Logging will continue during the summer on a larger scale, and the company will employ between 200 and 250 men in the woods and mills.

In addition to the big sawmill the company now has ready for operation one of the largest box factories in the county. This factory was built last fall, and will make its first run this summer. It is equipped with six cut-offs, which gives it a capacity of 100,000 feet per day.

C. S. MOORE REPLIES

Phoenix, Ariz., March 7, 1913. To The Herald:

Following the statement of Judge Worden in the Northwestern of February 11th, that paper stated that an interview had been had with Messrs. Melhase, Martin and Obenchain, and further said: "An effort was made to secure a similar interview with C. S. Moore, also named in Judge Worden's charges, but the latter is ill in Phoenix, Ariz., and a statement from him will have to be deferred." And in its editorial on its first anniversary, speaking of the Northwestern, among other things said: "And it is our aim to print the whole truth about every matter upon which the newspaper touches." As the Northwestern had given columns and pages to Judge Worden's statements, and the two things mentioned in the above quotations are the things that all other "great newspapers" try to do, I assumed that it really wanted a statement from me, and would really be glad to print the truth, as stated.

Accordingly, I wrote an answer to Judge Worden's statements under date of February 19th, and mailed it to the Northwestern from here on February 22d, with request to publish. This should have reached Klamath Falls on the 25th or 26th, but as it had not been published as late as March 2d, and having no acknowledgment that it had been received, on the evening of March 5th I sent Mr. Sam Evans a night letter, asking him to wire me at my expense if it had been received and published, or if he was going to publish it, and if he declined to print it to hand it to the First National bank, to which up to this time (afternoon of March 7th) I have received no reply—from which I conclude that he is not so anxious for a statement from me, or "for the truth on all matters upon which the newspaper touches" as he thought he was. So, in order that the people of Klamath county may not be deprived

NEW CHARTER OPENS FIELD OF ENDEAVOR

SUPERVISING ENGINEER GIVES ENCOURAGEMENT TO PLAN

Government Will Sell or Lease Power Site on Favorable Terms to City.

Different Plans of Operation Are Suggested by Reclamation Official.

Old Power and Light Company May Be Shut Out Entirely

The United States will co-operate with Klamath Falls in the establishment here of a municipal lighting system.

This was the declaration of E. G. Hopson, supervising engineer of the reclamation service, who arrived in this city Tuesday. He is of the opinion that the new city charter will make it possible for the city to take advantage of the government's offer.

"One of the most important business arrangements between the United States and the city of Klamath Falls is that relating to the power of Link River," said Mr. Hopson.

"The government has available undeveloped power at this point of a minimum of about 2,000 horsepower, and a possible maximum of three or four times that amount. This power lies right in the heart of the city, and a comparatively small expenditure will permit of its utilization by the public of Klamath Falls. Already a large part of the work of development has been accomplished by the United States, and little more remains to be done than to install the necessary machinery.

"The officials of the reclamation service have, on several occasions, brought this situation to the special attention of the city authorities during the administrations of Mayors Sanderson and Nicholas. It has been explained to these gentlemen and to members of the council that the city may avail itself of this opportunity, if it so desires. There are several ways by which the power can be used by the city. The latter can, if it sees fit, install its own system of pole lines, or possibly purchase those of the present company, and can itself retail light and power to its citizens at rates it will itself fix. It can, if it sees fit, sell the current at cost, or if it desires to charge ordinary commercial rates, it can undoubtedly reap a handsome revenue, thereby reducing the general tax levy. If the city does not care to go into the light and power business itself, it can arrange with some local distributing company to have this work carried out by the company, although possibly not on quite so advantageous terms to the city as if the city did the work itself.

"There are at present a number of cities that are using power furnished by the United States through the reclamation service, and in every case with which I am familiar, the advantages to the municipalities in the way of revenue and profits are so apparent that the matter does not require discussion.

"On each occasion when the reclamation service has discussed these possibilities with the city authorities of Klamath Falls it has been advised by the latter that changes in the city charter were impending, and that the matter could not be taken up until those changes were made. I understand the city has now adopted a new charter, so that this obstacle has been removed. If the city desires to enjoy these advantages it should, at the earliest possible date, appoint a committee authorized to ascertain facts and to negotiate with the government."

Mrs. O. L. Carter left Tuesday for Redding, Calif., to visit her daughter, Mrs. A. B. Livermore. From there Mrs. Carter will go to Susanville to visit her sister.
