GIRL THE FIRST WITNESS IN TRIAL

The trial of Frank Ferris on a charge of child stealing commenced in the circuit court this afternoon, after the opposing counsel had accepted the following jury:

W. T. Elliott, Klamath Falls, farmer;
Charles Steeman, Klamath Falls, farmer;
R. F. Tuttle, Lorella, farmer;

Charles E. Drew, Dairy, former;
L. W. Copeland, Ft. Klamath, farmer;
Geo W. Loosley, Ft. Klamath, farmer;
Fred Beck, Dairy, farmer;
E. M. Leever, Fort Klamath, farmer;
John Meyers, Klamath Falls, farmer;
W. H. Shook, Dairy, stockman;
Ed Smith, Klamath Falls, retired.

With the exception of Smith, all of the jurors are members of the regular panel. Smith was selected from a special panel of four.

H. S. Parrish and Charles Woodard of the regular panel and Frank Frakes of the special venire were excused by the state, and the defense excused John Cox, C. M. Merritt and George J. Walton. Excused by the court was William P. Johnson.

Following the selection and swearing in of the jury and the opening remarks by District Attorney John Irwin for the state and Horace M. Manning for the defense, a short recess was taken. The taking of testimony commenced at 3 o'clock.

Harriet Fink, the 14-year-old girl Ferris is charged with spiriting away from home, was the first witness called. The court room was filled with a curious crowd, mostly men, when the girl, who is well matured for her years, took the stand for the state.

The meeting of Ferris, as she and other young girls called at the aged carpenter's shop on Klamath avenue, his kindness to them and his occasional gifts of quarters and half dollars toward their amusement, were told by the girl, embarrassed under the concentrated stare of the throng. The departure of her friends, she said, left her alone, and she made visits by herself to the shop.

The yearning of the young girl for the life in a city, for the chance to leave home and earn her own living surged in the heart of young Miss Fink at the time her companions left, she said in her testimony. During visits to the Ferris shop, the girl says she confided these desires to him.

Ferris, she says, repeatedly offered to help her, and in July she accepted his offer. With money furnished by him she says she purchased a sweater, long skirt and other clothing, and these she packed in two suit cases furnished by Ferris, and awaited the time to leave.

According to the girl's testimony, the carpenter told her that it would be best to wait until school was in session. She says she intended to leave here on the train, but that Ferris told her it would be best to go to Dorris in a conveyance and take the train from there.

The two planned for some time, the girl told the court, until the night of September 24th, when Ferris met the girl, told her they would leave the following morning, and took her suit cases, after designating a place of meeting on the West Side.

On the way to Dorris, she said, the two discussed what name she should assume, and they agreed on "Aurora French." Ferris told her that a young girl was safer in a small town than in a large city, and they agreed upon Corning, Calif.

The girl rested at Dorris, changed her school clothes she had worn when she left home ostensibly to go to school, to the womanly attire purchased, and took the train from Dorris to Corning.

The case attracted considerable attention at the time, and Ferris, shortly after his return to Klamath Falls, was arrested. He admitted that he had assisted the girl in leaving town, and told where she could be found.

The defense, which is being conducted by William H. Shaw and Horace M. Manning, maintains that the girl repeatedly told Ferris that she was mistreated at home; that her mother had wished she was dead; that she did not believe that Mrs. Ida Fink was her true mother, and had made similar complaints, asking the aid of Ferris. The defense holds that the girl asked financial assistance from Ferris, and that he gave it with the understanding that he would be reimbursed after the girl went to work.

That Ferris was not the only man whom the girl told of her alleged mistreatment and asked assistance of, was the statement made by Attorney Manning in his opening argument to the jury. He said he would produce witnesses to prove this.

George C. Clark is here from Algoma, where he has charge of construction work for the Algoma Lumber company.

C. L. Holliday, a well known resident of Langell Valley, is in the county seat today, giving attention to business matters.

MARCHO IS SET FREE BY JURY

BENSON ORDERS A VERDICT OF ACQUITTAL

Poe Valley Rancher, Charged With the Larceny of a Steer by Merrill Cattle Men, Has Been in the Circuit Court on Two Occasions, Jury Disagreeing the Other Time—No Witnesses Used by the Defendant.

W. H. Marcho was Wednesday acquitted of the charge of larceny of a steer, for which he was indicted, and twice stood trial in the circuit court.

The verdict of "not guilty" was returned by the jury upon instructions from Circuit Judge H. L. Benson, following the motion of Attorney Fred Mills for this form of verdict.

Mills held that the evidence introduced by the prosecution showed that Stukel & Offield, the owners of the steer figuring in the case, stated before the sale of the animal that they believed it to be Marcho's, and so told Mrs. Marcho; that one of them, after examining the steer to find his brand, advised a member of the meat firm of Dalton & Hosley to tell Marcho to deliver the steer to the meat company, thereby giving the consent of the owners to the transaction.

The evidence for the state closed in the forenoon, and immediately afterwards Attorney Mills for Marcho made the motion for acquittal. This was argued by Mills and District Attorney Irwin, and Judge Benson decided in favor of Mills, instructing the jury accordingly.

The suit grows out of the sale of a steer to Dalton & Hosley, butchers at Merrill, by Marcho. Stukel & Offield claimed that the steer belonged to them, and on this charge, Marcho was indicted. At the December term of the circuit court, the matter was in court several days, and the jury failed to agree, after a long deliberation.

LACK OF LIGHT CAUSES ARREST

Will W. Baldwin is the latest automobilist to run afoul of the police for infractions of the automobile regulations. He was stopped Monday evening by Patrolman Walker and told to appear in police court today for not having the required number of lights on his machine. The police are diligently looking up automobilists who are exceeding the speed limits or in other ways violating the automobile regulations. Quite a number have paid fines.

Next morning Baldwin told Judge Leavitt that he had lighted the tail lamp when he started the machine, but that it had gone out and he had not noticed it. After a dissertation on "The Light That Failed", Leavitt stated that he would not fine Baldwin.

E. R. Harvey has returned to Worden after a visit in Klamath Falls.

STILTS TO HAVE A RELAY STRING

The latest bidder for honors in the six mile cowboy relay race at the Elks Rodeo in July is Harry Stilts of this city. Stilts, who owns some fine horses, has chosen five of the fastest, and they are being trained at the Crisler & Stilts ranch.

Johnnie Copeland was today secured to train the Stilts string. Copeland is the man who rode the winning string at last year's Rodeo.

Already there is a relay string here awaiting the Rodeo. This came in last night from the Small ranch near Silver Lake. Although range horses, the equines making the string are remarkably fast, and the Small ranch has hopes of carting home the honors.

Modoc county is also represented, for Grant Finley came in Tuesday from Big Valley, leading a string of five ponies. He states that there will be a large delegation here from Modoc county to see the Rodeo and participate in the contests.

STEER RACE TO BE NEW FEATURE

PUNCHERS WILL BE GIVEN AN OPPORTUNITY TO SHOW THEIR SKILL ON THE BACKS OF ATHLETIC BOVINES

A race with wild steers for steeds is the latest Rodeo event to be arranged, and from all appearances, this will be fully as exciting an event as the wild horse race, which never fails to be one continuous performance of thrills.

All the entries will be given a steer to ride, and should none of them stay on the hurricane deck until the bovine makes the circuit of the track (which is highly probable) the prize will be awarded to the cowboy staying on the longest.

Instead of a saddle rope cinch will be used on the steers. Contestants will be allowed a "rope-and-tail" hold.

FOUR WITNESSES HEARD IN TRIAL

A history of cattle transactions in Klamath county, and a lot of information as to various brands were the features of Tuesday's proceedings in the trial of W. H. Marco, the Poe Valley rancher, who is charged with the larceny of a steer.

The first witnesses on the stand were Offield and Stukel, cattlemen, who declare that Marcho took one of their steers, and Dalton and Hosley, the Merrill butchers, who purchased the animal in question.

Last night the jury went to a local livery stable and made a thorough inspection of the steer that figures in the case.

Claude E. Maxwell has returned from Portland, where he attended the Rose Carnival and visited friends.

Louis Hoagland has gone to Lakeview, in the interests of the Gordon & Baldwin garage. He will be gone for a couple of weeks.

CIRCUIT COURT OPENS SPRING TERM

M. W. COSEBOOM IS CHOSEN AS THE FOREMAN

Several Criminal Actions, Including Child Stealing and Murder, Are to Be Tried at This Term—Marcho Trial Is the First to Be Taken Up, and Jury Is Selected—Benson Lectures Tardy Jurors.

- Here's the Grand Jury
- Foreman—M. W. Coseboom, a farmer, Klamath Falls.
- John Koontz, farmer, Klamath Falls.
- Miles Moore, farmer, Merrill.
- A. D. Slack, millman, Bonanza.
- H. F. Chapman, farmer, Keno.
- Albert Burgdorf, farmer, Dairy.
- Will Humphrey, farmer, Klamath Falls.

With the selection of a grand jury and preparations for the trial of W. H. Marcho, charged with larceny, the June term of the circuit court for Klamath county was begun Monday morning by Circuit Judge Benson.

At 10 o'clock Court Clerk Chastain commenced calling the list of summoned jurors, but only a third of them answered. It developed that they were in the courtyard at the time. Judge Benson took occasion to remind the jurors that their summons ordered them to be in the court house at 10 o'clock.

After the grand jury was drawn, M. W. Coseboom was named as foreman and Perry O. DeLap as bailiff. The jury was then sworn in and retired to commence deliberations.

There are only two criminal cases awaiting the jury from the justice court. F. E. Burton was bound over to this body on a charge of forgery, and T. E. Butts must appear in answer to a charge of demolishing a neighbor's fence.

There are a number of important cases to be tried at the present term of the circuit court. Today the trial of W. H. Marco on a charge of larceny of a steer was taken up.

The trial of Chenoweth Umpqua is one of the early cases. Umpqua, a Rogue River Indian, is charged with the murder of Frank Jack, a Klamath Indian, at Fort Klamath.

One of the cases attracting much attention is the trial of Frank Ferris, on a charge of child stealing. He is held responsible for the temporary disappearance of 14-year-old Harriet Fink from her home last fall.

INSANE WOMAN TRIES ESCAPE

In the hope of escaping, Mrs. H. L. Veit, wife of a Worden merchant, who was adjudged insane by the county court Saturday, ran away from Miss Elizabeth Taylor, her attendant, Sunday evening. It was some time before she was captured.

Miss Taylor was taking her charge out for a walk and to see a picture show. At Sixth street Mrs. Veit asked her if "that road led to Lakeview."

To pacify her Miss Taylor answered that it did.

"Well, I'm on my way," answered Mrs. Veit, as she suddenly broke away from her attendant and ran toward the railroad track.

The police were immediately notified, and their search led them to the Savidge Brothers lumber yard. Here Patrolman Greenwood's flashlight revealed the hat of Mrs. Veit, who was crouched behind a pile of lumber. Before the officers could reach her she had slipped out on the other side of the pile, where she was taken by Patrolman Walker.

The unfortunate woman left Monday morning for the asylum at Salem.

GEORGE MOULTON CALLED BEYOND

Word has been received here of the death of George E. Moulton, a well known Klamath county rancher, who had property near Dairy. Mr. Moulton succumbed to heart trouble Monday afternoon.

The funeral service was held at Bonanza Tuesday.

Mr. Moulton is survived by his widow, one daughter and two sons. He was 64 years of age.

A. E. ELDER BUYS MERRILL RECORD

The latest change of ownership in local newspaper circles was effected late Monday, when Albert E. Elder purchased the Merrill Record from L. R. Brooks. Brooks is one of the best known and most capable newspaper men in Southern Oregon.

It is Elder's intention to move to Merrill as soon as he can straighten up his affairs here. He will hang out his shingle at Merrill, and in addition to dispensing through the Record the joys, sorrows, successes and the achievements of Merrill people, he will also dispense legal advice.

IHC Wagons Are Tough

Did you ever notice when one of the wheels of your loaded wagon dropped into a rut or bumped over a stone how the seat springs gave and rebounded, almost throwing you off? That is an indication of the shock and strain that the rigid spokes and axles have to stand whenever the wagon is traveling over a rough road or through a field. The IHC wagons your local dealer sells take these stresses and strains as a matter of course. From neckyoke to tail board they are built of selected, air-dried lumber, strong and tough, bending to strains but coming back as straight and true as ever when the load is removed. Besides being tough, IHC wagons are light running. The wheels have just the right pitch and gather, and run true. All skains and skain boxes are paired. The running gear is assembled by skilled workmen whose wages depend as much on the quality as on the quantity of the work they turn out. Consequently, IHC wagons are practically all of the same high standard of quality throughout.

Weber New Bettendorf Columbus or Steel King

Weber and Columbus wagons have wood gears; New Bettendorf and Steel King have steel gears. IHC local dealers sell the wagon best suited to your work and conditions. Get catalogues and literature from them, or, address your request to
