On Saturday evening, February 21, a large crowd gathered to assist the ladies of Mt. Laki church to entertain in honor of Washington's and Lincoln's birthdays. Powdered hair and boucles, silver buckles and cocked hats, made the celebration very real, and no one seemed surprised when George Washington and Martha appeared, to see that so great an event was properly conducted. E. S. Phillips impersonated Washington in full colonial costume, and Mrs. H. Lester made a very dainty and demure Martha. Mr. Colson and Mrs. Phillips gave an old-fashioned lovers' quarrel. Mrs. Koutz sang an old time song, which was popular during the Civil War. Three little boys in cocked hats and carrying flags recited their opinions of Washington very sweetly. There followed a quartet by Mr. Case, Miss McKee, Mr. and Mrs. McClellan, which was thoroughly enjoyed. This was followed by a series of tableaux: "Washington Crossing the Delaware," "The Boy, Abe Lincoln," addressing a cornfield in lieu of an audience. Then some of Uncle Sam's more recent heroes were pictured. Colonel Goethals of Panama canal fame was seen holding one of his Sunday interviews and adjusting grievances—an engineer had worked eight minutes overtime; a lady who complained of her pork chops; two women who could not agree at all, and one particularly bloody Mexican, who thought to carve the Colonel with his big knife, made up an exciting hour's work. Next came Governor West, who has made famous the parole system. His first honor convict was a murderer who had returned after one year's leave of absence, to report. While working he had paid the mortgage on his father-in-law's farm. Mr. Dawson delighted his audience with one of John Adams' famous speeches, and the final tableau of Washington and his wife was followed by a grand march and supper.

On Monday evening, at her home on Main street, Mrs. C. E. Riley entertained the Catholic choir at a unique dress-making contest, music and dinner. The dress-making contest, which afforded oodles and oodles of fun, provided only for gentlemen contestants. Each gentleman received a bundle of newspapers, a pair of scissors and a paper of pins, and with these had to construct a dress and hat for his lady friend. A prize, in the shape of a suit for "Little Boy Blue" (who blew his horn) was awarded the maker of the prettiest dress and hat. As W. H. Shaw, Fred Vest and Harry Gallagher tied for first honors, the award was decided by drawing straws, and went to Harry Gallagher. The evening was prolific of fun and merriment, as is always the case when Mrs. Riley entertains. Those there were: Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Mashburn, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Vest, Mrs. William Crandall, Miss Martha Harwood, Miss Claudia O'Laughlin, Miss Marjorie Weeks, Miss Mary Schubert, Miss Dorothy Weeks, Miss Dorothy Darling, Mrs. Tom McDonald, Miss Virginia Callahan, Miss Pearl Bolvin, Mr. and Mrs. A. CO-OPERATIVE STORE FOR STUDENTS IS BIG SUCCESS

PORTLAND, Feb. 27.—A co-operative store, established at Reed College eight months ago, where books, athletic supplies, general stationery and college novelties are sold as nearly at cost as the running expense of the concern will permit, is proving such an unqualified success that plans are being made today for the widening of its scope.

The store was started with a total capital of $100. It now shows a net gain of more than $550, besides having a stock valued at $700.

No student is refused credit. On an average of 100 charge accounts are carried at all times. The manager of the store stated that not one cent had been lost through dishonesty of its patrons.

LOCAL MAN TELLS OF MEXICAN FUSS

Luke Walker, who a short time ago was surrounded by hostile Yaquis in Mexico, will return this evening, according to D. M. McLemore, for whom Walker has been purchasing cattle. McLemore came in last night from the South.

"Walker purchased thirty-two cars of cattle across the line," said McLemore. "He was twice held up and the cattle attached, once by the Indians and again by the government, but 'got by' in both cases.

"This was not the only luck figuring on the trip. The day after the cattle reached Nogales, the duty doubled; the cattle reached Los Angeles ahead of the storm, and got out two hours before the tracks went out, and were sold at Bakersfield when they reached there."

McLemore has contracted for 5,000 head more of Mexican cattle.

ALL-STEEL MAIL COACHES SOUGHT

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 28.—Chairman Moon of the house postal committee, says Burleson is urging an initial appropriation of $200,000 for steel mail cars, for an experiment in operation by the government instead of the railroads. Moon expected to submit a bill embodying the idea.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 28.—The senate today adopted a postal appropriation bill increasing the maximum pay of rural carriers from $1,000 to $1,200 annually.

INDIANS MOURN DR. HEMENWAY

KLAMATH AGENCY, Feb. 28.—The Klamath Indians mourn the loss of Dr. Stacey Hemenway, who died here last week. The good doctor was in the Indian service for many years, and was a faithful doctor, every ready to help, not from a monetary motive, but because he thought it was his duty to save the lives of the Indians.

When called at any hour of the night, he was always glad to leave his cozy bed and minister to the ailing. It is hard to find a doctor like Dr. Hemenway in the Indian service, hence the loss is great to the Indians. But God in his wisdom called him beyond, where he is now enjoying the great reward due him for the good he did on the earth.

The second annual masquerade ball at Wilson's hall was a big success from a social standpoint. It is much better for the young Indians to take part in the social affairs, as social life is somewhat lacking on the reservation, and it is time for the Indians to learn the white men's ways.

Indian Agent Watson is kept very busy these days settling local troubles among the Indians.

"Abe Martin" on Advertising

In the February American Magazine, "Abe Martin," the Indiana philosopher, makes the following remarks on advertising:

"What's become o' the ole-time merchant that used t' set a tub o' dried apples an' a keg o' mackerel in front o' his store, an' then go t' sleep?"

"Ever' feller that don't advertise ain't a fool, but very few fools advertise."

"Th' feller that don't know how t' advertise is about as bad off as th' feller that don't believe in it."

"Folks are allus anxious t' see somebody they've read so much about, an' they'd be just as crazy t' see a clothes wringer or anything else under the same circumstances."

SAYS ICE WILL SOON BREAK UP

James A. Douglas, foreman of the Doak ranch on Upper Klamath Lake, was here Saturday attending business matters. Mr. Doak traveled from the Doak ranch to Squaw Point on snowshoes, coming in from there in a motor boat.

"Between Klamath Falls and Squaw Point, there is no ice at all," said Mr. Douglas today. "If there is a south wind, I expect the lake will be open by Tuesday or Wednesday."

Scores of maps and big piles of statistics submitted is still to be examined.

FARMERS' SHORT COURSE SESSION ON MUCH INTEREST IS BEING MANIFESTED

Many Matters of Importance to Klamath County Farming Interests Will Be Thoroughly Discussed at Sessions of the Short Course—Motion Pictures at the Opera House This Evening.

Expressing a hope that the event would be an annual one, Max A. McCall opened the first Klamath County Short Course in Agriculture in the high school agricultural rooms, at 10:30 a. m. Monday, by briefly outlining the object of the week's course and introducing Professor W. L. Powers of the Oregon Agricultural College, and assistant in the department of agronomy, spoke for an hour on "The Composition of Soils."

About twenty farmers, and half as many students, listened attentively as the speaker classified the different soils of Klamath county, and analyzed each class.

Mr. Powers paid particular attention to soil building and to irrigation and drainage. At the end of his talk he answered various questions asked by the farmers.

Prof. E. B. Fitts, in charge of the extension work of the department of Animal Husbandry and Dairying at the Oregon Agricultural College, ended the forenoon program in an interesting and instructing talk on "Breeding, Feeding and Management of Horses."

He brought forth facts and figures to substantiate the statement that the state lost $800,000 annually from ignorant and careless breeding. He pointed out the necessity of the farmers exercising care and caution in the breeding and feeding of animals.

The afternoon session opened with a lecture on "Soil Moisture," by Professor Powers, a lecture that he illustrated extensively with blackboard diagrams, showing the process of introducing air and water into the soil; also showing the action of seepage, or sub-irrigation, in different soils.

In answering questions after his lecture the speaker was drawn into a discussion of proper materials for irrigation ditches, which, in turn, brought forth the fact, vouched for by many farmers present, that Klamath county had plenty of clay of the proper quality for the best grade of tilling to be used in ditches.

Mr. McCall followed with a comprehensive talk on "General Crops for Irrigated and Dry Farms." He advised crop-rotation as the salvation of the land and the farmer, and urged that system replace the haphazard methods now used by some farmers. He specified the kind of crops that improved land, and the kind that sapped all fertility and life from the soil.

Professor Fitts talked on "Judging Draft Horses," and the need of selecting certain kind of horses for certain purposes. He emphasized the need of good draft horses in this county, and stated that an inferior animal cost as much or more to keep as one of better breed.

The program for this evening will consist of lectures at the Houston opera house, with moving pictures of the poultry department of the Oregon Agricultural College, and other interesting pictures.

The pictures and lectures are free, and all are cordially invited to attend.

While the men, and a few women, were attending the farming lecture, about 25 ladies of the county assembled in the department of home economics and enjoyed an instructing demonstration on "Pattern Altering" by Mrs. L. W. Robbins of the Oregon Agricultural College.

This occupied the forenoon, and in the afternoon Mrs. Robbins gave a talk on "Foods," with a demonstration of "vegetable cookery."

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

(Written for the United Press) And now 'tis Fashion's whim to avenge her followers to don the basque.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Basques it is, and coming as they do, right on top of bustles, the female "figger" is in for a complete overhauling and readjustment. This spring will see things at an entirely different angle, particularly tummys.

The debutante slouch will once more lead an upright life, and healthful interiors will again be compatible with fashionable outsides. It is a far cry from the loose bagginess of the kimono waist to the snug clasp of the regenerated basque, but the bitter fact is known full well to all those damsels who have helped to make a garment do for two seasons that Fashion changes as ever extreme.

Another evidence of this is seen in the new ripple coats, whose flaring skirts are indeed a direct antithesis to the coat which held in so tightly about your knees this winter.

All the smartest spring top coats of cloth or silk are shown with a ripple flare set on around the bottom, while others hang loose from the shoulders, widening out gradually toward the hem. Particularly in the sport coats the bright shades of red, green, blue and yellow will be seen, while among the little fussy short silk coats gay harelequin checks, Scotch plaids and Roman stripes will predominate. Perhaps the most popular uses for the lovely Roman silks will be as sashes, but as a trimming and also as whole bodices they are very smart.

The new sash waist is a charming model for the many lovely new figured silks. It is cut like a regulation waist at the top, but the two fronts of the waist are crossed over below the V shaped front, opening and gradually narrowing to the width of sash ends, they pass around and tie in a bow at the back.

The simple lines of the erstwhile lingerie frock are lost to view this season in a profusion of boucles, frills, furbeiwows and draperies that vie with the more pretentious silken gowns.

With foundations of soft and clinging crape they are veiled in the film of net, lace bordered. Many of the frocks are entirely of lace, and this lace is all net, topped and bordered heavily in artistic designs.

Exquisite sheer mulls embroidered with borders of pastel tints are lovely also for the newest lingerie effects, and chiffon embroidered in tinted border designs competes with lace in luring loveliness.

Lovely ladies may now pocket everything, including their pride, for the pocket is in evidence, and every chic sporter has 'em. Just where they are located is a question of little moment. In either or both hips of a peg top skirt. A rear one nestling in the shadow of the bustle, or a front one just below the belt. Friend husband is bound to be crazy about this new style. He sees at last where he will have his better half on the hip, as 'twere, and has blissful visions of extensive researches through wifely pockets. But be that as it may, one thing is sure, if you are out of pocket you are out of fashion.

Jet as a garniture of spring hats is being seen on the best of heads. Combined with the upstanding tulle ruchings, it is decidedly effective, particularly when it ornately embellishes the straight, collar-like band that forms the basis of the crownless chapeau.

In lieu of the banned algrette and Paradise some ingenious modistes have evolved imitations out of jet, but the results have proved formidably stiff and bristly. If your hair ripples and waves, however, you should by all means get you a jetty headdress.

As a concession to the omnipresent tango, skirts promise to broaden out a bit about the feet. As yet this is only a promise, however, and it has the threat of Paul Poiret to buck against.

He, it appears, huris defiance at Terpsichore, and announces that all his skirt designs are tighter and more clinging than ever heretofore. It is bound to be an exciting struggle, and until either Monsieur Poiret or the tango wins out, our skirts are doomed to do a sort of a hesitation, so it seems. It is interesting to note that the one and only Paul also bans the bustle.

Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Bellman arranged a surprise party for Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Bellman, inviting Dr. and Mrs. Maxwell M. Long, Mr. and Mrs. Sid Evans, Mrs. Joe Evans, Mrs. Gene Wilson, Miss Jennie Harris. The evening was highly enjoyable for all.
