

Columbia Center will display artists works on "Images of Time"

The Columbia Center Art Committee is seeking artists to participate in its first show of 2000, entitled "Images of Time: Past, Present and Future."

The show will open Feb. 3 with an reception at Columbia

Center. Artists who want to display their works should bring them to Columbia Center between 4:00 and 6:00 p.m. on Monday, Jan. 31, for acceptance. The show will run through Feb. 24.

The show will be a broad mix of art media, including timepieces, antiques, jewelry and other artifacts that capture the concepts of time, change, past, present and future. Works of art may be two- or three-dimensional, including photography, paintings, computer art and sculptures.

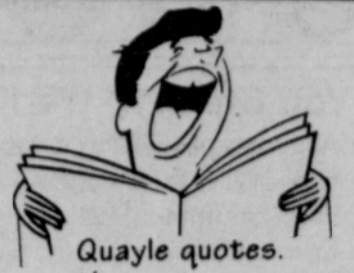

Two pieces of art will be welcomed from each artist. Two-dimensional pieces may be no larger than 28 x 36 inches framed. The works must be framed and ready for exhibition.

Works may be offered for sale. Columbia Foundation, which hosts the art program, will receive a 20 percent commission of any sales.

"We are really excited about hosting this show because the theme is so broad," said Maeona Urban, committee chair. "We have so many talented artists in the region, we hope the show will feature a wide variety of mediums."

The Art Committee has planned its shows for the entire year to make it easier for artists to participate. A schedule is available at Columbia Center. The committee, which meets on the second Tuesday of each month, welcomes new participants, whether they are artists or appreciators of art. Questions about the show schedule or criteria may be directed to Barbara Peschiera at 503-397-1139 or at bcp@columbia-center.org.

"I have made good judgements in the past. I have made good judgements in the future."

"The future will be better tomorrow."

"We're going to have the best educated American people in the world."

"People that are really very weird can get into sensitive positions and have a tremendous impact on history."

"For NASA, space is still a high priority."

"I am not part of the problem. I am a Republican."

"I stand by all the misstatements that I've made."

Advocates needed for patients in long term care

Volunteer advocates and investigators are needed to serve as ombudsmen for residents of nursing homes, residential care facilities, assisted living facilities and adult foster care homes.

The state Office of Long

Term Care Ombudsmen will train volunteers on the aging process, communication skills, problem-solving skills, investigation and other ombudsmen skills. Orientation will begin Saturday, Jan. 22, in Tigard.

Certified Ombudsmen identify and investigate residents' complaints and concerns, then work with the facilities to resolve those complaints. Problems typically include resident care, residents' rights, such as privacy, respect and dignity; and quality of life concerns such as appropriate activities and meals.

While the training is offered several times each year, this session is one of two that will be offered on weekends to accommodate individuals who are employed weekdays.

Volunteers also may choose to join the Resident Associate Program, which focuses on visiting isolated or lonely residents.

For information about the program or to learn how to get involved, contact Kathy Walter at 1-800-522-2602.
