Halloween came to Ter Har's in Seaside on Thursday night, as a steady flow of trick or treaters celebrated the spooky, the scary, the beautiful and the weird. Do you recognize your friends, family or neighbors?

The Seaside Chamber of Commerce CEO Brian Owen was the first to volunteer to participate in Susan G. Komen's "Paint It Pink" program. Starting with a small donation, members of the chamber celebrated raising more than $1,800 to fight breast cancer.

Along with Owen, who looked quite natty in his semi-formal attire, came a pinkified Mayor Jay Barber and Seaside City Manager Mark Winstanley, whose foray into costumery delighted members of the chamber breakfast meeting at the Holiday Inn Express on Wednesday, Oct. 30.

The chamber's Brandy Stewart and Sandy McDowall shared their own family and personal stories.

I got screened.
Now, I'm talking about it.

Screening can prevent colorectal cancer or catch the #2 cancer killer early when it's highly treatable. Most people get screened because they're encouraged by someone they know and trust. So if you've been screened, please talk about your experience. And encourage others to get screened too.
