Fourteen New Cardinals Are Ordained by Pope Pius X.

Thousands Attend Elaborate Ceremonies at the Vatican—Many Requests for Admission Had to Be Denied

ROME, May 28.—The red hat, symbolic of the highest office in the Catholic church, with the exception of that of pope, was this morning conferred on fourteen new cardinals. The ceremony took place at a public consistory of the Sacred College, held at the Vatican, and the new princes of the church consisted of the thirteen prelates who were created cardinals last Monday, and Monsignor Hornig, archbishop of Veszprém, Hungary, who was elevated to the purple last December, but had not as yet received the hat.

The ceremony this morning was the most elaborate which has been held at the Vatican since the November consistory of 1911, when amongst the eighteen cardinals created at that time there were three Americans. The presence of all three of the latter, namely Cardinals Farley, Falconio and O'Connell, as well as Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore, contributed much toward making today's consistory notable, as the presence of American cardinals at Rome has at all times aroused an interest and enthusiasm which that of other cardinals fails to engender.

The attendance today was also most unusual, this being the season of the year, just following Easter, when Rome is filled with pilgrims and tourists from all parts of the world. The limited number of tickets allotted to the public was exhausted several weeks ago, and thousands of requests had to be refused.

In pursuance with the customs of centuries special tribunes were set aside at the consistory for those who have a special right to attend. These included the diplomats accredited to the Vatican, who attended in full uniform and decorations; the heads of the various religious orders, such as the Knights of Malta, the Franciscans, Benedictines and Jesuits; the officers of the Pope's Noble Guards, Palatine Guards, Swiss Guards and Gendarmes, and high Vatican prelates. There was also the special tribune which for centuries has been reserved for the noble families of the Roman aristocracy, and next to this, at the special orders of Pope Pius, a special tribune was placed for his two sisters and niece, who keep him company in Rome. The standing room left for the public at large was occupied to the last inch.

The greater portion of the morning's ceremony consisted in the figurative bestowing on the new cardinals of the red hat. As the name of each was called, he advanced towards the papal throne, dropping to his knees three times before finally reaching the feet of Pope Pius.

The latter for a brief instant then placed on the head of each a huge, red hat, the same one being used for each cardinal, and recited the ritual prescribed for the occasion. Following the removal of the hat, his holiness placed on the finger of each cardinal a magnificent gold ring, set with the special jewels belonging to the particular order of cardinals to which each had been created, and closed with the apostolic benediction.

Later in the day, special emissaries from the Vatican, driving in the state carriages of the pope, visited the hotel of each cardinal and delivered personally the red hat that becomes a part of the permanent regalia of each new cardinal prince of the church. This hat is retained until the death of the cardinal, when it is then suspended for all time to come in the church of which he had been the particular cardinal protector.

Throughout the entire ceremony, lasting nearly two hours, Pope Pius appeared at all times in the best of health, and at its close there was no evidence whatever either of the fatigue or collapse which invariably followed all such ceremonies towards the close of the pontificate of Pope Leo XIII.

In fact, Pope Pius' whole aspect, as well as his strong resonant voice, indicated that there was every reason to hope that it will be a number of years yet before the cardinals created this morning will be called together in conclave to elect a successor to the Holy See.

Opium Hold in France Alarming Authorities

By WILLIAM PHILLIP SIMMS
(Paris Correspondent of the United Press)

PARIS, May 2.—Owing to alarming ravages made by the opium habit in all classes of French society of late, a bill more stringently to regulate the sale of the drug in its various forms has been drafted here and will be shortly introduced in the chamber of deputies.

In the meantime general orders have been issued by the police prefects of Paris, Toulon, Marseilles and other cities, to keep a sharp lookout for the traffic in all its phases and make arrests relentlessly wherever culprits may be found. The feelings of no one, regardless of their prominence, are to be spared.

Mme. Lasalle, formerly the Viscountess de Raisne, has just been fined $120 in the correctional court here for the illegal possession of the drug. She lives in a magnificent house in one of the richest and most exclusive quarters of Paris.

Following the punishment of Mme. Lasalle, twelve Paris druggists were found guilty of selling cocaine and sentenced to pay fines ranging from $10 to $400, and to various terms of imprisonment.

Investigations show that students in the Latin quarter who snuff cocaine or use opium in some form or other, are alarmingly numerous, while many naval officers and men, especially those who have served in the Orient, are regular patrons of joints.

As profits are large, the trade in morphine, ether, cocaine and other narcotics is carried on a big scale, especially in Paris. The drugs are delivered to users in various guises, sometimes hidden in bouquets of violets, or other flowers, often by women and girls posing as flower sellers.

The French government is making the most serious attempts yet to stop, or at least to reduce to the minimum, the dope habit.

While it is admitted that it is practically impossible to stop all illicit traffic in drugs, the aim of the authorities is to make all access to the poisons so risky that new victims will not appear.

So, as soon as the helpless drunkards disappear, France, at least, will be practically free from the vice.

THE WILLIAMSON RIVER FOR HIM

L. S. Lindsey, with the Wiley B. Allen company of San Francisco, left Tuesday morning to resume his labors after spending two weeks at the Silvers resort on Williamson River, above Chiloquin.

Each summer for several years past Mr. Lindsey has spent his vacation at that famous resort, and nothing that can be said about the attractions of other places can lure him from the delights of the beautiful Williamson. Mr. Lindsey is an enthusiastic "fly fisherman," and while his trip was a bit early this year for the best results, he feels that he was amply repaid for his journey and expenditure, even though he encountered more stormy weather than is usual at this time of the year.

To put it in his own words: "The forty-five minutes spent in landing a five-pound trout on my first day more than repaid me for my trouble."

Mr. Lindsey has but one protest to enter, and that is regarding the train service. He claims it robbed him of at least two days of his vacation. He was compelled to leave Chiloquin Monday and lay over in Klamath Falls until the next day, and then spend almost half of another day in Weed before he could continue his journey homeward.

A Methodist Dinner.

A pleasant dinner party was held Monday evening at the home of Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Richards, when all of the guests were either Methodist clergymen or their wives. Attending were Rev. and Mrs. H. J. VanFossen, superintendent of the Klamath district; Rev. and Mrs. G. W. Hall of Bonanza, Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Worrell of Klamath Agency, and Rev. Thomas Acheson of Merrill.

Work begins in June on the new Sutherlin, Coos Bay and Eastern railroad.
