State Fair seeks varied art entries

The Oregon State Fair is seeking entries for the Oregon Art Annual, which includes categories in professional, amateur, student and youth and calligraphy. A total of $3,600 in cash will be awarded.

Entries in the professional category will be judged from slides and the deadline is July 20. Amateur, student, youth and calligraphy entries and completed forms must be delivered to the state fair's Art Department on August 11 and 12.

Entry forms, which include entry requirements and deadlines, are available at the fair office at 2330 - 17th Street NE, Salem OR 97303, or by phoning 503-947-3247. Interested artists may also request forms

by e-mailing Sheila Powell at Shela789@aol.com

Forms are also available on the fair's Web site at www.oregonstatefair.org

The amateur show jurors are Bryan Grimes, Portland, wood sculptor; Sharon Heider Meaney, Salem, painter; and Diane Trevett, Salem, mixed media.

The 2001 Oregon State Fair is August 23 through September 3. The theme is "Ain't No Place I'd Rather Be".

Charity race at Sunset Speedway

Sunset Speedway race drivers will make their yearly contribution to charity in an event christened the KUPL "Race For Kids." Drivers from the 360 Sprint, Street Stock and Bomber divisions will donate the lion's share of their July 7 winnings to the Children's Cancer Association. The parents of Molly Thompson, who lost her bout with cancer at the tender age of four, were on hand at Sunset to help promote the upcoming event.

Jim Beardsley, a regular competitor in the Cascade Hardtop division, has been beating the drum for the Thompson's cause for several years. This year, Beardsley, along with Albertson's Food & Drug, will sponsor the "Miles From Molly" Walk, Bike and Run on July 29. All proceeds from this event will benefit the Children's Cancer Association.

Native American art will be featured at Columbia Center show

The Columbia Foundation is hosting a Native American Art Show and Community Events beginning July 6.

"Who are the Indigenous Plateau Tribes in Oregon and Washington?", a talk by Pat Courtney Gold, a Wasco tribal member, will be presented July 7 at 2:00 p.m. at the Columbia Center in St. Helens. In addition to taking a historical view, Gold will discuss contemporary social change and its effects on contemporary Native American cultures and art. Gold's basketry has been exhibited nationally and internationally and she now devotes her time to creating art and lecturing on Plateau Art.

A day of family activities focusing on Native American education is planned from 11:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. at the Columbia Center. A 23-foot salmon tent from the Mt. Hood National Forest Service will be on site until 1:00 p.m. The public is invited to attend and the admission is free.

Additionally, more than 40 pieces of art featuring Native American families and children will be on display at The Gallery at Columbia Center during the month of July.

Ed Edmo, (Shoshone-Bannock), a Columbia River Indian fisherman will be on hand for storytelling at the First Friday reception, July 6 from 6:00 to 7:30 p.m. The reception is being catered by Mark Alstetter of Food Fantastic. Edmo is an internationally acclaimed poet, playwright, performer, storyteller and lecturer on Northwest tribal culture. The show will run until July 21.

The program is sponsored by Columbia County Indian Education and the Columbia Center Art Committee and is made possible by funding from the Oregon Council for the Humanities, an affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities. OCH is dedicated to providing opportunities for life-long learning in communities around the state.

Yard of the Month

The Yard of the Month for June graces the Cherry Street home of Loren and Robin Dennis. Though a velvety lawn is the first element seen, the most outstanding feature is the use of foliage color and texture, mixed with creatively designed retaining walls. Loren Dennis also constructed a waterfall (yes, it uses a recycling pump) as part of the retaining wall. Vernonia Cares started the Yard of the Month program this year, with nominations accepted from throughout the community.

Salmon watching site developed

A rustic picnic table and benches are now nestled by the water just south of the Rock Creek Bridge, behind Shay Park. Though this spot is enticing on a warm summer day, it was developed so people could comfortably watch salmon on their upstream journey during spawning season. Construction was done by volunteers with the Upper Nehalem Watershed Council.
