Aquarium presents annual food drive

KATHERINE LACAIZE/SEASIDE SIGNAL

Keith Chandler (center) and Tiffany Boothe (left), of the Seaside Aquarium, dropped off more than 1,200 food items at the South County Community Food Bank, managed by Karla Gann (right).

The cans and boxes of food were collected during the aquarium’s annual holiday food drive, which spans from Thanksgiving to New Year’s Day. During the food drive, held annually for 15 years, people get admission to the aquarium for two cans or boxes of food. This year, more than 587 people from 58 different locations — including 11 different states, Canada and Mexico — participated, donating 1,222 food items. Gann said the donation was significant, and, in general, “the donations this year have been phenomenal.” Throughout the winter months, the food pantry has received numerous donations and in large amounts from various organizations and groups, she said.
