Peoria Candidate for New National Capital

United Press Service
PEORIA, Ill., July 23.—Remove the national capital to Peoria.
"A full dinner pail for the laborer, a new dress for his wife, a nickel for the tots, a full stomach for all.
"Only old sea cows say that things can't be done."
These are planks in the platform on which "Judge" J. Frederick Hilton of Peoria is seeking the nomination on the republican ticket for congress from the sixteenth Illinois district.

The platform is printed on the back of Hilton's name cards.
"The capital of the United States, in the face of the growing and dominant West, can't last fifteen years where it is," reads the argument in support of the plank.
One of Hilton's most frequently advanced claims to distinction is a boyhood friendship for Al Jennings, former bandit, now running for governor of Oklahoma.

BID THE GENTLE HINDU FAREWELL

UNWELCOME GUESTS OF VANCOUVER ARE NOW ON THEIR WAY TO THEIR OLD HOME OVER THE PACIFIC

United Press Service
VANCOUVER, B. C., July 23.—The Japanese steamer Komagata with 372 Hindus on board, and escorted by the cruiser Rainbow, today started on her journey to Japan, having exhausted every Indian subterfuge to outwit the Canadian immigration authorities, and being baffled at every turn.

It was thought yesterday that after the government had provisioned the vessel for the return trip that the incident was ended, but the crafty Hindu was not yet ready to leave, and rising in mutiny, threw the Japanese crew overboard and made a further demand for provisions.

Their modest demands included one chicken each, daily, two cows to provide fresh milk and a number of sheep for fresh meat. Other supplies were included in the new demand.

At daybreak a government tug carried an ultimatum to the Komagata which brought the mutineers to terms, and Captain Yamamoto and his unwelcome passengers sailed away.

BACK FROM HUNT FOR VIOLATORS OF GAME LAWS

STATE GAME WARDEN MAKES A 200-MILE TRIP HORSEBACK

Got a Clue That Poachers Operating on the Umpqua Were Taking Venison Out by Way of a Trail to Klamath Falls, But Says Evidence Was Insufficient to Warrant an Arrest

SALEM, Ore., July 23.—That game law violators of the Umpqua national forest have the forest service men "buffaloed" was the statement made by Game Warden Evans on his return from a 200-mile trip on horseback through that region.

Evans made the trip for the purpose of ascertaining conditions in the forest and locating, if possible, anyone who was engaged in slaying deer in the closed season. Although no one was caught, Evans is convinced that some of the forest men could give information which would lead to the apprehension of the guilty parties if they were not afraid that the trespassers' friends, in a spirit of revenge, would set fire to the forests and cause tremendous losses. For this reason, says Evans, the forest service men are attending strictly to their own business and it is up to the game warden and his men to look after theirs.

Evans got a clue that some venison had been taken out by way of a trail to Klamath Falls, but there was insufficient evidence to warrant an arrest. There are old Indian trails running in all directions and it is a difficult matter to head off the law violators, he says.

"It is a fact that $1 per pound can be obtained for venison out of season, and so the deer slayers are willing to take chances," said Evans. "The supply is plentiful and the deer are not hard to approach. Wolves seem to be too numerous, however, and they must have slaughtered many deer during the winter season. Despite the fact that a $30 bounty is paid, the wolves are increasing, I believe, and are a constant source of danger to deer."

Evans described fishing in the forest as almost too tame for sport, explaining that the fish bite greedily at fly hook held two feet above the water.

Warden Evans praised the forest service men for their trail building through the forest. Near Illihee, where there is a sheer cliff about 400 feet in height, a trail has been cut in the solid rock about 100 feet from the base. It is perfectly safe, although a tenderfoot gets nervous when looking down from the narrow trail.

The guides told Evans that the horses never stumble. Cable bridges gave the travelers an idea of what aeroplaning means, the bridge swaying backward and forward and causing the horses to spread their feet to prevent falling. The horses have adapted themselves splendidly to conditions, said Evans, are safe under the most trying conditions and alive to every requirement.

Warden Evans entered the forest from Roseburg and made a circle, coming out several miles below Roseburg.

The deer season opens August 1st and the game warden believes hunters should find much sport in Douglas county this year.

HEAT WAVE OVER THE MIDDLE WEST

MANY CITIES SEND FORTH THE CRY OF DISTRESS AND WEATHER BUREAU CAN GIVE NO ENCOURAGEMENT

United Press Service
CHICAGO, July 23.—From Wisconsin comes the word of rain in the Northwest, but elsewhere the Middle West is in the grasp of a heat wave that shows no signs of abating.

The government thermometer at 9 o'clock this morning registered 90 degrees, and was still climbing.

From other cities the cry of distress is heard, and the weather bureau reports no encouragement to suffering humanity.

Christie Company Has Good Show

J. V. Houston visited his Merrill opera house last evening to size up the Christie Comedy, which will open in Klamath Falls Friday night. Mr. Houston says he was agreeably surprised at the class of show put on by the company. They have six people in the cast and for a 15c and 25c show it is one of the best performances that he has seen. Mr. Houston says that he feels safe in offering to return the money to any of the people attending the first night's show. Hayden to Leave Soon for Nevada Engineer B. E. Hayden, of the reclamation service, who is to be transferred to the Truckee-Carson project, expects to leave about the middle of August for his new location at Fallon, Nevada. Mr. Hayden will have charge of the irrigation of the project, the same work he has been doing on the Klamath project. The Truckee-Carson is the oldest of the government projects, and the engineering work is about completed.

Warns Farmers Against a Serious Weed Pest

By M. A. McCall, County Agriculturist

As a word of warning to the farmers of Klamath county, attention is called to the common bachelor's button, or French pink. In traveling over Klamath county in different localities this plant has been observed already making its appearance in some of the cultivated fields. Ordinarily grown as an ornament, this plant when once started in grain or meadow lands quickly develops into one of the most pernicious weeds known and a little carelessness due to ignorance may cost the farmers of this vicinity thousands of dollars if this is allowed to spread.

In the Willamette valley the bachelor's button has taken the entire country from Portland to Eugene and entire fields often look more like a flower garden than grain.

Introduced by the early settlers on French Prairie in Marion county as an ornamental plant, it was allowed to spread before its character was realized, and today is costing the Western Oregon country thousands of dollars yearly. Land once infested remains so for a long time, the seed remaining in the ground indefinitely with unimpaired vitality.

In Klamath Falls a number are growing this plant in their yards and are allowing it to seed without realizing what it may mean. Some farmers are doing the same thing, and already a scattering few of the pest have been observed along fence rows and rights-of-way.

Now is the time before it has a chance to spread of stopping any possibility of damage. All plants should be pulled and burned as the seed will sometimes mature sufficiently after pulling to grow, if the plant by chance does not dry out at once.

There is every indication to believe that the pest will thrive here to perfection and even though one may believe conditions not favorable to the plant becoming a weed, he still should not allow it the chance.

Especially is the warning pertinent to the irrigator, and while possibly not as apt to prove serious on dry lands even there prevention is safest.

six Schneider biplanes which will form the nucleus of an aerial fleet. These machines are particularly adapted to long distance scouting.

Later a number of French monoplanes will be added, experiments with these still continuing.

United Press Service
PARIS, July 23.—It was reported today that the defense in the Caillaux trial will introduce expert testimony to prove that the wound inflicted on Editor Calmette by Mme. Caillaux was not a fatal one, but that death was caused from inattention.

One physician, it is stated, will testify that the most elementary precautions would have saved the life of the wounded man.

Immense crowds continue to attend the trial, and the court room is constantly jammed.
