The Printer's Towel.

Robert J. Burdette once dropped into prose-verse, or verse-prose, and here is the result:

"When I think of the towel, the old-fashioned towel, that used to hang up by the printing-house door, I think that nobody in these days of shoddy can hammer out iron to wear as it wore. The tramp who abused it, the devil who used it, the comp who got at it when those two were gone; the make-up and foreman, the editor, poor man, each rubbed some grime off while they put a heap on. In, over and under 'twas blacker than thunder, 'twas harder than poverty, rougher than sin. From the roller suspended, it never was bended, and it flapped on the wall like a banner of tin. It grew thicker and rougher and harder and tougher, and daily put on a more inkier hue, until one windy morning, without any warning, it fell to the floor and was broken in two."

Dubois to Come Back

On an anti-Mormon democratic ticket former Senator Fred T. Dubois will be a candidate for senator from Idaho. He says he will oppose the appointment of more Mormons as post masters by Postmaster General Bursell. Mr. Dubois managed Champ Clark's campaign for president.

To Teach Seed Testing

Specialized instruction in seed testing is to be given the boys and girls who attend the public schools in Oklahoma. Robert H. Wilson, state superintendent of education, expects to add several million dollars to the value of the Oklahoma corn crop this year by the innovation.

Seventy-five women students are working their way through the University of Wisconsin. Some are working as waitresses and dishwashers, and others are employed as clerks and stenographers. The poor girls rank much higher in their studies than the rich ones.

DAMAGE SUIT AGAIN IN THE COURT

CHARLES THOMAS NAMED AS A DEFENDANT

Following Preparations by Defense to Transfer the case to the Federal Courts, Attorney for the Plaintiff Withdrew the Action, and Today Filed It With a Klamath Man as a Party to the Suit.

The suit of Mrs. Maggie Pearson against the Big Basin Lumber company for $40,000 damages is again in the circuit court. A new complaint was filed Monday a. m. by Attorney W. H. A. Renner, representing Mrs. Pearson.

In the new action, Charles Thomas, who has a logging contract for the Big Basin, is named as a defendant also.

While in the employ of the company last month, Pearson met with injuries at the Keno logging camp that resulted in his death. The complaint alleges that there was not proper equipment for the handling of the logs, and that although the foreman knew that Pearson was not experienced, he sent him to do dangerous work.

This action was filed about a week ago. Upon the grounds that the concern was a foreign corporation, Stone & Gale, as its attorneys, made preparations to ask a removal to the federal courts. In order to hold the action to the local court if possible, Renner dismissed the former suit, and named a local man as a party defendant in the new one.

The wearing of "toothbrush mustaches" was forbidden to the soldiers of Emperor William's bodyguard regiment by an order issued recently. The reason given was that it was non-German.

Women are excluded from becoming rural letter carriers. In its instructions to applicants for the rural carrier examination, the United States civil service commission says: "As men are desired for appointment to this service, women will not be admitted to the examination."

Who threw the ball that broke the window in Martin's house? We will now hear from Peil, Orem, Noel and Brewbaker.

Miss Louise Benson and Miss Dorothy Darling defeated all comers at tennis during the noon hour today. Earl C. Chandler, who is to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Max A. McCall as instructor of the Agricultural department, is due to arrive tomorrow night.

Miss Bessie Applegate is daily expecting the arrival of individual manuscripts for the actors and actresses taking part in the Senior class play. So far the rehearsals have been confined to collective reading of parts.

Walter Hale, otherwise "Stubby," manager of the high school baseball team, spends most of his spare time looking over catalogues of uniforms. When "Stubby" gets his bunch uniformed, a band of Navajo Indians will appear modest beside them.

The track and field meet will be held at the fair grounds during the first week in May.

At chapel class this morning Principal Faught gave one of the best talks ever heard in the assembly room. "The Recording Angel no Myth" formed the basis of a splendid address to the students on the law of habit. His talk embraced habits of manners and courtesy, habits of dress, habits of punctuality and habits of self control. Among other things he said: "The man who rises to meet opportunity is he who, by years of careful preparation, has so fixed his habits that emergency simply calls forth previous experience."

If Friday is a sunny day a number of high school students will "hay ride" to Merrill in the afternoon to attend the basketball game in the evening between Merrill and Klamath Falls high school teams.

The first chapel class exercises since the short course week were held in the high school auditorium Monday morning. Miss Erma Cole, teacher of languages, told how bridges were constructed in the ancient and medieval periods.

Prizes consisting of tennis shoes will be given by the Regal Shoe Store to winners of the inter-class tennis tournament.

If you hear some of the Seniors talking to themselves as they walk along the street, don't jump to the conclusion that they are afflicted with a foolishness. They will probably be repeating some of the lines in their class play, "A Pair of Spectacles."

EX-ROBBER IS OUT FOR GOVERNOR OF OKLAHOMA

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 11.—Announcing his platform in a statement that takes up barely ten lines of single-column printed matter, Al J. Jennings, who served ten years in the Ohio penitentiary and former leader of the famous gang of Indian Territory outlaws, is taking first place among the seven men who have already formally entered the race for the democratic nomination for governor of Oklahoma. Jennings is being bitterly fought by the so-called democratic machine. His race, barely begun, promises to be one of the most spectacular ever seen, even in the politics-ridden state of Oklahoma.

Jennings says he is certain to win. He believes as firmly as it is possible for any man to believe anything that he will be the next governor of the state where thirty years ago there was a price on his body, dead or alive.

In the last election of Oklahoma county he ran for prosecuting attorney. He secured the nomination on the democratic ticket, and lost the election by only 500 votes, with 14,000 cast. Jennings says the "high up" criminals and the election judges stole the office from him. However that may be, it is evident that the other candidates fear him above any other one man.

On returning from the penitentiary he denuded his studies in law, was given back his citizenship by President Roosevelt, and he has made good in the profession. His enemies have been unable to produce evidence that he has not lived a straight life since he was pardoned from the penitentiary.

A year ago he had a suite of rooms in the State National bank building at Oklahoma City. He had an income of $5,000 a year. He was one of the leading criminal lawyers of the state, with all the business he could attend to. Clients came to him from all parts of Oklahoma.

He has quit his law practice. He says a man can't be exactly on the square and practice law. Then, it will take all his time to attend to the coming campaign.

"I'm going to visit every cot in Oklahoma," says Jennings, "and as many of the towns as possible. The newspapers won't give me a square deal. The largest daily in the state and a quarter of the smaller ones have been subsidized by the men who will break the law by spending more than $3,000 allowed them to pay the expenses of the race. If I should walk into the office of most of them and offer them $25, they would support me just as zealously as they are now supporting some one else."

Jennings is already announcing his platform, which is said to be the shortest one on which a candidate ever ran for a high office. He promises: "First, fidelity to the people. Second, real honesty in office. Third, that the law shall be no respecter of persons. When these principles are truthfully and honestly carried out, all interests will be subserved, and taxes will be greatly reduced. In all my life, I have never betrayed a confidence. If the people confide in me, God may be judge, I'll not betray them."
