MUNSINGWEAR

Union Suits the Particular Man

THE MAN WHO ISN'T SATISFIED WITH ANYTHING BUT THE BEST. THAT'S THE KIND OF MAN WE'RE PLEASING EVERY DAY WITH "MUNSINGWEAR."

It has the greatest demand because the most satisfactory. It is most satisfactory because it fits and covers the form perfectly, is non-irritating, wears longest, launders best, and, always, in the long run, is most economical to buy.

There aren't any "ifs," "buts" or "perhappes" about Munsingwear. When we sell it we sell satisfaction, and at a mighty low price, too. There's no line of merchandise we can recommend with more confidence than Munsingwear.

We'd like to have you men see how the makers of Munsingwear have solved the problem of a properly-closed-crotch garment; they actually have what other makers claim to have—the most satisfactory closed crotch garment made, and by far the most comfortable.

FALL PROVES FATAL TO AGED LADY, NEAR KENO

KENO, Oct. 16.—Following a fall a few days ago, Mrs. Cordelia Mills, mother of Mrs. Frank T. Nelson, died Wednesday morning at the Nelson ranch. Mrs. Mills was 81 years of age.

While walking in the second story of the house, Mrs. Mills slipped and fell down a flight of stairs. Her shoulder bone was fractured, and she was injured otherwise to such an extent that she remained unconscious until her demise.

The funeral services were held at the Nelson home this morning. The service was conducted by Rev. Richards, pastor of Grace M. E. church of Klamath Falls, and the ceremony was attended by a large number of friends of the bereaved family.

To Join Husband.

Mrs. Sam Wiley left on the train Friday to join her husband, who is holding a fine job on the Northern Electric out of Sacramento. He formerly was a conductor on the Klamath Falls-Weed run.

Back From Alaska.

John W. Taber, son of I. P. Taber, arrived Thursday from a two years' sojourn in the far north. Part of the time while away Mr. Taber was running as engineer on a steamship line out of Sitka.

MRS. HOGUE AGAIN HONORED BY LODGE

Word has been received from Portland that Mrs. Mary Hogue, wife of C. C. Hogue of this city, has again been elected Mistress of Records and Correspondence by the state Grand Lodge meeting of Pythian Sisters, in session there.

This is the twelfth consecutive time that Mrs. Hogue has been chosen for this office by the Grand Lodge. As in the past, her election has been unanimous.

Mrs. Hogue has always been an active worker for the order, and since first exalted to the state office in 1901 she has done much work for the organization's advancement. She has been one of the most ardent members of the local branch of the order.

BAND DANCE IS

TONIGHT'S BILL

A record sale of tickets has been made by the members of the Klamath Falls Military band in the last few days, and a big crowd is expected at the dance to be given at Houston's opera house. The proceeds will go toward the maintenance of the organization.

Music will be furnished by the band, which is second to none in Southern Oregon when it comes to the harmony stuff.

ALL ARE MORE OR LESS INSANE

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 18.—Many lunatics are doing a regular day's work in the outside world. They are neither known as insane, nor do they think themselves lunatics. On the other hand, they have never even questioned their own sanity. This, in effect, was the statement made today by Dr. Daniel Phelan of Kingston, Ontario, secretary of the Physicians' Association of the American Prison Association, and a leading figure in the annual convention of that organization, which today stands adjourned.

"The human mind is a complex machine," said Dr. Phelan, "and it consists of such a multitude of parts that all of them could not be equally perfect and normally adjusted. There are, in the outside world, people who are attending their various vocations and passing along through life unmarked and unnoticed by the public; and yet some of these people are not sane. They manage to discharge their duties in their respective sphere of life to the satisfaction of all concerned. They succeed in fulfilling their obligations as citizens of the country, and still they are really insane. Indeed, many dangerous lunatics and insane persons exhibit a degree of mental vigor and activity many times not present among the sanest and most normal of men or women.

"So long, however, as man's conduct does not endanger human life, or cause him to be a menace to society or a nuisance; so long as a man moves along through the world in the same groove as his fellow men, he must be considered sane and responsible. He may go to his grave without leaving behind him any more than the faintest glimmer of his true condition."

LEAVE TO WORK

AT ASPEN SITE

City Engineer Jack McLean and Councilmen Ben S. Owens and O. D. Matthews left this morning for the proposed municipal water supply in the vicinity of Aspen Lake, to start some development work. Councilman M. R. Doty left Wednesday with a wagon, hauling tools and a specially constructed wler dam. This will be installed by the party.

The filing of the city on the water source would be in danger of invalidation unless a certain amount of development work is done annually, to show the intention of the municipality to some day use the water supply. The work to be done by the party, in addition to providing a method for measuring the flow of water, also protects the city's filings.

BERTHOFF COMMITS SUICIDE BY BLOWING OFF HIS HEAD

While working in a field at the Bertholf ranch near Bonanza Wednesday afternoon, Fred Bertholf told Wallace Fairfield, with whom he was working, that he was going to kill himself. He left shortly afterwards for the barn, and placing the muzzle of a shotgun against his head he pulled the trigger with his toe.

The man's father and sister were away from home at the time, and it was not until their return that the body was found. The top of Bertholf's head had been blown off by the explosion.

Bertholf was about 33 years of age, unmarried. He has long been of a melancholy disposition, and has been giving to brooding. This has been noted by nearly all who knew him, and it was for this reason that Fairfield paid no particular attention to the remarks of Bertholf.

Coroner Earl Whitlock went to the scene of death Wednesday, to make investigations. He interviewed all who knew anything of the tragedy, and he was convinced that there was no necessity of an inquest.

Ed Vannice of the Golden Rule store and Fred Cofer motored out about twelve miles on the Merrill road Thursday afternoon and shot a nice bag of quail.

"MISSUS" BETTER; BOYS REJOICING

Mrs. Emma Felt, after a few days of serious illness, is again recovered. This will be good news to all of her friends, but especially to half a dozen young fellows, whom she styles "her boys," who are in the habit of sitting down twice a day to meals prepared by Mrs. Felt.

"If the Missus ain't the best cook in the world, she ain't nawthin'," has long been the slogan of the lucky six, and this has been brought forcibly home to them during the days of sickness, when they were compelled to scout in other places for their provender. Their sorrow over her sickness has been terribly strong, being prompted both by the heart and by the stomach.

The atmosphere of this wee boarding house is one that is homelike, and the food is prepared in that "mother-used-to" style. This is taken as the reason why within the last few months four of the boarders have vowed to love, cherish, etc., as they have become thoroughly convinced that home cooking is the only truly perfect caper.

Back From Portland.

Rev. J. S. Stubblefield and wife returned Saturday night from Portland, where they attended the Presbyterian Synod. They were away a week.
