Joe Magoff, center, who spent 30 years with Wilcox & Flegel, celebrated his 80th birthday April 4, with family and friends including Steve Wilcox, right, and Jack Sweeney, who now manages the Vernonia bulk plant and card lock. Wilcox told Magoff "You trained me!" Magoff, with a twinkle in his eye, said, "I got a few tears when I learned of this—glad they let me be a part of it."

Senior News

Things were really happening at the Senior Citizens Center on March 28th, as the senior center's staff and members hosted guests from the four other Columbia County senior centers for lunch. Seventy-nine people were served, Nellie Tipton reports.

The visitors stayed around after lunch to browse the flea market and book store for items to take home. The next gathering of the 5 Area seniors will be April 28th at the St. Helens senior center.

Wally Noakes, his many friends, neighbors and kin-folks congregated at the center on April 2nd to celebrate his 95th birthday. Many guests and well-wishers came and went during the afternoon, sharing coffee, cake, cookies and happy memories of a former time, listening to the music of a guitar and the voices of a family group.

A highlight of the afternoon was the reading by Noakes of one of his many poems, this one entitled How I Got Reli- gion, which explained why he gave up trout and perch fishing on Sunday to go to church. He had discovered, he said, that all the good looking girls were in church!

Activities at the the center this month include a visit from the foot care person on the 14th, a trip to Newport Aquarium on the 16th and a birthday party for Mary Steele on the 23rd, the occasion of her 84th. The Doll Club meets on the 29th.

May birthdays are: 3rd, Iva Lolley and Gerald Russell; 6th, John Haley; 7th, Zada Snook; 8th, Ethel Blackburn; 10th, Ray and Elsie Taylor; 11th, Bernice Frey; 13th, Florence Akers; 17th, Faith Reynolds and Dick Trahan; 27th, Bill Yeo; 30th, Henry Anderegg.

The seniors are still very short-handed and can use the help of volunteers for many different tasks, from paper rolling to carpentry. Anyone having time and/or skills is asked to report in at the center for details.
