Keenon Land Services to be under new ownership after 16 years

Keenon Land Services, Inc. (KLS) has announced the retirement of founder L. Jerry Keenon effective May 1, 2004. Keenon and wife, Dolly, started the survey company in 1985 and have served the area's needs ever since. KLS is now a full-service surveying company offering many surveying and mapping services, including water rights examinations.

Keenon plans to do some fishing, though he will still serve the company in a consulting role.

The company will now be in the capable hands of new owners, Don and Kim Wallace. Don Wallace has been with Keenon for 16 years and has wide experience in both field and office elements of surveying. The Wallaces will have two crews fully equipped for surveying, to continue offering the fast, accurate, and professional services that Keenon Land Services, Inc. has become known for providing.

There will be no change in the office location, 1224 E. Alder Street, Vernonia, or the phone number, 503-429-6115.

Lewis & Clark Bridge project update

Rolling slowdowns will continue on weekdays so workers can access the bridge. The slowdown is usually two vehicles, one carrying the crew and the second driving behind the first to give the crew time to exit the first vehicle. Motorists will experience a slowdown as opposed to a stop and start situation. This is done to avoid any sudden stops and rear-end accidents.
