AFTER SERUM FOR CURE OF ALL

PHYSICIAN SAYS PNEUMONIA AND CONSUMPTION TOO

Friedmann Departs for Germany. Says He Has Not Been Given Sufficient Time to Demonstrate the Possibilities of His Cultures for Cure of Tuberculosis. Medical Association Will Consider Matter at Meeting

MINNEAPOLIS, June 17.—"In ten years' time, serums will conquer every human scourge," said Dr. John Witherspoon of Nashville, Tenn., president of the American Medical Association, which is in session here. "Serums have been evolved which combat successfully typhoid fever, small pox and meningitis," said the doctor. "I see no reason why they should not be cultures to cure tuberculosis, pneumonia and other ailments."

"I believe Friedmann's work, even if in itself it does not prove the hoped for cure for the white plague, is a great step in the medical profession. It will at least stimulate other physicians to take up the research into this form of serum, with results beneficial to the race."

NEW YORK, June 17.—Professor Frederick Friedmann departed today on the steamer Kaiser Wilhelm der Gross for Germany, to make an extended stay.

"I don't consider that the cases I have treated here are fully closed," said Friedmann. "The time I have been here is too short to fully prove anything."

AGED CARPENTER TO FACE SERIOUS CHARGE

One of the most widely known criminal cases in Klamath county will come before the circuit court today, when the case of the State vs. Frank Ferris is called from the docket. Ferris is charged with child stealing, and was indicted on this charge last December by the grand jury.

The arrest of Ferris, aged 65 years, a carpenter by trade, grows out of the disappearance of Harriet Fink, the 14-year-old daughter of Mrs. Ida Fink, from her home here last September. Leaving for school one morning, the girl failed to return home, and was entirely missing for several days.

A diligent inquiry throughout the county revealed the fact that a girl answering the description of the missing youngster was seen going through Keno in a buggy driven by an elderly man. A similar report came of the same couple being seen at Dorris.

The officers arrested Ferris a few days later. He stated that he had taken the girl to Dorris in a buggy, and that he had purchased her a ticket to Oroville, Calif., and had put her on the train.

Wires were sent south immediately, and the girl was located in Corning, Calif.

Ferris stated that the girl had told him that she was mistreated at home, and had asked him to help her, and that he had done so. Later he was indicted by the grand jury. He has been at liberty under a heavy bond.

The penalty upon conviction on the charge of child stealing is from one to twenty-five years' imprisonment.

William H. Shaw is attorney for Ferris.

ASK CITY TO HELP BOOSTER FUND

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEMBERS AND FRIENDS DRAW UP A PETITION ASKING FOR $50 A MONTH

Among the monetary matters receiving consideration at last night's meeting of the members and friends of the Klamath Chamber of Commerce was the question of whether or not the city of Klamath Falls should contribute toward the work of exploring this section and bringing in new settlers, the cost of which is now borne by private subscriptions. As a result, the following petition was drawn up, and is being freely signed:

"Your attention is directed to the petition of your petitioners, for the reasons and for the purposes stated, to-wit: That the Chamber of Commerce of the city of Klamath Falls is engaged in a general effort for the betterment and the advancement of both the city and the county, in the prosecution of publicity work, in laying before the investing public and immigrants the great undeveloped resources and advantages of the Klamath country. In the endeavors to bring about the desired results, the use of money is desired.

"The Chamber of Commerce is being sustained by voluntary subscriptions, and this is found insufficient to carry on the work; such being the case, it is deemed fit and proper to ask the city council to aid in this work and to contribute to the maintenance of the Chamber of Commerce in its pursuit of advertising the city and county generally; and for this reason the city council is asked to contribute to the maintenance of the Chamber of Commerce the sum of $50 per month, or such sum as your honorable body may be advised."

How A Big Business institution Grew From Small Racket Store

FRED L. HOUSTON
WILL G. HOUSTON

JOHN BRETT
JOSEPH BRETT

One summer day about fifteen years ago, I. A. Duffey, who was a very unique character in the earlier history of Klamath Falls, took a stroll up along the old Ankeny canal, where he became interested in the operations of eight or ten youngsters who were hard at work building a water wheel. After watching the boys at work for some time, Duffey, in his peculiar way, pointed his gold headed cane at one of the youngsters, who seemed to be directing the work, and said: "Hey, boy, come here. Do you want to go to work in the store?"

The boy, who was clothed in a pair of dirty overalls and was putting his whole soul in the success of his little scheme without regard to results to his appearance, answered promptly: "Sure". Wash your face and come down to the store in the morning," said Duffey. Thus Fred L. Houston began his career in the mercantile business in Klamath Falls.

I. A. Duffey at that time owned a little five and ten cent store, known as the "Racket Store". It was there at a salary of $15 a month that Fred Houston secured his first business training and laid the foundation of what is now one of the largest and most successful mercantile establishments in Southern Oregon.

After spending about three years with Duffey, Fred was induced to accept a position as deputy county clerk under Jas. H. Driscoll. Although pressure was brought to keep him in the county clerk's office and he was promised the Democratic nomination or clerk, he resigned after serving two years, and went back with Mr. Duffey.

About this time the business was moved to new and larger quarters between Fourth and Fifth streets, and the Duffey Company was incorporated, with I. A. Duffey, E. B. Henry and Fred L. Houston. Here the business grew rapidly and Fred, who was in direct charge of the business, soon realized that there was a demand for a better class of goods in Klamath Falls than had hitherto been handled. He constantly kept in touch with the needs of the people and gradually raised the quality of the goods until the store was rid of all cheap merchandise.

During the rapid development of Klamath Falls three years ago, Mr. Houston quickly realized that he would have to keep up with the growth of the city if he expected to hold the patronage which he had worked so hard and long to secure. It was necessary to get larger and more modern quarters, and when the new Odd Fellows Temple on the corner of Fifth and Main was planned Houston began negotiations for a lease. Being located on the choicest corner in the business section of the city and being a modern fire proof building, the change would necessitate paying a higher rental than other stores located in cheaper buildings were paying. In addition removal to this new building would mean a considerable outlay of capital in new fixtures and equipment. Although he was told that he would not be able to pay the greater rent in the new building, he was not to be persuaded from his conviction and entered into a long lease. That his judgment was right has been long since proven.

At this time Will G. Houston entered into the firm, and the two brothers took over the business, which became known as the K. K. K. Store. Shortly after John Brett bought into the business, and the stock was greatly increased to meet the needs of the growing patronage. Mr. Brett had saved up considerable money while working as a "lumberjack" in Minnesota, and since coming to Klamath Falls has won a reputation as a safe business man, who can always be depended on. Having followed the timber business in Minnesota, he was attracted to Klamath county on account of the timber here. After coming here, ten years ago, he accepted a position with Schallack & Daggett, with which concern he spent five years, during which time he secured a wide acquaintance and won the confidence and friendship of a large patronage. This following he brought with him to his new business. His brother, Joseph Brett, who spent several years in the employ of the United States reclamation service, is now connected with the store, and the four young men each have a personal following that assures the company a flourishing business.

The K. K. K. Store has had a solid, substantial growth, and the success of its constantly increasing business has been due to the honest, fair dealing methods which have been followed since its start. Once a customer, always a customer, has been the history of the store. From a small beginning the store has been gradually but steadily reaching out for business, until now its trade zone includes not only the entire county, but also takes in Lake county to the east and Siskiyou county to the south.

Quick to realize the vast amount of money being sent to mail order houses annually, the store began a campaign of publicity throughout the farming section of this portion of the state, and now hundreds of mail orders are being filled daily by this concern. The members of the firm are alive to business every minute, and if they find any business getting away from them an investigation is begun at once, and the trouble is remedied if it is possible to do so.

The Exclusive Regal Shoe Store, which was opened this spring on the corner of Sixth and Main, is another evidence of the progressiveness of this firm. Already carrying a complete line of Walkover and other high grade men's shoes, they realized that there was need here of an exclusive shoe store, where men, women and children could be served. The Regal Store was then opened, with L. G. Van Bellen, an expert shoe fitter of years of experience, in charge. This store has proven a boon to the ladies, who before were often forced to send away for their shoes on account of not being able to secure the styles desired here.

"The LIFE of a wagon is what counts—that's why I buy a Studebaker"

"That's reasonable, isn't it?"

"A wagon that doesn't last is expensive no matter what price you pay for it."

"Suppose you buy three wagons, one after the other, and the three of them don't last as long as one Studebaker—which is the best bargain?"

"I didn't find this out myself. I heard my grandfather say it a good many years ago. He said he had proved that it paid to buy a Studebaker. I followed his advice to my own satisfaction."

"A wagon can't have life in it unless it has the material and work and finish in it. The Studebaker people have been making vehicles for sixty years. They ought to know how to make wagons right—and they do. They have the reputation because they've produced the goods. They don't put the name Studebaker on a vehicle of any kind it is your insurance of quality."

"That's why I buy a Studebaker. I trust a Studebaker wagon because I trust the people that make them. It's good business."

"A Studebaker promise is always made good."
