatoes, an amount similar to that 'contained' in two or three apples or potatoes could have been saved."

Most of Miss Farmer's students are cooks of the wealthiest Bostonians, who have had some instruction in domestic science before their employers have sent them to Miss Farmer to learn some of her recipes. Many of them who don the apron and cap, however, are the wealthy Bostonians themselves. Other students are nurses from various hospitals. The students are the most representative women of the kitchen or of those who will be in charge of kitchens some day. It is from such that Miss Farmer draws conclusions that by systematic use of food materials in the kitchen $20,000,000 and more could be lopped off the much-mooted high cost of living bill.

"Strange to say," said Miss Farmer, "there is less real waste in the hotels than there is in the homes and in hospitals. Some times in hospitals and similar institutions I have seen enough wasted in two or three days to furnish the best of invalid food for a big institution for one day.

"Here's an instance. In supplying a convalescent patient with toast the nurse always carefully cuts off the crusts to make it look more palatable. Crusts from many hundreds of pieces of bread daily are thrown in the slop can. All this could be used to make the finest bread puddings, for the pieces are not real scraps. The same holds good in regard to serving meats. The clean, tender, but perhaps stringy pieces are cast aside. The best kind of hash for patients suffering from wounds or similar injuries can be made from them.

"Perhaps the greatest waste, however, follows poor management in the different wards. Each ward is given a certain amount of milk and supplies each day. This supply never varies the consumption does. All excess is thrown away. Nurses seem never to have known that sour milk can be used to make batter cakes, cottage cheese and several other palatable and nutritious dishes.

"I have seen a nurse prepare for a patient a meal of several dishes, only to have the patient say, 'Why, I can't eat that.' And out goes the whole meal. 'Why take it back to the kitchen?' the nurse answered my question. 'They'd only throw it away and I'd get scolded.'

"Of course, the waste in the kitchens of the rich, where servants have charge, is enormous. I have known of cases where, when milk was needed for cake and other things, the servant bought milk ahead and let it sour, although several quarts could be saved from left-over milk in a day or two.

"But the waste that counts the most in forcing up the cost of living is in the kitchens of the middle class family. The same lack of system seen in the hospitals holds also in the private family. Three out of every five housewives who complain about how their grocery bills run up each month could cut these same bills at least one-tenth by such means as using the yolk of the egg for coffee, after using the white for cake frosting, instead of breaking another egg the next morning.

"We hear a great deal these days of conservation of natural resources. Let the women of the nation apply the great principle to their kitchens and we will be a richer and better nation."

BOX FACTORY TO CLOSE AFTER A SPLENDID SEASON

Charles McGowan, Shippington and manager for the California Fruit Canners' association's box factory at Shippington, announces that on next Saturday night two-thirds of the crew of forty-five men will be laid off, and on the following Saturday night the remainder of the crew will be dispensed with.

The mill will on the latter date shut down for the winter season, to reopen March 1st. Ordinarily the quiet period has been for three months, until April 1st, but the fact that there are more lumber mills in the district now makes it easier for the company to procure material out of which to make its boxes which are all shipped to San Francisco.

Mr. McGowan says the past season has been a very busy one, shipments of 210 cars of boxes being made, against little over half that number last year, when it was harder to get material. The cannery could use more boxes if the mill could turn them out, so that the coming season, if no hitch occurs, the industry will be at high tide. The reason the factory does not operate in the winter months is because of the lack of facilities for getting its raw material in condition and keeping it so.

The size of the boxes made at the factory varies, sometimes a freight car being filled with 4,000, while at other times it will take 20,000 boxes to store a car to capacity, the boxes being of smaller dimensions.

MARSHAL BEATTIE PULLS GUN, FINED

SAYS MAN IN CHAMBERS GUN STORE ASSAULTED HIM WITH BILLIARD CUE, AND THAT HE WAS DEFENDING HIMSELF

Deputy United States Marshal Frank Beattie pleaded guilty to the charge of drawing a deadly weapon this afternoon before Police Judge Thomas F. Nicholas and paid a fine of $18. This was the result of an episode in Barney Chambers' gun store last midnight, about which the man in charge of the store this afternoon pleaded ignorance.

According to Beattie's story he had an argument with a man who tried to assault him with a billiard cue, and that when he found he could not pacify the man by quiet methods he drew his revolver on the man. He states that he has plenty of witnesses to prove that he was justified, and that Keith Ambrose caught the billiard cue when it was about to come down on him. Beattie says he does not know whom his assailant was, and that when he left the store the man and he shook hands in friendly fashion.

LOCAL LOSERS IN PORTLAND BANK

KLAMATH FALLS MEN ARE UNDERSTOOD TO HAVE MONEY IN INSTITUTION CLOSED, BUT MAY GET MOST OF IT

Several Klamath Falls men are understood to have had money on deposit in the American Bank and Trust company at Portland, which has closed its doors. Major Charles Elmer Worden is understood to have been one of those who did business with the unfortunate institution, but stated this morning that he could not well go into details on the subject.

As the state bank superintendent, Will Wright, says that half the deposits ought to be paid within thirty days, and more after that, the chances are that the losses of the local depositors will not be serious in the end.

HIGHER RECLAMATION IN UMATILLA PROJECT

PORTLAND, Dec. 20.—A state-wide campaign will be started by commercial organizations of Oregon to get recognition from the government, to which the state is entitled in the distribution of reclamation funds. This movement will be along the lines adopted by the Pendleton Commercial Association at its recent meeting in endorsing the west extension of the Umatilla project.

C. C. Chapman, secretary of the Oregon Development League, who attended the Pendleton meeting, believes the campaign will succeed. He finds the prospects exceedingly favorable for the president to make the allotment to Oregon for the Umatilla project, now that the people of Oregon and the surrounding country have gone on record favoring the extension.

"There was much opposition at the Pendleton meeting," said Secretary Chapman, "based on fears that it would work a hardship on settlers and landowners of Umatilla county. In spite of this opposition, the proposition was endorsed on its merits, and steps will be taken to secure recognition of claims of settlers who may feel themselves damaged. In the face of this feeling of private interests Pendleton business men endorsed the extension, believing it would be of benefit to Oregon.

"The extension will open up 60,000 acres, sustaining a population of from 20,000 to 50,000 people. The land will be adapted to diversified farming, intensified agriculture and fruit growing.

Commercial organizations of the state will adopt resolutions calling for Oregon's share of reclamation funds, and now is the time for everyone to write to the president, asking for a fair allotment. Six other states have had 350 per cent of their contributions from the sale of lands returned to them for reclamation work, while Oregon has had but 18 per cent. I cannot think that a popular demand made upon the president will be of great influence in securing his favorable consideration."

CORTADE BUILDS ON HOMESTEAD

FINISHES NEW MODERN HOUSE AT HEAD OF ROCK CREEK, THE CONTRACTOR BEING JOHN H. HAMILTON

John H. Hamilton, the local contractor, who has been the past two days serving on the jury in the case of the Farmers' Implement Co. vs. Southern Pacific Railroad Co., has just finished building at the head of Rock Creek a $2,000 residence on the 160 acre homestead of P. D. Cortade.

The house is modern, four rooms and bath, with hydraulic pump to send water to the bathroom. The kitchen is of Dutch design. Mr. Cortade has on his place 250 chickens, three horses, three milk cows and six young cattle. The barn is 38x40.

G. H. Delarandolle of the United Iron Works, Oakland, Calif., who has been putting in the refrigerating plant at the White Pelican, has had his work accepted by the contractor, Arthur Arlett, and departed for his home.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Fleet, with the latter's father, H. E. Winnard, of Langell Valley, came in last Friday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Fleet started in the evening for Molina, Ill., where they will spend the winter with relatives of Mr. Fleet.

William Bowdoin of the Chronicle staff, is convalescent from a week's illness, which confined him to his home.

J. E. Brower, former manager of the White Pelican hotel, accompanied by Mrs. Brower, left Thursday for San Francisco.

WHO SAID HE WAS LOST?

Charles Otis, the genial engineer for the Strange Maguire Paving company, returned this morning from a two weeks' visit with friends in Pos Valley and Bonanza. Charley was expected Saturday night, and when he failed to put in an appearance some humorous (?) party started the story that he had been lost in the woods while bear hunting, and numerous inquiries as to his welfare resulted. Anyone acquainted with Otis knows that he is not going to get lost in any place or any crowd at any time.
