For members of Key Club, caring is a way of life

KATHERINE LACAZE/FOR SEAGULL PRIDE

Seaside High School's Key Club focuses on caring for the community through student-led service projects.

When it comes to serving the community at home and abroad, Seaside High School Key Club members put themselves on the front lines, continually seeking ways to care for others in the community.

The philosophy of Key Club, according to science teacher and adviser Suzanna Kruger, is "leadership through service."

Seaside's chapter has about 15 members, and its current officers include president Hailey Smith; vice president

Tristyn McFadden; secretary Candace Kerr; and treasurer Anna Peon.

Smith, who was inducted during a meeting March 20, said she strongly appreciates the Key Club motto: "Caring — our way of life."

"I think that's an amazing way to live," she said.

Convention motivation

New leadership is elected in the spring, following the Pacific Northwest District convention, which this year took place from March 16 to 18 in Portland. Six students from Seaside attended the convention, accompanied by two students from Astoria
