MODOC POINT PROJECT CONSTRUCTION RESUMED

"There is still $100,000 available for construction work on the Modoc Point reclamation project," was the statement made today by Project Engineer H. W. Hinks, who is in from Chiliquin on a business trip. "An appropriation of about $4,000 was spoken of a short time ago, but that is for operation and maintenance."

The Modoc Point project is being built by the Indian service for the Klamath Indians, and when completed it will irrigate 8,745 acres on the reservation. The main canal was completed last year, and now men are at work on the laterals. A new bridge has been constructed across Sprague River, near Chiliquin, by the crew.

Following test holes, etc., Engineer Hinks has plans for the dam across Sprague River practically completed, and ready to forward to Washington. The dam will be built across the river about three quarters of a mile above the railroad bridge.

The dam is to be 275 feet in length and twelve feet high. It will have a 190 foot spillway. Plans for 1,500 feet of fluming nine feet in diameter, have been approved by the Indian service.

Nice Hike for Medicos.

Dr. Morrow and Dr. Hamilton had a nice long hike that terminated in Klamath Falls at 3 a. m. on Tuesday. They were called to Chiliquin Monday night, and returning, dropped their car into a hole in the road which some man had dug to release a wagon wheel. They had to leave the car and walk to this city, returning this morning with equipment for raising the car out of the hole.

Acting as Miss Applegate, Miss Catherine Williams arranged for a rehearsal of the Senior class play. Forest Peil was Professor Chandler. Leon Boller acted as Mr. Hawley.

Miss Nina Noel impersonated Miss Carpenter. Her work was very clever. "Stubby" Hales, as Rev. Stubblefield, created quite a laugh with his talk to the students on "deficiency."

The faculty enjoyed it as much as the students—probably more. In speaking about the custom, Principal Faught said it was a good one, not only from a standpoint of amusement, but that getting up before the school and carrying on a part was beneficial to the students taking part.

Sue to Recover.

Suit to recover $405.20 alleged due on account, has been commenced by the Farmers Implement and Supply House against Levi D. Ward. J. C. Rutan is attorney for the concern.

ANOTHER WARRANT SUIT IS FILED BY R. N. DAY

Another suit to invalidate warrants issued by the county court was filed today by Ruykendall & Ferguson, as attorneys for R. N. Day. In this the members of the county court, County Clerk De Lap and County Treasurer Siemens are defendants.

This action makes an attack upon some of the warrants issued at the February term of the county court. It seeks to have them declared invalid and to enjoin their payment.

Among the warrants attacked is that issued County Surveyor E. B. Henry for $155, salary for the month of January. The $110 warrant issued J. O. Hammaker as salary and expenses as county sealer of weights and measures it is also sought to invalidate.

The warrant issued Sheriff Low for investigating the saloon situation at Fort Klamath, following the petition of the Women of Woodcraft to Governor West is also attacked. This is for $3.75. The suit also seeks to enjoin the payment of a warrant for $4.85, issued in payment for supplies furnished the Craddock family.

The biggest item is the fight on the warrants issued for rabbit scalp bounty. These amount to $210.

KLAMATH RIDERS IN CALIF. RODEO

BAKERSFIELD, March 17.—From letters that are coming in it would seem that every rider of note in the United States is leaving his range and coming to Bakersfield for the rodeo in April.

Four entries were received by Rodeo Boss Griffin yesterday from Klamath Falls, Ore., and all from men of wide reputation. These are "Skeeter Hill" Robbins, who is a writer as well as a rider; Jess Chambers, a rope artist; Tom Laxton, a bronk rider and bull-dogger, and Carl Hansen, a Dane, who tried for the championship at the Klamath Rodeo last season.

Griffin was a judge last year at Klamath Falls, and "Skeeter" rode a horse called Pin Ears and got thrown. Later, when he came to California to enter Griffin's show at Salinas, he presented the red-headed boss with a poem reciting the Klamath experience. The poem was copied in many papers.

Miss Minnie Thompson of Stockton and Hazel Hoxie of Los Angeles are among the women riders entered for the rodeo events, which commences April 21.

The big purses being hung up, Bakersfield reputation as a good town, and the ability and acquaintance of Boss Frank J. Griffin of Salinas, Calif., who is directing the rodeo features, are all magnets in drawing the men and women of the rope and spur to the San Joaquin Valley.

STUDENTS TAKE PLACE OF FACULTY AT HIGH SCHOOL

"Seeing ourselves as others see us" is the way Principal Faught described the chapel period exercises at high school Tuesday morning. Each member of the faculty had an understudy this morning, and the chapel exercises were conducted by these student substitutes. Edwin Cox, as Principal Faught, gave a really interesting talk on conduct, and used in part Mr. Faught's gesture and delivery.

While he was lecturing, Kenneth Stewart, dressed in overalls and armed with a broom, representing "Pat," the janitor, came in and looked at the thermometer, turned off the steam, raised a window, and went out. Miss Barbara Goeller, as Miss Saucerman, directed the musical exercises.

Rhinehart Motschenbacher took the place of Mr. Coats, and did splendidly. Miss Elizabeth Houston played Miss Sellers, and Miss Eva Hanks presided at the piano in the place of Miss Louise Benson.

Miss Selma McReynolds, as Miss Cole, asked those who had lost their books to look in the library, as they were probably mixed with the library books. Ralph Hurn, as Professor Morrison, walked around and kept an eagle eye on the students, calling them to order when they became too boisterous.

Acting as Miss Applegate, Miss Catherine Williams arranged for a rehearsal of the Senior class play. Forest Peil was Professor Chandler. Leon Boller acted as Mr. Hawley.

Miss Nina Noel impersonated Miss Carpenter. Her work was very clever. "Stubby" Hales, as Rev. Stubblefield, created quite a laugh with his talk to the students on "deficiency."

The faculty enjoyed it as much as the students—probably more. In speaking about the custom, Principal Faught said it was a good one, not only from a standpoint of amusement, but that getting up before the school and carrying on a part was beneficial to the students taking part.

REFER RATES TO THE COMMISSION

RAILROAD COMMISSION IS APPEALED TO

Council instructs City Attorney J. C. Rutan to Draw Up Formal Complaint, in Compliance With Instructions on This Point Submitted by the Commission—Representatives Will be Sent to Investigate

Whether the California-Oregon Power company's rates for water and electric power are excessive, or whether the people have been unjustly clamoring against the company is a question that is soon to be settled. At Monday night's meeting of the council, City Attorney Rutan is instructed to draw up a complaint, petitioning the railroad commission to make an investigation as to the physical valuation of the property, the rates, etc.

The complaint form will be submitted at the next meeting of the council. This method of having the matter taken up was brought before the council by Councilman O. D. Matthews, following the suggestions of the Railroad commission, in part, as follows:

"We have your favor of the 16th inst. acknowledging receipt of our communication to Mr. Jos. Kent relative to investigation of rates and service, and in reply thereto beg to say that the city of Grants Pass complained to this commission with regard to the rates for electricity and power furnished by the California-Oregon Power company at Grants Pass, and this is the matter under investigation by the commission to which we think you refer.

"Answering your question as to whether or not the commission would presume to regulate a plant operated interstate, we beg to say that if the business were strictly interstate we would not assume jurisdiction, but if the companies involved were local, we think it would come within our regulation. This is the situation at Grants Pass, which is very similar to your own.

"The commission called upon the California-Oregon Power company for an appraisal of its physical properties to be used in the hearing on the complaint made by Grants Pass, and the power company has informed us that they expect to have this appraisal completed and ready for submission in about thirty days or six weeks.

"After this appraisal is submitted we will have the same checked over by our engineer in the field to see that a correct list is made of the property of the company and that proper unit of prices have been applied in the ascertaining of the value thereof.

"We are inclosing you herewith a copy of complaint from Grants Pass for your information, if you desire to make complaint to the commission relative to the rates, service or facility of the California-Oregon Power company, and if we can be of any further assistance in giving additional information or assisting in the drafting of your complaint we shall be glad to serve you.

"If the information herein contained is not just what you desire, we shall be pleased to hear further from you. Any service that we can render or any information in our possession you are welcome to, and we shall be glad to furnish the same without cost to you."

An "Average French Family"

PARIS, March 17.—Commenting on the declining birth rate in France, a writer in the Matin declares that the average French family now consists of a dog, a piano and a child.

"Monsieur plays with the dog, Madame plays the piano, and the child is left to either the grandmother, the aunt or the servant," says the writer, who contends that with only sons marrying only daughters, the enormous proportion of one-child families will be considerably increased during the next generation.

CARPENTERS WORK ON THE LIBRARY

Carpenters are now at work building the forms, etc., for the $24,000 Carnegie Library, being erected by the Carnegie Corporation and Klamath county on the new court house block. Harry Anglin, in charge of the construction, says the woodwork will all be completed, and the mixing of concrete will start about the 1st of April.

The plant of the L. M. Schofield company is at work now making the artificial stone, which will be used in finishing the library building. As soon as the pressed stone for the library is finished, work will be started on the remainder of the stone needed for the court house construction.

PETERSON FINDS SPARK PLUG USE

Before County School Superintendent Fred Peterson flips about the necessary levers and gives the necessary quarter turn to start the engine to his car, he makes it a point to look and see if the spark plug is in place. On his recent trip to Dairy he learned that this little device is essential if the car is to run.

That was Peterson's first trip to Dairy after joining the pampered auto owning class, and knowing that all eyes were on him when he went to start the car, he assumed a very laconic attitude as he gave the crank a little turn to show just how easy a car could be started by one knowing how. But it didn't start on the little turn, nor on the many other complete revolutions before Peterson petered out and called for assistance.

It was not until about thirty had tried their skill at cranking, and given advice about more gas, less gas, accelerating the transmission, leakage in the carburetter, reverse of the exhaust, etc., that Brown Michael's turn to do the strong arm stunt came. Before he grasped the crank he looked the engine over.

"Where is your spark plug located on an engine of this kind," he asked, not finding it.

"Well, at present, it's not located on the engine. I put it in my pocket before I went in to lecture," was Peterson's reply. Although he worked in a frenzy to connect up the spark and get out of Dairy, Peterson could not get started quick enough to escape a bombardment of good natured chaffing on the part of his friends.

GOTHAM BEATS WOOLLIEST WEST

NEW YORK, March 17.—This town happens to be New York, the metropolis of the Western Hemisphere, the second largest city in the world, supposedly a center of art, learning, society, culture and wealth, but one would have a hard time convincing Alkali Ike, Plute Pete, Cheyenne Charlie and others of the frontier gentry that a recital of the nightly doings in this man's town were the chronicles of civilization.

The other night a big black touring car dashed at breakneck speed down Eighth avenue among the 130's. In it were two young girls, an dthey stood up in the swaying car, yelling for help.

"For God's sake, rescue us," a passer-by heard one of the girls say. A policeman on "peg post" heard the screams, and stood in the middle of the street, signaling with his white gauntleted hand for the chauffeur to stop. The wig-wag of the policeman's hand usually stops automobiles. But it did not stop this one. The chauffeur swerved his on-rushing car in an endeavor to run down the minion of the law. His murderous onslaught was so nearly effective that the policeman was hurled into an iron pillar and seriously hurt, but he managed to fire a shot at the fleeing automobile in a vain effort to puncture a tire.

Another policeman a block away heard the shot, and planted himself in the street to intercept the piratical black automobile with its passengers. The chauffeur tried to run him down too, but the policeman leaped aside and managed to get a foothold on the footboard of the racing car. A sharp swerve that all but sent the flying vehicle into the curb, shook off the policeman and sent him sprawling. He managed to fire two shots at the car, but missed.

Commandeering a taxicab, the second policeman set off in pursuit of the black automobile, firing six or eight shots at its tires. Other policemen, hearing the shots, tried to stop the car, and almost lost their lives for their pains. As the flying juggernaut flashed into fashionable St. Nicholas avenue, every policeman who saw it shot at the tires, and many citizens, hearing the hubbub, turned out and tried to head off the automobile. The car, though, distanced all pursuers, dodged all bullets, and disappeared into the night. All this happened in the heart of New York's residential district before 9 o'clock at night. The unidentified girls, doubtless white slave victims, were completely swallowed up.

The gunmen of New York are no less picturesque in their carrying-on. "Dopey Benny" Fein, head of the East Side band of brigands, shot a policeman. He was arrested and put on trial before a jury of unidentified men.

To induce citizens to serve on the gangster jury, it was necessary to assure them their names would never be known to the friends of the defendant.

So wide has spread the terror of the gunmen that men refused to qualify for the jury until reassured that their names would never be known to any but the deputy sheriffs who drew and summoned them.

"Dopey Benny" did not know the name of one of his "peers" who found him guilty and sent him to Sing Sing for twenty-one years on the double charge of assault and of violating the Sullivan law which prohibits citizens from having deadly weapons in their possession.

Immediately on learning of "Dopey Benny's" conviction, his gangsters set about their campaign of reprisal. A rival gunman was shot to death the very same night in a Bowery saloon known as "The Tab of Blood." The place was invaded while three women were in the rear room, and the women saw the death duel.

The next night gunmen invaded another saloon. This time they were not after any rivals, but they needed money to carry on their operations.

Before the eyes of his little girl the gangsters beat the saloon man into insensibility, drove his customers to the street and escaped with $50 from the register. A block away they held up another saloon at the pistol's point, but were forced to flee by the gathering crowd before they obtained any money. Four were captured.

Such things are nightly occurrences in New York, and they are by no means confined to out-lying and isolated districts. Three desperadoes invaded a West Side saloon the other night, in the district which is colloquially known as "Hell's Halfacre," though it is only a stone's throw from Longacre Square and the Great White Way, and shot down the porter of the place because the bartender refused to serve them drinks. A fusillade of shots kept back the gathering crowd until the gangsters escaped in a taxicab.

It was the spectacular killing of Herman Rosenthal and the subsequent happenings that brought the New York gunmen into the limelight, and made them every-ready characters for drama and fiction, but the Rosenthals' murder was nothing new. The limelight for publicity merely served to call the public's attention to a state of affairs that has existed in the greater city for many years.

Recently the new city administration has made an effort to drive out the gangsters, and the police have been instructed to use their clubs freely on the gunmen wherever found. Arrest and conviction of the East Side "bad man" so far has accomplished nothing, apparently, but the starting of campaigns of revenge and fresh feuds.
