

Vernonia man to appear as guest on NPR program

Wait, wait, do read this! How many of you out there in reader land also listen to and are a part of radio land?

How many of you listen to the quiz and trivia NPR radio program, "Wait, Wait, Don't Tell Me"?

Sunday Aug. 20, NPR radio will have a guest from Vernonia on the weekly broadcast. Michael Roberts was invited to be on the limerick/riddle portion of the hour-long broadcast because of his "well written" letter. The host, along with announcer Carl Castle will try to trick Michael into NOT being able to finish a number of the test riddles given to him.

If he wins and gets the round correctly, beside "five minutes of fame", Michael will receive an answering machine greeting from the famous Carl Castle.

So, if you are listening in on Sunday and hear that "so and so from Vernonia Oregon is a guest on today's show," don't be alarmed. Listen closely and see if you have what it takes to compete on National Public Radio.

The program will air at 2:00 p.m. Sunday afternoon on OPB, (Oregon Public Broadcasting) 91.5 FM.

Little Loggers preschool registration

Applications are now being taken for the 2000-2001 school year at Little Loggers Preschool for children who have turned three by Sept. 1.

Little Loggers Preschool will provide a diverse physical, cognitive language and social/emotional learning experience which focuses on the interests and needs of your child. The program will include small and large group activities that encourage and provide opportunities for discussion, problem solving, curiosity and cooperation to help children become critical thinkers. Children will be screened and placed in groups with children who have similar goals. Goals will be determined by parents with the assistance of the teacher. Guidance and discipline are based on redirection and positive reinforcement.

The preschool will operate three hours a day, on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Cost is $55 per month.

Registration will be taken August 18, 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m., at Vernonia Head Start. For more information, call Dawn Boyce at 429-4641 or 429-9243.

Your voice is heard when you speak from the ballot box. Register to vote today.
