PEOPLE BUNCOED BY S. F. AGENCY

A few days ago a local restaurant man sent to the Golden Gate Employment agency of San Francisco for a cook and waiter, stating that the wages would be $21 per week for the cook and $15 per week for waiter.

Last night they arrived from San Francisco, but their employment slip from the agency was entirely different from what the restaurant man had promised.

The cook held a contract from the employment agency for a position paying $100 per month, with board and room. The waiter's contract called for board and room for himself and wife and a position for his wife.

There are no rooms connected with the restaurant, nor was anything ever mentioned about a position for a woman.

D. Darbarna, the cook, declares he will return immediately to San Francisco and prosecute the Golden Gate Employment agency for misrepresentation.

Leave orders for piano tuning at the special prices at Shepherd's Piano Depot, next door to the postoffice.

That a woman is not afraid of a burglar is proven by the fact that her mind is awake only to the fear that he may see what she isn't wearing scattered all around the room.

Harvard Professor's Daughter Held as Spy for French Government

Miss Dorothy Macvane

Miss Dorothy Macvane, daughter of Silas Marcus Macvane, professor emeritus of Harvard, who resigned his chair and went to live in Europe shortly after one of his daughters married a French army officer, was virtually arrested by the Italian government on the charge of being a French spy. She was held at Taranto, while engaged there with an Italian opera company, of which she was the leading lady.

The young woman has considerable reputation in Europe as a singer, and for the last few years she had traveled with Italian opera companies over Europe. She has never yet been seen in the United States. Right after her detention, Miss Edith Macvane, who is the author of several successful novels, married to American Ambassador Thomas Nelson Page, to get him to intervene. The father, who is ill in Rome, was not notified.

The Macvane sisters—there are three of them, the Misses Edith and Dorothy and the Baroness Emily Dodeman de Placy, who left Cambridge to become the wife of the French cavalry officer of that name—are New Englanders, and their swift rise to fame has been the source of admiration to their many friends in and around Harvard. They are unusually handsome women.

Of the three, Miss Edith is perhaps best known to the reading public from her novels and short stories. Among her novels are the "Adventures of Jonjon," "The Duchess of Dreams," "The Thoroughbred," "The Black Flier," "The Tarantella," and "Her Word of Honor," which came out only last spring.

Thirty different wood preservatives are in commercial use in the United States. Many of them utilize cresote of one sort or another. Others require chemical salts.

Our Christmas Sermon

"The Fullness of Time"

By ELDER S. D. HARLAN, Pastor Christian Church

"When the fullness of time came, God sent forth His Son born of a woman, born under the law that he might redeem them under the law."—Gal. 4:14.

Divine methods of work are always marked with certain peculiar and striking characteristics. God always knows the end of his purpose and is never disappointed or surprised. Man from his limited viewpoint, must not judge God's work in sections, for the Father, with his enlarged vision certainly sees an upward movement of the race.

God never seems to be in undue haste. He took a million years to prepare this world as a home for man. He takes 100 years to mature an oak, and thirty-five years to grow a man whose allotted time is only three score and ten years. He realizes that man must be enlightened, persuaded and learn life's lesson largely from experience. An individual may learn a lesson in a day, that it will take a nation 100 years to learn, and it will take a race 1,000 years to learn the same lesson.

This prepares the road for our text. Jesus spoke of the time as being "ripe."—John, 17:1. The race, after its long process of development was ready for the appearance of the Christ.

The Hebrew people were permitted to make the spiritual preparation for the coming of the world's Redeemer. The Father cleansed this nation of idolatry, and then many times used them as excitation upon incorrigible nations, thus standing ground for the heralds of Christianity was prepared. The Messianic idea had been kept alive and developed by prophetic utterances, though much misunderstood. This people were given the best code of laws that the world has ever known. Though they were an isolated nation, they served a great missionary purpose by being located in the track of the merchantmen of the then known world. Thus at Christ's coming the religious systems of Greece and Rome were crumbling to decay, and Seneca truly said: "The conquered have given laws to their conquerors."

The Greek people made the intellectual preparation for Christ's coming. Their language was of peculiar value. The Gospel needed a language capable of being widely understood and capable of expressing thought in a popular, forcible and accurate manner. The Hellenistic tongue was the language chosen by the Father to carry the glad tidings to the world. The Hebrew scriptures were translated into this language in 280 B. C., and was called the Septuagint, and by both Jew and Gentile being enabled to read this translation, a knowledge of the Old Testament scriptures preceded the apostles in their world wide mission.

The Roman nation made the political preparation for the advent of the Savior. Power was the characteristic thought of the Roman people. Their mighty armies tamed conflicting nations and imposed the conditions of the world's peace. Well has Virgil said: "It is yours, O Roman, to rule the people with authority."

Under the protection of the Roman law the apostles traveled everywhere, preaching the gospel of peace. Rome's system of good roads served both as arteries of commerce and to unify the nation. So by the order of Augustus, Joseph and Mary are found in Bethlehem of Judea, where the prophets said the Christ should be born. Doctor Luke tells that here Christ "was wrapped in swaddling clothes for there was no room in the inn." The world had reached the climax of sin, also its climax of the "need of Christ," and had contributed its part to the coming of the World's Redeemer, according to our text. Let us prepare our hearts to receive Him, and when he comes into our lives, then will begin an eternal Christmas season.

The forest products laboratory at Madison, Wis., has made 4,000 tests on the strength of American woods.

It seems that just as soon as some men succeed in gaining a residence on Easy street, some other fellow comes along and attempts to shove him in the gutter. Such is life.

NO USE

The other day a lady read an announcement of Shepherd's special piano sale to her family. They told her it would be no use to investigate, but she did so and purchased a piano for Christmas. She was so well pleased with the price and terms that she sent a friend around, who also purchased one. You will make no mistake when you call next door to the postoffice.

DOCTOR, SPARE THAT APPENDIX

AFTER BEING WHITTLED OUT FOR YEARS, THIS MUCH CURSED ORGAN IS SAID TO HAVE IMPORTANT DUTY

United Press Service
PARIS, Dec. 24.—That the appendix is a much abused organ and of the utmost importance to man, was the gist of a paper read here today before the Academy of Sciences. Submitted to the academy by Edmond Perrier, the thesis was the result of experiments conducted by Dr. R. Robinson of the Museum of Natural History.

Dr. Robinson maintained that the appendix cannot be removed without injury to the system, because it discharges, under normal conditions, a liquid called "hormone," which aids the work of the intestines. "Hormone" is a name given any substance derived from an organ and able to stimulate a function of the body. The removal of a healthy appendix, Dr. Robinson concluded, is a great mistake.
